PREFACE

Candid Reader,

S EEING that Corrupt Principles tend to infect the Heart and Practice, it is therefore highly neceffary to beware of them; we read of damnable Herefies, as well as damnable Practices, (2Pct. ii. 1.) Seeing that the main Doctrines of Religion, have, in a Meafure, the fame Relation to Piety in Practice, as a Foundation to a Superftructure, it is therefore like building a Fabrick in the Air to inculcate the one without having regard to the other. It is doubtlefs a commanded and Important Duty to be Valiant for the Truth upon the Earth, and to contend for the Faith once deliver'd to the Saints: But how fhall we be able to comply with this divine Precept, unlefs we know the Truths we are to be 'Zealous for? And how can we expect to know them without the Ufe of proper Means to that End, fuch as Reading, Meditation, Prayer ?

We are commanded to bold fast the Form of found Words, 2 Tim. i. 13. The original Word Hypotopolis, fignifies a Scheme or Skeleton. This plainly intends not only the Relation and Harmony of the great Truths of Religion to and among each other, but the Necefiity we lie under of adhering to them; but how shall we do this without Knowledge? To suppose that we need not know but a few Principles, and that the Knowledge of many hinders our religious Progress, is to reflect upon the Wisdom and Goodnels § of of God in revealing fo many in the Scriptures: And to fay in other Words that the chief Part of the Scriptures is Vain, ful Position ! If the Doctrines of the Scriptures is valin, ful Position ! If the Doctrines of the Scriptures need not be known, why have they been reveal'd ? Can they be of Service to us without our Knowledge of them; but possibly fome may Object that Paul afferted, he defir'd to know nothing among the Corinthians but JESUS CHRIST and him crucify'd. I anfwer that Place of Scripture is to be taken comparitively, viz. That he defir'd to know nothing fo much among them as Chrift and him crucify'd, he defir'd to make Chrift in his Person, Natures, Offices, Relations, and Sufferings, together with the Benefits thereby purchas'd, the principal Subject and main Scope of his minifteral Labours. He defir'd to make all his Sermons on every Subject tend to promote the Knowledge of CHRIST, Love to him and Faith in him. Neither is it unufual in Scripture to take absolute Expressions in a comparative Sense. Thus the Almighty fayeth, That be will have Mercy and not Sacrifice, i. e. rather than Sacrifice. Now if we take the aforefaid Scripture in another Senfe, viz. That Paul defir'd to know nothing more than the Doctrine of CHRIST's Crucifixion : This tends to cast contempt upon the chief Part of the Scriptures and render them vain and useles. And it is likewife contrary to the Apostles Practice, for he preach'd and wrote by divine Inspiration many other Truths; and furely he may be reasonably suppos'd to know his own Intention beft.

It is indeed cur Wißdom and our Duty to proportion the Degree of our Zeal, for the feveral Truths of Religion to their refpective Weight and Place in the Christian System, but without Knowledge and Judgment this is Impracticable. We are enjoyn'd to continue in the Faith, grounded and fettled The Preface.

fettled. Col. i. 23. But how can this be expected without the Knowledge of the Doctrines of Faith, can we continue in that which we know not? Surely Ignorance is the Caufe of Unfteadinefs in the Principles of Religion; becaufe of this, fome are like Children toffed to and fro, and carried about with every Wind of Doctrine, by the Slight of Men and cunning Craftinefs, whereby they lie in wait to deceive, (Epbef. iv. 14.) It is no new Thing for falfe Teachers by good Words and fair Speaches to deceive the Hearts of the Simple, (Rom. xvi. 18.) The falfe Apoftles enfnar'd the Galatians by great Shews of Piety and Affection to them, as well as by unjuft Reflections againft faithful Minifters. Gal. iv. 17. They zealoufly affect you, but not well, yea they would exclude us that you might affect them.

Surely our Eftablifhment in the great Principles of Religion, tends to the Glory of God and our own growth in Goodnefs. This is our Excellency, and indeed it is one great End of the Gofpel Miniftry. (Ephef. iv. 11,----13.) Whereas the Contrary tends to the Diffionour of God and our felves, and much Mars our Growth in Holinefs : For how can a Plant thrive that is often mov'd? Is it likely that thofe will glorify God by fuffering for Truth who know it not? Let us therefore abhor thefe Popifb Principle's, viz. That Ignorance is the Mother of Devotion, and that it is our Duty to believe implicitely or fimply. Surely without Knowledge the Mind cannot be good. Acquaintance with the first Principles of the Oracles of God enriches the Mind and is a Lamp to the Feet. The Knowledge of divine Truths in their due Series and Connection, much confirms our belief of them, and thereby inflames our Love, and Influences our Practice. To help forward that good Defign I have been induc'd to offer the following Difcourfes to publick View ; and would entreat the Reader to perufe the whole before he condemns condemns a Part, that fo he may have an Oppertunity of judging for himfelf whether the Truths therein contain'd do not harmonize among themselves, and tend to promote the Glory of God as well as the Creatures felf Abafement and eternal Happiness. And if they be found attended with these Characters, are they not worthy of Credit and Accep-tance? Surely the Doctrines of Religion should not be judged of according to the prejudices of our Education or corrupt Byaffes of Paffion, but calmly and impartially weighed in the Scales of Scripture and Reason. For Truth will not vary according to our Humour : It is therefore undoubtedly our Intereft to know it, whether we like it or not. In the mean time we should beware of refting fatisfy'd with the Doctrinal Knowledge of Truth, without feeling the ef-ficacious Influence thereof upon Heart and Life, for fuch as know their Masters Will and do it not, must expect to be beaten with double stripes. Now that the following Sermons may be bleffed of the most high God, to the equal promoting of Truth and Holineis, is the earnest Defire and Prayer of thy Servant for CHRIST's Sake.

Philadelphic, June 23. 1744. G. TENNENT.

SERMON II.

1. Corinthians x. 31. Whether therefore ye eat or Drink, or what foever ye do, do all to the Glory of God.

HE Heart is certainly the main Spring of practical Religion ; when that is fet right in its aims, then all the Wheels of Motion keep their proper Diftances and Spheres, and answer a valuable End : But when this main Spring is wrong fett, all is wrong ; the Motion of the Souls Powers is irregular and vain, becaufe it tends to a wrong Mark.

It is therefore of the last necessity that we be careful in hufing of and fixing upon a right Mark in our Actions: And what can this be but GOD and bis Glory ? Let us therefore give him our Hearts, and make his Honour the chief scope of all we do: It will be but of little Service to us to cleanfe the outfide of the Cup and Platter, if the infide be neglected, and our aims be wrong.

Do not therefore think it ftrange my Hearers, that I dwell fo long upon this Subject, for indeed it is the very turning Point and Foundation of all practical Godlinefs. We ourfelves are furely fuch as our governing aims be.

You may remember that in the preceeding Sermon, I observ'd the following Point of Truth, viz. That the great Mark at which we fould aim chiefly, in all our Actions, whether ther Natural, Civil or Religious, is the Glory of the most high God. And that the Method I propos'd to purfue in the Profecution of it, was as follows, viz. 1st. I was to shew the Kinds and Nature of God's Glory.

II. What is fuppos'd by and imply'd in our aiming at God's Glory.

III. I purposed to shew how we should glorify God.

IV. Why we (hould aim at his Glory, as our chief Mark in all our Actions.

V. I was to Anfacer fome Objections to the contrary, and then proceed to some practical Improvement of the Whole. The first four general Heads I have discoursed upon, that which yet remains to be treated of, as the Subject of the prefent Sermon, is the 5th general Head, namely to ankwer Objections.

But before I proceed to treat directly upon the 5th Pro-pos'd, I shall beg Leave to cite fome Sentences, extracted from the writings of divers worthy Divines, tending to confirm and illustrate what has been already offer'd. And here I fhall first mention, the Glosses of some Annotators upon the Text I am difcourfing from. Mr. Pool in his Annotations upon it, after having cited Prov. xvi. 4. The Lord bath made all Things for himfelf, observes, "That it is impossible " it should be otherwife, for whereas every reasonable Agent, " both propounds to himfelf fome Reafon of his Actions, " and the best End he can imagine ; it is impossible, but " that God alfo in creating Man should propound to him-" felf fome End, and there being no better End than his " own Glory, he could propound no other to himfelf : The " Glory of God being the End which he propounded to " himfelf in creating Man, it must needs follow that that " must be the chief and greatest End which any Man can " propound to himfelf in his Actions. To confirm this Glofs

Glois, he in his Criticks cites Menochius, Estius, Grotius, Meed, and Rabi Jonab, in his Book upon Fear, who fays, "That we ought to belive in one God, and direct all our "Actions to his Name, and that he who does not fo, is not "like to receive a Reward."

Mr. Matthew Henery, upon the Words of our Text fays, "That in all we do, we fhould aim at the Glory of God, at pleafing and honouring him; this is the fundamental Principle of all practical Godlineis; the great End of all practical Religion.----And upon Prov. xvi. 4. he fays, "That God is the first Cause, and last End of all, all is of him and from him, and therefore all is to him and for him. He defigns to ferve his own Purpose by all his Creatures, and he will not fail of his Defign, the Wicked he is not glorify'd by, but will be glorifi'd upon.

Mr. Burkit upon the Words of our Text fayeth thus, "The Apoftle directs us, to refer all our Actions in general, both natural, civil and religious to the Glory of God; to make that our fepream Aim, our ultimate End in all we do, in all we defign, in all we defire. A Chriftian is to perform his natural Actions to fpiritual Purpofes, and whilf the is feeding his Body at his own Table, muft have an Eye at his ferving God, both with Soul and Body. But efpecially and above all in our religious Duties, we muft propound the Glory of God as our principal Aim, our chief Scope, our fupream End.

Doctor Bates in his Harmony of the Divine Attributes, p. 175,6. fays, "That Godline's contains three Things, "1ft. That our Obedience proceeds from love to God, as "its vital Principle; this must warm and animate the ex-"ternal Action, this alone makes Obedience as delightful "to us, fo pleasing to God. 2dly. That all our Conversa-"tion be regulated by his Will as the Rule. 3dly, That the

" the glory of God be the fupream End of all our Actions, " this Qualification muft adhere not only to neceffary Du-" ties, but to our natural and civil Actions, Our Light muft " fo fine before Men, that they may fee our good Works &c. " Matt. v. 16. 1 Cor. xi. 31. A general Defignation of this " is abfolutely neceffary. (1 Pet, iv. 11.) And the renewing " our Intention in matters of Moment. For he being the " fole Author of our Lives and Happinefs, we cannot with-" out extream Ingratitude and Difobedience neglect to glori-" fy him in our Bodies, and Spirits which are his. (1 Cor. " vi. 19. 20.) This religious Tendency of the Soul to God, " as the Supream Lord, and our utmoft End; fanctifies our " Actions, and gives an excellency to them, above what is in-" herent in their own Nature."

Dr. Manton in his fecond Volumn of Sermons p. 91 fayeth 1 " The Glory of God must be regarded in the first Place 1 Cor. 10.21. whether in eating or drinking &c. If in eating ٤2 and drinking fayeth he, and the use of our ordinary Com-" " forts, much more in the Supream and important Actions " of our lives, fuch as we would make a Bufinefs of, God " must be specially eyed therein ; God only is independent " and felf fufficient of himfelf and from himfelf; but felf " feeking is monitrous and unnatural in the Creature! They ¢¢ are of him and by him, and for him. Then they miltake Self, " thinking felf is more concern'd as a Body than a Soul. And

And prefer the Satisfactions of the carual Life, before the Happinefs of the Spiritual, and pag. 55. he adds, that the End ennobleth a Man, and ftill the Man is according to his End, low fpirits have low Defigns, Mat. vi. 22. The Light of the Body is the Eye, if therefore thine Eye be fingle, thy whole Body fhall be full of Light; but if thine Eye be evil, thy whole Body fhall be full of Darknefs.'

Dr. Thomas Taylor in his Catechetical Exercises, approved by twelve of the most eminent London Ministers pag. 140proposes this Question, viz. "What are we to learn that "God created us, for his Glory in a special Manner, a-"bove other Creatures? gives this Answer, to refer our felves "and all Things belonging to us, to his Glory as our chief "End; in Imitation of God, whose Glory is so dear to himself, "that he propoundeth it to himself, as the chief and prin-"cipal End, of all his Decrees and Actions; so dear it "fhould be to us, as to propound it in our first Intentions, "as the Scope of all the Actions and Occurrences of our "Lives."

Dr. Ridgely in his Body of Divinity, pag. 1 fpeaking upon the Aniwer, to the first Question, in the Westminster Catechism, viz. that to glorify God and enjoy him, is the chief and highest End, says. "If it be enquir'd with what "propriety these may be call'd chief and highest, the An-"swer is easy, viz. that the former is absolutely so, beyond which nothing more excellent, or defireable can be conceived, the latter is the highest and best in its kind; "which notwithstanding is referr'd, as a Means leading to "the other. And pag. 5 thus having confider'd, that it is our indispensable Duty, to make the Glory of God, our highest End in all our Actions, we denying him that Tribute of Praise, abuse our superior Faculties and live in "vain."

E

Efq; Leigh in his Body of Divinity, pag. 244 fays " we " should do all to him, and for him, even to shew forth " our Apprehenfion of his Name, doing whatfoever Good " we do, and leaving whatfoever Evil we leave that we may " declare our high Efteem of him, and make it appear, that we judge him moft wife good, excellent.--And what-foever is not thus done, with reference to the Name of " God, wants fo much of Goodnefs, as it does of this Re-" ference ! If we aim at only or chiefly, and be mov'd only " or chiefly, by Temporal Benefits and Respects of this "Kind; looking to our felves; our Deeds are hollow and feemingly good alone, not real; if we look to ourfelves a-lone in refpect of eternal Benefits; and not above our " felves to him and his Name, that also is but Hypo-" crify ; but this is Truth, to make our Ends and Motives " the fame with God's, and to have an Eye ftill above " and beyond our felves even to God's Name.

Mr. Watfon in his Body of Divinity, pag. 3. hath thefe Words " It is a glorifying God when we aim purely at his " Glory: It is one Thing to advance God's Glory, another " Thing to aim at it ; God must be the terminus ad quem, " the ultimate End of all our Actions, thus CHRIST ( John " viii. 50.) Its the Note of a Hypocrite, he hath a iquint Eye, " he looks more to his own Glory, than God's Glory; he " cites this faying of Cyprian, quem non gula Philautia fuper-" avit (i. e. Self-Love has vanquished even those that have " elcaped gluttenous Exceffes) let us take heed of this au-" tolatreia felf-worship, and aim purely at God's Glory." Mr. Dolittle in his Body of Divinity, approv'd by 20 of the moft famous of the London Minifters, pag. 2 Queft. 7 fays, "Am I not fuch as my chief End is? If the World be my "chief End, am I not a Worldly-Man? If Pleasure be my chief End, am not I a voluptuous Man? If Honours, am not I an ambitious Man? If felf-intereft, am not I a carnal felfifh Man? If God be my chief End, am not I a Godly Man? And pag. 3. where there is a Subordination of Ends, wherein that which is an End in refpect of fome Means, is it felf a Means to fome farther End. Do not I ftop in any End till I come to the chief and higheft End?

" not

is not my reading the Scripture, and hearng the Word preach'd, a Means to my knowing God's Will as my End? Is not Communion with him a Means to my Enjoyment of him in Heaven, as my End? Is not my Enjoyment of God in Heaven, a Means to my glorifying him in Heaven, as my laft and higheft End, beyond which I cannot go ?

Mr. Gurnal in his Christian Armour, pag. 363. 4. fays, "look thou propoundest right Ends, in thy defire of Re-"conciliation with God. ---It is lawful for the to look to thy " own Safety; God will give thee leave to look to thy felf, " this thou mayft do, and yet not neglect him; but neves " was any Peace true or fure, where only Self-Love made " it; whether it be with God, or between Man and Man, " thou feeft thou art undone, if thou keepeft thy old Side, " and therefore thou feekeft Peace with God, as the Kings " that ferved Hadarezer, 2 Sam. 10. 19. well this may be " all allow'd thee to come over to God, becaufe his is the " furer Side; never any made Peace with God, but this " Argument weighed much with them; but take heed this " be not all, thou aimest at; or the Chief thou aimest at, this " thou mayeft do and hate God as much as ever. Like those " who are faid to yield feignedly to David's victorious Arms, " becaufe no help for it. A Man taken in a Storm, may be " forc'd under the Pent-House of his greatest Enemy for "Shelter, without any change of his Heart, or better Tho'ts . . of E. 22

" of him, than before he was wont." And then proceeds to observe, " that we must first eye the Honour of God Pf. lxxix.9. " And adds, Certainly if God could not be more glorified, " in our Peace and Reconciliation, than in our Death and " Damnation, it were a wicked Thing to defire it."

Mr. Flavel in his firft Vol. pag. 676 fayeth, "There is "two Ends in Duties, one fupream and ultimate, viz. the glorifying of God, which muft and ought to take the firft "Place of all other Ends. Another fecondary and fubordinate, viz. The Good and Benefit of our felves, to invert "thefe, and place our own Good in the Room of God's "Glory, is finful and unjuftifiable, and he that aims at "himfelf only in Religion, is juftly cenfur'd as a mercena-"ry Servant."

Mr. Baxter in his Saints-Reft, pag. 18 9 fayeth, "He "that maketh not God, his chief Good and ultimate End, "is in his Heart a Pagan, and vile Idolater, and doth not "take the Lord for his God."

Mr. How in his whole Works, pag. 154. 5. fays, "That "to pray to him, (meaning God) that he would do this or "that, finally and ultimately for any thing elfe, than his "own Name, is humbly to fupplicate him, that he would "refign the Godhead, and quit his Throne to this or that "Creature. 2. —That primitive Nature, was no doubt "pointed upon God, as the laft End. Otherwife a Crea-"ture had been made with an Averfion to him, and in the 'hig heft pitch of Enmity and Rebellion; fince there can "be no higher Controverfy than about the laft End. And "adds, that the Defign of renewing Grace, is to reftore us to our original State, and fix us in that abfolute Subordination to God which was original and natural to us; "then be obferves, the Controverfy is taken up, which was "about no lower Thing than the Deity; who fhould be "God

"God he or we? Whether we should live and be for our " felves, or him ?--- The only proper genuine Breath of the " New-Creature, --- is to thee O Lord be all Things, mayeft " thou ever be All in All, let the Creation, and all Things be " Nothing, otherwife than in thee and for thee." Mr. Willard in his Body of Divinty, pag. 6. 7. fayeth, " That Man can have no other laft End, but God and his "Glory, for then it must be either the Creature or himself, a "third cannot be thought of; but it can be neither of "these, as will appear.--- I. Because the Creature is infe-"rior to him, a Man's End is to be look'd for, above him-" felf, and not beneath him; but Man is fuperior to thefe. " 2. Becaufe that Man is the Creatures next End, that there-" fore cannot be his last End, that that should be made " for Man's Service, and yet that Man fhould be to ferve " that, implyeth a Contradiction. 3. Becaule the Creatures " cannot fatisfy him, Man's laft End and objective Happi-" nefs is the fame, (Eclef. i. 8.) 2. Neither can he be his " own laft End : For, 1. The End must be fomething " better than the Means, that ferve to it. 2. There is a " better being, than Man, and therefore he cannot be his " own chief End: The laft End, and chief Good, are one " and the fame; there is therefore no refting, until we come there. 3. A Man cannot be his own Happinefs, " and therefore not his own chief End. An End that can-" not happify him, is not worthy of that Name! Again " he aflerts, that Man's next chief End, to the glorifying " of God is to enjoy him forever !'

Mr. Vincent also in his Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism, approv'd of by 40 Divines, is also of the same Sentiment with the rest I have mentioned; as appears from the Reasons he gives, why Men should chiefly design the glorifying of God in all their Actions; which are these, viz. " because

" becaufe God has made them, preferves them, has re-" deem'd them, and given his Word and Spirit to direct " and affift, and promifed his Kingdom to encourage them, " to glorify him." See pag, 4. From the aforefaid Words it appears that Mr. Vincent look'd upon the Glory of God, to be the End and Happinefs but as a Motive, exciting to feek after it. I now proceed to the

5. General Head, which was to answer Objections. Objections. Objections. Objections. Objections which God promifes on his Part in his covenant Dealings, with Man is Man's chief Good, or which is the fame, Man's chief End; but the Thing God promifes is Salvation, ergo. Had God promis'd any Thing lefs, it would not be call'd the exceeding Riches of his Grace, and that Salvation is promifed by God in his Covenant Dealings with Man; is evident from Mark xvi. 16. He that believeth, shall be faved.

Anf. If that which God only or chiefly promited, in the New-Covenant was Salvation, confider'd ftrictly and fubjectively, or feparated from his Glory, then the Confequence would avail, otherwife not, but God has no where promifed; a Salvation feparated from his Glory, as appears from what has been before obferved, to which I will add one Place of Scripture, Pf. 1. 15. Call upon me in the Day of Trouble; I will deliver thee, and thou fhalt glorify me.

Object. 2. It is our first and most deciply Fundamental Duty, to take the Lord for our God; which most effentially includes our taking him, (the Enjoyment of him, and not our glorifying him, or his Glory) for our supream Good; which is acknowleag'd by all to be our chief End.

Anf. The Notion of enjoying God, feparate from glorifying him, or his Glory; is an antiferiptural ridiculous Whim! If it be a fundamental Duty, to take the Lord for our God, then it must be a fundamental Error (in practical Religion) to take our felves for our God; by prefering what refpects refpects us, to his Honour, viz. our enjoying him, to his Glory: For here God is not regarded for himfelf, but only as he refpects us, it is true the Word GOD is mentioned, in enjoying him, but that is only a Flam, a Blind: For its ftill in Subordination to the fordid god-Self!

Does not that Faith which is included, in taking the Lord for our God, draw us out of ourfelves to CHRIST, and unite us to his Perfon, before it gives us Communion in his Benefits? (Gal. ii. 20. Phil. iii. 8, 9.) And does it not excite us to admire the Former more than the Latter? (Cant. v. 10.) Surely to those that believe, CHRIST is precious! And is it not the Sign of an Harlot, to do the contrary, viz. to regard in Marriage, the Portion more than the Perfon?

Object. 3. Is praifing God for Bleffings, a greater Good than the Bleffings for which they praife him? If fo, the Saints have a hard Bargain, in giving a greater Good for a lefs, if not, than the Enjoyment of God is a greater Good, than praifing of him, and fo is our chief Good and laft End! Anf. I will be bold to affert, that the Saints praifing God,

Anf. I will be bold to affert, that the Saints praifing God, is (terminatively) more noble, than the Benefits they offer Praifes for, confidered ftrictly; becaufe of its near Relation to the beft of Beings; neither is the Confequence reafonable, that thus the Saints would have a hard Bargain, in giving a greater Good for a lefs. The Force of this Confequence, is built upon a fuppos'd Analogy, between civil Bargains among Men and the Saints praifing God for Benefits they receive from him, in the following Particulars. 1. In civil Bargains, the Commodity a Perfon gives in exchange, for Good he deferves, he no ways owes before to the Perfon he deals with. 2. The Good he gives is in his own Power, it is his proper Right by Inheritance or Purchafe, which he can difpofe of as he fees beft, to advance his worldly Intereft. 3. The Good exchang'd, is profitable profitable to the Receiver. 4. In this kind of Truck, when there is not fome Proportion in the Value of the Things exchang'd, it's faid to be a hard Bargain. If the Cafe was fo in God's Dealings with his People, there would be fome Reafon for the aforefaid Confequence, otherwife none at all ! Are not Mens Praifes a Debt they owe to God upon many Accounts, a Debt which they cannot pay, 'til Power be given them of God, and that brought into exercife by his gracious Operations, a Power which they have no hereditary Right to, nor are they able to purchafe it by their Doings; a Debt which when paid, profits not the Receiver, for our Goodnefs extends not to God. Tho' Praife be the Creatures Act, yet it is God who works all our Works in us !. And thus the Sophifm evanifhes.

Obj. 4.. The End and Scope of our Faith, is our chief End, for Faith is the greatest Duty, we once to God, and the Foundation of all the Rest, yea it is the Gift of God, and the greatest Gift we can receive in this World; it hence follows, that the End of the greatest Gift, and the greatest Duty, is Man's chief End; but the End of Faith is Salvation 1 Pet.. i. 19. Erg.

Anf. That which is the final or fupream Scope of Faithis our chief End, no doubt, but what is only its intermediate or fubordinate Scope, is not; neither does the Place. of Scripture aduc'd prove any more!

Obj. 5. Man's greatest Motive to Duty, is his chief End, but his greatest Motive to Duty is his Salvation; Erg. the Astions of a rationalCreature, mult have a Mative or incitement, for whoever asts without a Motive, asts without Reason. It is the diffinguisting Character of a rational Creature, to propose to himself an End, and then to pursue that End in proper Methods; hence Logicians tell us, the End is suff in the Intention, and has the Execution; which makes it evident, that the the Motive and the End are fynonimous, confequently the greateft or chief Motive, is the chief End. Now that Man's greatcft Motive to Duty is his Salvation, appears from the following Places of Scripture; are we commanded to be faithful to Death, what is the Motive? Why thou shalt receive a Crown of Life, Rev. ii. 10. are we commanded to walk uprightly, and what is the Motive? Why the Lord will give Grace and Glory; and lastly are we commanded to Love the Lord our God, with all our Heart and Soul, Sc. And what is the Motive? Why this do, and thou shalt live, Luke x. 28.

Anf. The Places of Scripture brought to confirm the aforefaid Objection, do only prove, that the Expectation of obtaining Happinels in the Way of Duty, is a great Encouragement to the Performance of it; and that it is fo propos'd by God himfelf in his Word, but what is this to purpofe? The Thing to be prov'd is, that Salvation ftrictly and fubjectively confidered, is the greateft Motive to Duty: of this there is not a Word in the preceeding Proofs. The contrary thereto appears in the following Scriptures. (Mat. v. 16. John xv. 8.) And let me farther add, that the aforefaid logical Maxim, ferves to prove the Glory of God, to be the chief End, thus, if that which is laft in Execution, is or ought to be the first in Intention, then by confequence God's Glory ought to be first intended by us, because it is laft in Execution, (Ephef. i. 6.)

Obj. 6. That which the Saints, of both the Old and New-Testament made their great Motive to do and suffer for God, we ought to make our great Motive, &c. And that this is as aforefaid, our chief End, but the Saints, &c. made their Salvation their great Motive, &c. Erg. Its hard if we cannot find one Saint in the Old or New-Testament that will direct us, what we ought to make our chief End, and they all made their Salvation their chief Motive; For this Moles refused E to be called the Son of Pharach's Daughter, and chose to fuffer Afflictions with the People of God, it is applicable to all these Heroes, mentioned in the xi. of the Hebrews, as appears by the first Verse of the Chapter. Now Faith is the Substance of Things hoped for; what was it that animated Paul, to press towards the Mark, through all the Difficulties he met with? why the Prize of the high calling in CHRIST JEsus, Phil. iii. 14. What was the Motive, that enabled the Hebrews to take joyfully the spoiling of their Goods? why because they knew they had in Heaven a better and an enduring Substance, Heb. x. 3, 4. What enabled the Apostles to bear with Patience, the Afflictions they sufferd but this? that they work'd out for them, a far more exceeding, and eternal weight of Glory, 2 Cor. 4. 17. Ans. The Scriptures adduc'd in the Objection, do not

Anf. The Scriptures adduc'd in the Objection, do not prove the labouring Point, namely, that Salvation confidered flrictly, was the higheft Motive of those good Men mentioned, and therefore the Argument does not conclude. The Objectors Opinion concerning all God's People, is much what, with Satans concerning Job, as I humbly conceive; which appears thus, after God himself had given an honourable Character of Job, namely, that he was a fincere Man, one that feared God and eschewed Evil, which imply an unfeigned Love to God's Majefty, and transcendent Regard to his Glory. But Satan in Opposition to the just Encomium, that God himself had given of Job, fuggefts, that Job was not such an upright Man, that his religious Service did not spring principally from Love to God, or Regard to his Glory; but was directed to, by, and felfish Ends; and therefore that he was but a Mercenary and a Hypocrite. Does be fear God for Nought, faid Satan, touch all that be hath, & be will curfe thee to thy Pace. The Devil here infinuates, that Job had no noble internal Principles of Love and Holines, no fupream fupream and endear'd Regard to the Divine Honour, but that he was mov'd chiefly or only, by outward felfish Refpects; and that if these were taken away, he would ouit his Religion entirely, and curfe his Maker; this is in Substance the fame with the Representation given by our Objector, of all the Saints of the Old and New Testament, in the Objection which I am now confidering; all the Differences between the Objector's and Satan's Opinion, are thefe, The Objector he holds, that the Saints eyed chiefly in all their Actions, the Happiness of the higher Part of felf, the Soul; but Satan the Happiness of the lower Part of felf, the Body, the Objectors Opinion, concerns the whole Army of the Saints in all Ages, which is very uncharitable, but Satan's only a particular Perfon, namely, Job. I know not that we have any Account in Scripture, that Satan has been fo bold as to impeach all the Saints at once, with the aforefaid Charge! Again the Objector offers his Opinion as a Commendation of the Saints, which is not to fenfible as could have been wish'd; but Satan as an Accusation against Job ! Once more the Objector offers his Opinion, with a deal of Confidence, and Airs of Affurance; but Satan begins modeftly, and holds it till just the Close of his Speech; but the Objectors and Satans Opinion are the very fame in this substantial Point, namely, in excluding that transcendent Love to God for himfelf, and fupream Regard to his Glory, which are effential to true Godlinefs, and conftituting felfish Confiderations in the Room thereof. It is true the Objector has the Advantage of Satan in this particular, namely, in believing that the Saints had a chief Regard, to the Interests of the higher Part of felf the Scul, whereas Satan was of Opinion, that Job eyed chiefly the Interest of the lower Part of Self the Body. But again it must be own'd, that Satan had the Advantage of the Objector, in other Par-F 2 ticulars.

ticulars, viz. I In that he offer'd his Opinion as an Ac-cufation and fo the God of infinite Wifdom took it. 2. In that he did not accufe the whole Body of the Saints, by the Lump, but a particular Perfon. 3. That he manag'd his Argument with Modesty, for the most Part, for he propos'd and infifted on his Allegation, (mostly) by way of Query does Job, faid he, fear God for nought ? Thus it is evident that the Objector and Satan harmonize in Judgment substantially, and differ only in the Cafe aforefaid, in fome Circumstances; which if compar'd and weigh'd it would be hard to determine, which had the better of it. But leaving the Decifion of this to Perfons of greater Capacities, I proceed to ob-ferve, that the Devils Accufation being offer'd, and the great God himfelf having another Opinion of Job's Integrity, puts the Matter to Iffue, and lets Satan try him with all his Darts; (only to fpare his Life) the Devil being full of Rage, and Defire to make his Accusation good, left he should be posted for aLyar or falseAccuser, as indeed he well deferv'd; environ'd him with all his Terrors, and fhot the most envenom'd Darts at him that he had in all his Hellifh Quiver. he foon difrob'd him of all his Ornaments, and cruelly bereav'd him of his maffy Wealth, dear Relations, Health and Eafe, in a fudden and tremenduous Manner! And left him nothing but a foolding Wife, who was almost as great a Tormentor as himfelf, and fain would allure him to make the Enemy's Impeachment good, by curfing kis God, whofe Language Sr. Richard Blackmore fets in just and flaming Colours, in the following Lines.

Doft thou not fee that thy Devotion's vain? What have thy Prayers procur'd but Woe and Pain! Haft thou not yet thine Interest understood? Perversely righteous, and absurdly good! These

These painful Sores, and all thy Losses show, How Heaven regards the foolish Saint below! Incorrigibly pious can't thy God, Reform thy stupid Vertue with his Rod!

But even when poor Job, was under a horrible Com-plication of all manner of Mifery, that the fubtilty and Malice of his formidable Enemy, could invent and inflict upon his Mind and Body; while in the mean Time, the God he loved withdrew his beamy Smiles, and on the contrary shot Arrows dipt in burning Vengeance, into his perplexed Soul, and compass'd him with the most affrighting Terrors! I fay while Heaven it felf frown'd, and Earth and Hell confpir'd to diffrefs and shake that gallant noble Soul, yet he remain'd, like a Rock impregnable amidst all the boifterous Billows, with which he was environ'd round: For notwithstanding fome humane Weakneffes, that drop't from his troubled Soul, in the Height of his Anguish ; yet he would never speak dishonourably of his God, or reproachfully of his Religion ! He kept firm to the divine Majefty, in the midit of the terrible Tempest! And thus the Objec-tor and Satan (respecting the Opinion aforesaid) are folidly confuted by the Book of Job. The Cafe now in controverfy, has been fairly try'd and God himfelf the Judge of Heaven and Earth, has brought in the Verdict in Job's Favour, Job. i. 21. in all this Job finned not, nor charged God fool-liftly, and Chapt. xlii. 7. Ye have not fpoken of me the Thing that is Right as my Servant Job hath ! Obj. 7. All the Works of God, were not made for one and

Obj. 7. All the Works of God, were not made for one and the fame End: For if they were, there had been Need of but one fort of Beings only; if the Wicked are made for the Day of Evil, ought that to be always in their Eye? ought all their Actions to tend to that, as their chief Good and last End? Ought Ought that to fire their Affections, raife their Defires, and actuate their Wills? Secret Things belong to God, Things reveal'd to us! If there be a Covenant between God and Man, the Principal aim of both cannot be the fame! In all Covenants there are two contracting Parties at leaft, a Mediator is not a Mediator of one, there is also the Thing covenanted for, and the Confideration, or what each party expects of the other, what God expects from us, is that we glorify him, and what he promifes, is that he will be our God, or fupream Good, which certainly can be nothing less than the Enjoyment of him ! Anl. The Different forts of Creatures, ferve indeed different fubordinate or lower Ends, but what then; can't they in the mean Time ferve one and the fame higheft End? Do not the brute Creation, while they ferve the Good of Mankind, at the fame Time objectively declare the Glory of God's Wifdom, Power and Goodneis in their Formation, Order and Ufefulnefs? The End which the Almighty had in View in the Formation of all, viz. His Glory, is answered by all, tho' in a different Manner : Rational Creatures do or ought to glorify God actively; and for this they had a Capacity given them and a command laid upon them, and if they do it not astively, as it is their Duty, they shall paffively; as the Pfalmift justly observes, The very Heavens declare the Glory of God, and the Earth factorith his Handy Works; the inanimate Creation offer Occafion to thinking Beings to praife God : Now tho' the Glory of God be differently exprets'd according to their feveral Ranks of Existence, yet it is the fame principal Defign that God hath in all, namely his declarative Glory ; and it is the fame thing that is manifested by all, tho' in a different Manner, viz. The Honour of the divine Attributes, and indeed herein the unfearchable Riches, and and magnificence of divine Wifdom and Power are illuftrioufly difplay'd, in conducting the various Orders of Beings within the vaft Circle of the fpacious Universe to one fupream uniform End, worthy of his Councils!

Now if Gods declarative Glory be his highest End, in the Creation of all, as both Scripture and Reafon demonstate, then it must be the Creatures last End too, otherwife thefe Abfurdities will inevitably follow, viz. 1ft. That God will miss his End, which would destroy the divine Felicity, and fo is Blafphemous! And 2d. It wou'd be the Creatures Duty to contradict their Creator, which is monftrous Blafphemy likewife ! Conformity to our Creator is equally our Honour and Duty! It is most evident, that God requires a great Part of our Submiffion to his Sovereignity, and Obedience to his Law in this very Thing, that we harmonioufly concur with himfelf, in carrying on the fame great defign with him, of his GLORY, in that Way which beft fuits the order of our Being : And indeed when we do otherwife, we walk contrary to God, and may expect therefore, that, to continuing, he will walk contrary to us. Had Man ftill continued in his original Integrity, he had ftill made it his highest defign to Glorify and Honour the Author of his Being! It is true we are now to confider Man in his fallen State, wherein he is exposed to deferved Punishment for his Tranfgreffion, and therefore has just Reafon to be anxioufly concern'd about his efcaping the Wrath to come ; but the Transgreffion of the Creature, does not cannot difolve his Creators claim of right to his Love and Homage. And when a Sinner is truly fanctified, he is again reftor'd to much of that primitive rectitude which was loft by Sin, (Ephef. iv. 24) and confequently makes that again his higheft aim and defign, to which he was engag'd and inclin'd by the Law of his Creation.

Neither is it any Part of God's fecret Council, that he hath made all Things for kis Glory; this Truth is as plainly reveal'd as any in the Scriptures: Neither is it any part of God's fecret Council, that it is our indifpenfable Duty to do all to the Glory of God : To aim and defign chiefly that God in all Things may be glorify'd, confider the following Places of Scripture, Ifa. xliii. 7. Ibave created him for my Glory. Pfal. 1. 15. Call upon me in the Day of Trouble, I will deliver thee and theu fkalt glorify me. God's Secret Council concerns fubordininate Ends or the Means which compafs the aforefaid great Ends, namely, God's declaritive Glory, either actively or paffively by the whole Creation.

The Question in the Objection is Sophistical, viz. If the Wicked are made for the Day of Evil, ought that to be allways in their Eyes, &c.

Answer, No ! Here it is infinuated, that those who hold God's Glory to be the chief End of Man imagine, or maintain, that what is God's fubordinate End, fhould be Man's principal End, which is falfe and unreatonable; they only hold that what God has made his chief End, should be ours; and we should purfue this, in that Way which is accommodated to our reafonable Nature, and to which we are under an Obligation by precept. The Damnation of any Creature, was never God's chief End in making it ; to imagine fo, is to reflect upon the Wifdom and Goodnefs of the divine Nature, namely, in aiming at fomething below himfelf, as his higheft End, and in delighting in the Mifery of his Creatures as fuch! Befides the method by which we ought to purfue or profecute our chief End, (God's Glory) is preferibed to us, by the divine Precept, and that is by Faith and Obedience, thereby feeking our own Happinefs, and that, principally, becaufe God will be thereby more Glorify'd, than in our Damnation !

But it is farther added in the Objection, That if there be a Covenant between God and Man, the principal aim of both cannot be the fame.

Anfwer, The contrary is evident. God's aim in the Covenant of his Grace, is both his own Glory, and his Peoples Happinefs. (Epbef. 1. 17.) And the aim of God's People is the very fame, but the Glory of God is the principal Scope of both: The feeming Strength of the aforefaid Argument, flows from a falfe Foundation, viz. A ftrict refembling of the Covenant of Grace with human Covenants, which gives Room to fufpect those that form or use it, to be tainted with Arminian Errors.

Obj. 8. Moles and Paul ccu'd not aim chiefly at the Glory of God, or glorifying of him in those Expressions, of being blotted out of the Book that God had written, and of desiring to be accuried from Christ, &c. because by their suffering this, they could not glorify God, neither could the Almighty glorify himself in punishing the Innocent, and sparing the guilty; the truth is, the Words are only hyperbolical Expressions of their abundant Love to their Brethren, and Kinsmen according to the Flesh.

Anfiver, The Inftance as to Moles, mention'd Ex. 32. 12, is plainly this, That fuch was his Regard to the Glory of God, that he would choose Death rather than the Heathen Nations should infult the Almighty, and behave themselves proudly against him, upon the Occasion of his destroying the People in the Wilderness; which he forefaw they would be apt to do, and therefore plead that Israel might be spared, (See Num. xiv. 13 to the 17) much after the same manner God himfelf expresses his own Regard to his Glory. (Deut. xxxii. 26, 27.) As to the Instance of Paul, I shall crave leave to cite the Words of Mr. Matthew Henery upon it; which are these, "I could wish, he doth not fay I do wish, for it was G

no proper means appointed for fuch an End; but if it were, " I could with that I my felf were accurfed from Christ, for " my Brethren; a very high pang of Zeal and Affection for " his Countrymen, he would be willing to undergo the grea-" teft mifery to do them good : Love uses to be thus bold " and venterous, and felf denying, because the Glory of "God's Grace in the Salvation of many, is to be prefer'd " before the Wellfare and Happiness of a fingle Person. " Paul, if they were put in Competition, would be content " to forego all his own Happiness to purchase theirs." thus far he. Whither we understand by the Word accurfed, Excommunication, or temporal Death, with Chrifoflome and Pool, or the lofs of eternal Happinefs, with Eflius, Toletus, Ludovicus dediu, Calvin, Menochius; yet it fhews a greatLove; what a flefhly Love? No, the Chapter will inform us, that it was Love to their Souls, and a defire after their Happinefs, and confequently he had an Eye to God's Glory, which is thereby manifested! The Reason offer'd to confirm the Objection, viz. That by fuffering those Things God could not be Glorify'd, &c. is answered by confidering, that the defires of those holy Men were not absolute and peremtory, but Hypothetical or Conditional, viz, that rather than God's Glor, thould be eclips'd, they were willing to endure those Things, if they were appointed Means to obtain fuch an End. To suppose that their Love was wholly Carnal, is to confront the Context of the Places whence the aforefaid Infunces are borrow'd, and pafs an uncharitable Cenfure upon. those Worthy's, as tho' they were Perlons of the most fordid. Disposition and Character !

Objection 9. Afaph afted chiefly from felfifs Principles, in Religion, as of pears from Pfal Issuii. 12. 13. 14. Behold there are the ungoldly who profer in the World. Verily I have cleanfed my Heart in vain, and washed my Hands in Innocency Innocency, for all the Day long have I been plaug'd and chaftned every morning.

Anfwer, Alaph only tells us of a past Temptation, what a pofing Difficulty it had been to him, to confider how that the Godly had generally the hardeft Lot, as to worldly Comforts: This (arcanum or) fecret of divine Providence, had fo exercis'd him, that he, thro' the Corruptions of his Nature and Temptations of the Devil, was like to have entertain'd hard and unbecoming Tho'ts of Religion; nay it appears that he had been guilty of this in fome degree, for his Feet were almost gone ! But in his more composed frame, he reflected upon the corrupt influences of those Temptations with abhorrence ! He calls himfelf a Fool and a Beast on that Account (as well he might) ver. 22. So foolifb was I and ignorant, I was as a Bealt before thee. In a time of violent Temptation, he was drove to be pretty much of the felfish Opinion I am opposing, viz. to think it was a poor Thing only to ferve and glorify God, except it was attended with other Advantages; but afterwards when he grew more calm, and got out of the violence of Temptation, he calls himfelf a Fool, an Ignoramus, and a Beaft ( or as the Word is interpreted a great Bea/t) for it; and acknowledges, that fuch Speeches, would be an Offence against the Generation of God's Children. See ver. 15.

Object. 10. It was Paul's Sentiment, that the chief if not the only Motive to Obedience, was the hope of eternal Life, for if the Dead arife not to receive their Reward, let us eat and drink, walk in the Way of our own Heart, and in the Sight of our own Eyes, and give a loofe to all our Defires ! If in this Life only we have hope, we are of all Men moft miferable; what advantageth it me, that I have fought with Beafts at Ephefus, if the Dead arife not.

Anfwer

Anfwer, The aforefaid Paffage of the Apoftle Paul's Writings (1 Cor. xv.) are foreign to the labouring Argument; for what he fays in them, is upon the Supposition of no future State at all after this Life; and upon the Supposition of the confequent Falfehood of the Doctrines of the Gospel, (ver. 14. 15. & feq.) Upon this Hypothesis he observes, that the Christians of that age were indeed the most miserable of Mankind, to expose themselves to such heavy Perfecution for nothing, for an imposture. Whereas in this Argument, we consider a future State as most certain and the Doctrines of the Gospel as most true and worthy of all Acceptation; and that there is an infeparable connection between believing Obedience in this Life, and compleat Happines in the Life to come: And fo the Question is, which ought to be the chief and last End of our Obedience, the Glory of God, or the obtaining our own Happines's meerly confider'd as such, without any respect to the Glory of God, or eternal glorifying of him in Heaven?

Now if the aforefaid Expressions of the Apostle Paul, be fupposed to favour the latter of these Opinions, they must be taken in the following Sense, viz. That were his Obedience to God nothing concern'd, with his future Happiness; but that he could be fav'd without Holiness, as well as with it, that then he would be at no pains, or care to ferve God at all; but on the contrary give a loose to all his vitious Inclinations.

But by this Senfe of the Words, theObjector makes (in his Opinion) the Apoftle Paul, to be a Hypocrite, and an Epicure; for hereby it's neceffarily fuppos'd, that he had no Supernatural Principles of Action, fuch as divine Life, Love, Holinefs; but that on the contrary he had a fuperior Inclination to live after the Flefh, but was reftrain'd from acting

according thereto, meerly by the external Confideration of Advantages, to be had by it in the next State !

Befides the bleffed Apoftle is condemned, as an Epicure by the Objector; what has been already faid gives Weight to this, to which I may add, that of afcribing the *Epicures*proverb to him as his fix'd Judgment, only that he was diverted from acting accordingly by felfifh Confiderations. The Proverb that was veryFamiliar among the Epicurians, was this.

" Lude, bibas, comedas, post mortem nulla voluptas. i. e. play, " eat, drink, for after Death there is no Pleasure," and that of Martial.

" Vita nimis sera est, crastina vive Hodie.

Life to-morrow is too late, live to day.

Now the Apostle Paul used the aforefaid Epicurian Proverb, namely, let us eat and drink, &c. with a defign to confute it, as appears from the 33 and 34 verfes of the Chapter. Poffibly the Force of his Reafonings may be carried thus far, viz. that supposing the Dead rife not, the Epicurian Notion would be then more tolerable : But to fuppose that he spoke absolutely here, is, in other Words, to say, that he believed there was no intrinfick Excellency in Hclineis, or Comforts attending the fincere Practice of it in this Life, but that it was only eligible, becaufe of the Advantages enking upon it, in a future State. And is not this the Sentiment of a felfish fordid Soul ? But the Apostle appears to be a Perfon of a very different Character by his Writings. See Rom. 6. 2. How fhall we (i.e. how can we) who are dead to Sin, live any longer therein? Those that are Regenerated have an inward fix'd Principle, termed in Scripture, the Seed of God, which creates a habitual Averfion a-gainst Sin, and propensity to Holiness!

Obj, 11. Self Love is the Foundation of all the Love, we owe or pay to God, what God is in himself we know not : The only only thing to determine our defire, love, and fear of God, is his Attributes, as manifefted to us in Creation, Protection and Redemption; its nothing to the Purpofe to tell how lovely and excellent God is in himfelt, abfolutely confidered; for tho' we confider him as cloth'd with all poffible Perfections, without having to do with us, it will only raife our Admiration; if we confider him as able and willing to make us happy, this will raife Defire; if we confider him as just and powerful, and are under Apprehensions that he will punish us, this raifes Fear; if realy punished by him, without hopes of release, this raifes Averssion, &c. if we confider him as good and merciful, and we are realy possible of it, this raifes Love, 1 Joh. iv. 19. We love him because he first loved us.

Answer, The falsehood of the Position, contain'd in the above Objection, will appear by the following Confiderations, viz. 1st, Then we owe no love to God because of his effential Excellency, which is abfurd; for what is infinitely amiable is a proper Object of Love, and becaufe it deferves it, it therefore demands in Reafon and Justice our supream Affection. 2dly, The aforelaid Pofition, deftroys entirely the neceffity of fupernatural Principles of Action, infus'd by Regeneration; for if we must love only for Benefits receiv'd, and not for the fake of the Giver confidered abstractly, than there is no need of any thing but Nature, to excite to this. The Pagans who had nothing but natures Light to direct them, taught and practified this. Lycurgus the Lacedemenian Law-giver, would make no law against Ingratitude, because as he obierv'd, It was a prodigious Impiety, not to repay a Benefit : And Scnece, in his Book de Beneficiis, fays, Not to return one good Office for another, is inkuman; but to return evil for Good, is diabolical, p. 104. and in p. 54. 5. 6. he fays, all benefits must be gratuitious, a Merchant, fays he, fells me Corn, that keeps me and my Family from flarving, but he fold fold it for his Interest, as well as I bought it for mine, and so I owe him nothing for it.---This, says be, is more properly the driving of a Trade, then the cultivating of a generous Commerce; thus far he. Now tho' I believe that we may eye our own Happiness, in our religious Service, yet when we do this above the divine Glory, it comes under Seneca's lash, and is folidly confuted by him in the preceeding Lines.

3dly. The aforefaid Pofition, juftifies the Devils, and damned's hating God, for they are punifhed by God, without Hopes of releafe, and therefore may have an Averfion to him, according to the preceeding Objection. And farther if we are to love him only becaufe of the Love he expresses to us, then when he punishes us, tho' most justly for our Offences, and therewith deprives us of all hopes of Mercy, we may hate him Law-fully, (for there is no Medium between love and hatred) that is, we may hate infinite Holines, Justice and Excellency, which is abfurd !

4. If we are bound to love God only, becaufe of the Benefits we receive or hope for from him, then we are not bound to love him at all; for the Refpect we offer to him is not for himfelf, but for the Benefits we receive, and thus true Love to God, which is the Fulfilment of the Law, and Scope of the Gofpel, is deftroy'd entirely by this Notion. For according to it, our Love ought to be wholly center'd upon the Benefits we receive for our own fake, and fo upon ourfelves : Even Seneca, the Pagan Stoick, could fay, this for that, is rather a truck than a Benefit.

5. The aforefaid Polition deftroy's the Creators Right to the Creatures Love and Obedience, when he does not perceive them to be profitable to himfelf and therefore if a Perfon in defpair, fhould hate God, even in this Life, he is juftified by the aforefaid Polition in fo doing. But,

6. The

Objections anfavered.

6. The aforefaid Objection is inconfiftent with itfelf, for while it allows, that a view of the divine Perfections, without any Relation to our Benefit, may caufe Admiration, this Oppofes the other Part of it, for what is Admiration, but a high degree of Effeem, and is not this the Foundation of all rational Love ?

7. The aforefaid Position contradicts the Experience of true Believers, who even in the dark Hours of Deflertion, when they think they are forfaken of and hated by God, yet thro' that inward Principle of divine Life which is infus'd into them by Conversion; feel workings of Defire in them after God, and Love to him: Jonab was an Instance of this, Jon. 2. 4. Then I faid, I am cast off out of thy Sight, yet will I look again towards thy boly Temple. When Afapb fear'd that God had forgotten him, and that hisMercy was clean gone from him, yet he wou'd acknowledge his infirmity, remember God, meditate upon his Works, and talk of his wondrous Doings; and Job in his Diftrefs profefs'd, that the' God should flay bim, yet he would trust in bim.

8. The aforefaid Pofition deftroys the Reafonablenefs of loveing our Enemies of bleffing them that curfe us and doing good to those that defpitefully use us! For if Self-Love, be the Foundation of all the Love we owe or pay to God, then it follows unavoidably that it is more fo of all the Love we owe or pay to Man, than the hating those that hate us, and curfing those that curfe us, &cc. is in itself Reafonable; for there is no felfish Motive if we consider those Things fimply to excite us to do otherwife. But does not this Notion expressly contradict the Gospel of CHRIST as well as the true Interefts of Society, and justify the dreadful Pagan Principle of bating cur Enemies!

And as for the Text cited in the Objection, it will not bear the weight that is laid upon it, for it fays not, that the Saints Saints of old, lov'd God either only or chiefly, for his love to them, and yet this is the thing in Queftion; the Tendency of the aforefaid Objection is to fap the Foundations of the whole Gofpel, and to put natural Religion or Deifm in the Room of it.

Obj. 12. The Difference between Hypocrify and Sincerity may be known according to the Scheme of making Man's Jubjective Happiness his last End thus. 1. From their Works; Hypocrites do all to be seen of Men, and consequently have nothing, but outward Performances, but the sincere Christian, Glorifies God in Thought as well as in Word and Action.

Anf. This Proposition is indefinite and fo equivalent to a univerfal, it is as much as to fay, every Hypocrite does as aforefaid. And this is not true in fact; we have no Reaton to believe that Paul beforeConversion did all to be seen of Men ! Besides if the Proposition were true, it would then follow by the Law of contraries, that every one that had, or hath good Thoughts and Resolutions, which are Acts of the Mind and Will, or any Defires after his own Salvation, must be a fincere Christian : By this rule, Abimeleck the Pagan, Balam the Wizard, Saul the Tyrant, Simon the Sorceror, and Judas the Traytor are dub'd for good Men ! But a 2. Sign of Sincerity that is offer'd is this, "The Hypocrite doth it to obtain a corruptible Crown, " but the Sincere an incorruptible."

Anf. Both the aforefaid Signs are the fame, for both refpect the End of Action, & both refpect a temporal Reward; tho' there be tome Difference in Specie, yet the Genus or Kind is the fame : What view to Honour or worldly Intereft, had the foolifh Virgins or those graceless Jews, whom the Apostle Paul speaks of (Rom. x.) who had a Zeal, but not according to Knolwedge ? But pray observe and fee if the Objector, does not prove himself to be a Hy-H pocrite by his own Signs! Thus; If he be a Hypocrite, who makes the Intereft of the lower part of Self, the Body, in this World his chief End; will it not follow, that i.e. is alfo a Hypocrite, who makes the Interefts of the higher Part of felf, viz. the Soul, (without regard to God's Glory) in the nextWorld his chief End? Are they not both built on the fame Foundation of immoderate Self-Love? all theDifference between them is this, that the first refpects the lower Part of Self, and fo is more grofs; and the Latter the higher Part of Self, and fo is more fubtil and plaufible; but is there any more Love to God for himfelf, in the one than in the other?

But I proceed to the Improvement of this Subject. And

I. Methinks what has been faid, ferves to inform us of the Difficulty of Religion; and of the great Danger we are in of being deceiv'd, as to our State and Condition towards God. Surely firait is the Gate, and nerrow is the Way, that leads to Life and few there be that find it, there is a Generation that are pure in their own Eyes and yet are not cleanfed from their Filthinefs!

2. From what has been faid we may learn, the abfolute Neceffity of the New Birth, in order to ferve God acceptably here, and enjoy him hereafter ! For without a Principle above nature, we cannot aim at Gol above our felves. A Fountain may fend out Water upon a Level with it felf, but not above the Level; and thus all that is done by us, while in a State of Nature, being done chiefly upon our own Account; it is but (in fome Senfe) a ferving of ourfelves, and therefore cannot be acceptable to God; and hence the Apoftle afferts that he that is in the Flefle cannot pleafe God. The Church of England in their Articles of Faith, juftly fay, "That Works done before the Grace of CHRIST, are not pleafing to God, but have in them the Nature of Sin." However the' they be finful in respect of their Manner of Performance, Performance, yet when we conform to the Command even in Externals, the Matter thereof is good, becaufe commandcd; and it is in thisConformity that unconverted Sinners can only with Reafon expect fupernatural Grace; for Jebovak will be enquir'd of by the Houfe of Ifrael to do it for them. And

3. We may therefore learn, the Necessity of examining ourfelves; whether indeed we do aim at the Glory of God, in what we do? Now we may know this by the following Marks, viz. 1. When we are content to be outfhin'd by others in Gifts and Efteem if fo be God's Glory may be thereby advanced. (Phil. i. 15.) 2. When we habitually prefer God's Glory, to all other Things, that come at any Time in Competition with it, fuch as Credit, Eftate, Relations. 3. When in the General, we can be content, that God's Will fhould take Place, tho' it crofs ours, (Mat. xxvi. 33. Jokn xii. 28) 4. When the Reproaches that come upon God's Name, by the Falls of Profeffors, & declining State of Religion, diffrefs us more for the General than all our worldly Concerns! 5. When we find at Times hard grapling, to come at this Difpofition, because of the Opposition of felfish Corruptions. And can after experiencing the Work of Converfion feel fometimes the witneffing of our Confeience that in Simplicity and Godly Sincerity, we have had our Conversation in the World. 2 Cor. i. 12. 6. When we feel the Love of CHRIST, fometimes fweetly conftraining us to Duty. 7 when we bewail over the Remains of Hypocrify in us !

4. If we find the aforefaid Characters in us there is ground of Hope and Comfort for us; and tho' we have many Weakneffes to lament, yet we are compleat in CHRIST, and he who hath begun a good Work in us, will carry it on to the Day of the Lord JESUS. He that fecth in fecret, will by and by reward us openly, and make cur Righteonfnefs fkine as the Light, and our Judgment as the Noon Day. H 2

Practical Inferences.

But alas how doleful and dangerous is the Cafe of all that want the aforefaid Signs! Their felfifh Services are rejected, that God, voko is a Spirit, cafts them back as Dung upon their Faces, he will at laft tear off their Hypocritical Masks, and condemn their Perfons to eternal Burnings, except they repent ! O confider, with trembling those dreadful Words of CHRIST, Mat XXV. Go ye accurfed into everlassing Burnings, prepared for the Devil and his Angels! What shall become of those who bring no Glory to God? But are as Bernard speaks (aut Peccalum aut Sterilitas) either Sinfulness or Barrenefs, an unprofitable Burden to the Earth, and Poifon to the Air! O let fuch think on these folemn Words of our Lord, Mat. xxv. 30. Caft ye the untrofitable Servant in-to utter Darknefs ! And how difinal is the Cafe of all fuch, who by open Impieties bid Defiance to Heaven who declare their Sin as Sodom and refuse to blush! Surely Indignation and Wrath skall be upon every Scul that doth Evil, upon the Jew first and also upon the Gentile! But what shall I say of those Monsters of impiety, who cast inglorious Reflections upon the very Work of God's holy Spirit, in convincing and converting Sinners, and comforting Saints? And call it Hypocrify, Mechanism, Entbusiasm and Disorder! Woe to these proud Potscherds that thus contend with their Maker, that like brute Bcasts speak Exil of what they understand not! O let fuch think on the Words of our Saviour to perfecuting Saul, Saul, why perfecute/t thou me, it is hard for thee to kick against the Pricks ! This Opposition is a dreadful Step, to the unpardonable Sin.

In fine let us be all exhorted to aim at God's Glory and to glorify him. For this is of abfolute neceflity, to obtain true Comfort, in Life, at Death and throughout Eternity!

SERMON III.

2. TIMOTHY. iii. 16. 17.

All Scripture is given by Inspiration of God, and is profitable for Dostrine, for Reproof, for Correction, for Instruction in Righteousness.

That the Man of God may be perfect, throughly furnished unto all good Works.

HE Apostle having in the preceeding Verses informed Timothy of the Apostacy of many from the Truth, and exhorted him to constancy in cleaving thereto, in the Face of all Opposition; does in the Words before us, as a Mean and Motive, propose an ample Commendation of the HOLY SCRIPTURES, in which we may observe,

these Particulars,

Ift. The Subject commended, all Scripture, (pafa graphe) i. e. all the Holy Scripture, not only the Old but the New Teftament, in all their Parts. The Word Scripture fignifies Writing. And

2d. We have the Commendation, which reprefents three Things, viz, the original, u/e, and defign, of the Scriptures.

And 1st. The Original, it's given by Inspiration (theo pneuslos) i. e. by the immediate and infallible guidance of the Holy Spirit, 2. Pet. i. 20, 21. Knowing this first, that no Prophesy of Scripture is of any private Interpretation, for the Prophefy came not in old Time by the Will of Man, but Holy Men of old, fpake as they were moved to it by the Holy Gke/t.

2d. The Use of the Holy Scriptures, they are prefitable, (ophilemos) which does not only fignify, a certain Conveniency, as fome imagine, but their Necessity, Sufficiency and Perfection ! Here a fourfold profitablenets of the Scriptures is mention'd, viz. 1ft. For Doctrine, (pros didascalian) i. e. as Mr. Pool observes in his Symples, for Inferaction in the found Truths of the Christian Religion. The Original Word is derived from a Verb, that fignifies to teach; this Senfe of the Word is confirm'd Rom. xv. 4. F.r whatfoever Things were written aforetime, were written for our Learning, that we thro' Patience and Comfort of the Scriptures might have Hope ! Here observe, that the first Use of the facred Scriptures, is to instruct: And the first Duty of those who Minister in Holy Things, is to Teach, and afterwards to Exhort.

And thus we may fee, that every Religion that is not grounded upon Knowledge, is a falle Religion! And that all fuch who would work upon Men's Paffions, and exbert them before they inftruct their Minds, act contrary to the holy Scriptures, and to right Reafon! Such do but delude Mankind, and build a Babel of Confufion, but Godis a God of Order, and not of Confution! But 2dly, the Scriptures are profitable for reproof, (pros clenckon) i.e. to convince and confute Hereticks, and refel their Errors. This Word refpects the polemical U/e of the Scriptures, to convince gain-fayers and ftop their Mouths, Tit. i. 9, 11. Holding feft the faithful Word as he hath been taught, that he may be able by found Doctrine both to exbert and convince the Gain-fayers, whofe mouths muft be flep'd.--Here the Word Convince is the fame in the Original, with that in the Text which is tranflated Reproof, add hereto, that a Frincipal ufe of the Scriptures, is to convince of Sin, of Righteoufness and of Judgment, Joh. xvi. 8.9. The original Word translated Reprove, is the very fame with that in our Text, and fignifies to convince demonstratively: Now altho' the holy Spirit is the efficient Caufe of this, without whose energy the Word has no Influence upon Mens Minds, yet the Scriptures are the Inftrumental Caufe, for by the Law is the Knowledge of Sin. Now that the Reproof in the xvi. of John's Gospel, before mention'd, respects not only evil Actions, but a State of Sin, appears from these Words of our Lord in the 9th ver. of Sin, because ye have not believed on me.

3dly, For Correction, (profs epanorthofin) Correction prefuppofes Evil, and feeing that this is Two-fold, viz. either of Sin or Punifkment, therefore Correction is alfo two-fold : By the one we are freed from the Evil of Sin, which is call'd Reprehenfion; and by the other from the Evil of Sorrow, which is call'd Confolation. Both thefe the original Word (epanor-thofis) includes.

4thly, For Instruction in Rightcousness, (pross paideian ente dicaiofune) the Word (paideia) fignifies both Instruction and Direction. The word Righteousness, every moral Good. This Phrase feems to import the exhortatory Use of the holy Scriptures, those who have begun Well, the holy Scriptures both direct and exhort to perfist in their pious Course; and therefore in these four Uses all the Business of the Scriptures is defcrib'd.

But 3dly, we have in these Words the End and Scope of the Scriptures, and that is, that the Man of God may be perfect, and thoroughly furnished.---Who are we to underfland by the Man of God?

Anfwer, In general all pious People ; but especially Minifters of the Gospel. The Word perfect (Artios) is explain'd by the following Sentence, the holy Scriptures give sufficient Direction Direction for all Goodnefs of every kind, that may be call'd Perfect, which has all its Parts. It is the manner of the Hebrews to use many Words in expressing that which they have a mind to impress on their Readers !

In difcourfing upon this Text of Scripture, I shall according to the Order of it,

I. Labour to prove the divine Original of the holy Scrip-And. tures. The

II. Speak of their Ufe.

1ft. General Head of Discourse, is the divine Original of the Scriptures, or to prove that they have been given forth by divine Inspiration, and are therefore infallibly true, and of divine Authority. To this End let it be confidered, 1ft. That a divine Revelation is neceffary, feeing that nature teaches that there is a God, or fome first Being, from whom are all things as their first Principle, and to whom all things tend, as their last End, and who is therefore above all. It is but reafonable that this fupream Being, fhould be worfhiped if he is above all, more excellent than all, and we have received our All from him, (as it is inconteftibly evident;) then thefe Things fhould be acknowledged with due Reverence, and what is this but the Worfhip of God? Surely he from whom our Beings and all our Benefits do proceed, has a just Right to our Homage and Service. And feeing he has made rational Creatures, in fome fort, capable of it, is it not reasonable to conclude, that the supream Being, who always acts with the wifelt Defign, does and will require that moral Service for which he has given a Capacity ? the Cafe muft be fo, otherwife the Almighty has given a Capacity to no Purpole, which is unworthy of his infinite Wildom!

Well, feeing the Almighty does require fome Worfhip and Service of his reationable Creatures; may we not infer from

Authority of the Scriptures. 65

from his infinite Goodness, that he has given them some certain and infallible rule, to direct them therein; efpecially confidering, that there are fome things in Religion, which cannot be known by the Light of Nature, viz. all those Inftitutions which Spring from the meer Will or good Pleafure of Cod, cannot be found out by the force of human Reafoning, without fome fpecial Revelation from God. As Febovab makes his unatainted Purity manifest in moral Laws, fo the Glory of his Sovereignty appears in his politive Injunctions, respecting which his Pleasure cou'd not be known without fome divine Revelation. And thus all that tribute of Honeur, which redcunds to his Sovereignity thereby, would be entirely loft; from all which Confiderations, the neceffity of fome fupernatural Revelation, fome divine Law to direct Mankind in the Affairs of Religion, is of the laft Neceffity.

Neither, 2diy. Is it impofible that the Almighty should communicate his Mind and Will to his Creatures by immediate Revelation : If a Creature can impart his Mind to another, much more the Creator; for furely there is no excellency in Creatures, but what is eminently in him. If it is not inconfiftent with the Glory and Majefty of God to dehold and be prefent with all Things, then furely it cannot be injurious to his Honcur to communicate his Mind to reafonable Creatures: Nay, on the contrary, it is an Indication of his Goodnels and Wildom, to favour intelligent Creatures with fuch intimations of his Will, as are fuitable to the Capacity he has given them, and fubfervient to promote their Happinefs.

Neither is it in any respect absurd or impossible for the Almighty to communicate his Mind to Mankind by immediate Revelation. Surely he that made the Soul can find eafie accels to the Work of his own Hands, and form what Impreffions on it he pleafes! If a finite Spirit can communicate its Ideas

Ideas to the Soul of Man, as all confefs, except Sadduces, how much more can the Father of Spirits? To deny the reality of Infpiration, is not only to reject the credibility of Scripture Hiftory, but to confront the avoved Sentiments of the Pagan World, who all declar'd it to be agreeable to Reafon!

Having premis'd thefe few particulars, I fhail proceed to mention those Characters of Divinity which are impress'd on the Scriptures. And

Ift. Methinks the Antiquity of the Scriptures, is an Argument of their divine Authority: The Books of Moles (next to the Decalogue) are the most ancient Writings in the World. This Justin Martyr, who liv'd in the fecond Centuary, and Eusebius after him, make fully evident. But the Words of Tertulian, in his Apology, are very memorable ! " Our Religion, fays he, far out does all that you can boast of in that " Kind ; for the Books of one of our Prophets only, viz. Moles, " (wherein it feems God hath inclos'd, as in a Treafury, all the Christian Religion preceeding fo many Ages together) 44 " reach beyond the antientest you have ; even all your publick Mo-" numents, the Antiquity of your Originals, the establishment of " your Estates, the Foundations of your Cities, all that are ad-" vanced by you in all Ages of Hiftory and Memory of Times .---" I think I may fay more, they are older than your very Gods, " your Temples, Oracles, and Sacrifices ! Have you not heard " mention made of that great Prophet Moles, he was cotem-" porary with Inachus, and preceeded Danaus (the antientefl of " all that have a Name in your Hiftories) 393 Years : He lived " fome hundred Years before the ruin of Troy; and Homer the " oldeft Writer among the Greeks; lived, as Pliny fayeth, " 250 Years after the Jubwerfion of that City. Every of the " other Prophets, succeeded Moses, and yet the last of them was of

" of the fame Age with your prime wife Men, Law-givers and " Hiftorians ! thus far he."

It is certain, that neither the Writings of Homer, Trifmegiftus, Pythagoras, Berofus, Plutarch, Ciccro, Seneca, or any other can vie with the Books of Mofes for Antiquity! Now is it not Reafonable to believe, that to be the beft Religion which was firft? Is not Truth always the firft born? Is it not abfurd to imagine that the moft early Notices of Religion fhould be counterfeit? How can it confift with the divine Goodnefs to fuffer Mankind to be thus impos'd upon, under pretence of his Authority, in a Matter that concerns their everlafting Intereft, without any Thing from him, either before or fince, to detect the Fraud? Certainly this is unworthy of God, and contrary to the Reafon of Men; and therefore the Scriptures, being the moft Antient, muft needs proceed from the God of Truth. But

2. The Majeflick Stile of the Holy Scriptures fpeaks them to be of a Divine Original. The Stile of the Scripture is very different from all human Writings, in it we find a stately plainets, a majeftick Simplicity, commanding Reverence from all intelligent Beings, who do without Prejudice attend thereto. God is reprefented as fpeaking with a Sovereignty, Grandeur, and Majefty, becoming the Dignity of his Being and extent of his Government. e. g. Ifa. i. 2. Hear O Heavens ! And give ear O Earth ! For the Lord hath Spoken. Ifa. 1xvi 1. Thus fayeth the Lord, the Heaven is my Throne, and the Earth my Foot-Stool! Ifa. xl. 12. 15. Who kath measured the Waters in the Hallow of his Hand, and meeted cut the Heavens with a Span; and comprehended the Duft of the Earth in a Meafure ; and weighed the Mountains in Scales, and the Hills in a Ballance; Behold the Nations are as a Drop of a Bucket, and are counted as the finall Duft of the Ballance! Echold he taketh up the Ifles as a very To little little Thing, Pf. lxxvi. 12. He fhall cut of the Spirit of the Princes, He is terrible to the Kings of the Earth, Pf. xcvii. 1, 5. The Lord reigneth let the Earth rejoyce, let the Multi-tude of Ifles be glad thereof. Clouds and Darknefs are round about him, Righteoufnefs and Judgment, are the Habitation of his Throne, a Fire goeth before him, and burneth up his Enemies round about, His Lightnings chlightned the World, the Earth faw and trembled, the Hills melted like Wax, at the prefince of the Lord, at the Prejence of the Lord of the whole Earth ! Here are no Apologies, begging Pardon of the Reader, or any Arts us'd to infinuate into his good Opi-nion as is common in human Writings. Aguiline fays, " That the Holy Scriptures feem'd rude and unpolifh'd to " him, becaufe he did not understand its inward Beauty ; " but when converted to Chriftianity, he declar'd, that when " he underflood them, no writing appear'd more wife and " eloquent." Gregory Nazianzen, a Man of great Learning, when he became acquainted with the facred Scriptures, judged, " All the Ornaments of Literature among the Greek " Philosophers, to be vastly inferior to them." Illiricus obferves, "'That altho' we find not in the Holy Scriptures, " that delicate Itch of Words, that numerofity of Sounds or " those pleasing Trisles with which the vain glorious O-" rators of Greece and Rome beautify'd their fam'd Ha-" rangues, yet we find there a grave and matculine Elo-" quence exceeding all others." Thus far he : 'Tis true a great Part of the Scripture is deftitue of the Sweetnefs of Sound, and Pomp of Diction. But yet there is more Beauty in that plaincts, than in all the Flowers of Ciceronian Rhetorick. Neither would it become the Majefly of Heaven, to use the Philosophical Subtilties of Plato and Ariflotle! A Pearl needs no painting --- A Prince need not play the Orator ! Plaincis well becomes Royal Power and Majefty in the the Publication of Laws. In the facred Scriptures, Commands are iffu'd forth with Sovereign Majefty, and Obedience peremtorily requir'd, and no other Reafon affign'd but the Legiflators Will. Here are Promifes to the Obedient, of all needful Bleffings here, & immortal Glory hereafter. Here are Threats denounced against the Ditobedient of every Order, from the Prince on the Throne to the Beggar on the Dunghil; and that of no lefs than eternal Miferies! Here Injunctions are introduc'd, with a thus faitb the Lord ! He that bath Ears to hear let him hear. Where do we find any Thing like to this, in any human Writings?

2. The Matters therein treated of, are fo fublime and tranfcendent, that they could never be devis'd by a human Mind, Here the effential and perional Glory of the great Three ONE, is reprefented in a furprifing Light. Here a rational and confiftent Account is given of the Original Scurce of that Depravity and Mifery, which taints and infefts the whole human Race ! viz. That both were occasion'd by the Apoftacy of Adam, the federal Head and Representative of his whole Offspring. This the Pagans groan'd under, but afcrib'd it to a Fabulous Caufe! Here a Method of Cure is open'd, every Way worthy of God, and every Way fuited to all the Maladies under which our fallen Nature labours ! namely, that the Son of God fhould affume the human Nature under its ruinous Circumstances, into an infeparable Union with his Deity, and therein mediate and fatisfy for the Sins of Men, by his Suffering and Obedience! What finite Mind could invent a Scheme in which the Divine Attributes fhine forth with fuch humble Beauty and harmonizing Glory? A Scene which gives Room for the difplays of Sovereign Mercy, without infringing upon the unalienable Rights of Juffice ! Befides the facred Scriptures give us a rational Account of the Origin and End of the World. The The infinite Grandeur of the Almighty is most nobly reprefented, in the Manner of the Worlds Formation; he did but speak and behold it existed, his single fovereign Beck caused it to spring in a Moment, from the Womb of empty Nothing into Being; and how awful and affecting is the Representation which the Divine Oracles give us of the Refurrection of the Dead and the general Judgment! And where else can we find these folemn Scenes open'd, which are to terrible to the impenitent, and comforting to all that truly fear God?

4. That Holinefs the Scripture inculcates, is an Argument of its divine Original. The divine Oracles do not only recommend Holinefs in Speech and Practice, but in the inward Sentiments and Thoughts of the Soul; and that not only by its Precepts, which are just and equal, but by Threatnings of the most dreadful kind, and Promifes of the most important Good; as well as by examples of most unblemish'd Vertue and strictest Piety. The Words of Holy Scripture are pure as Silver try'd in a Furnace and purify'd feven Times. The most fublime universal and perpetual Purity, is the golden Center to which all the Lines in the Circumference of Scripture bend and terminate. And it ought to be obferved, that the facred Scripture urges a Helinefs, which fprings from the nobleft Principle,  $\forall z$ . LOVE; and aims at the higheft End, viz. The Glory of God ; whereas divers of the Pagans have held a multiplicity of gods which is impoffible in the Nature of Things, and observ'd impure Rites in their religious Worship, and allow'd of Revenge and Self Murder ! And all their Motives to the Vertues they recommend, are of a felfifh Nature. But the Scripture allures us to the Love and Practice of Vertue and Goodnets, from the fublime and endearing Confideration of redeeming Love! I may add, that the Pagan Moralifts, viz. Socrates, Plata

Authority of the Scriptures.

Plato, Plutarch, Seneca, Tully, Ariflotle, are filent about Heart Purity, fo far as I know, without which, a regular Life has but a Shew of Goodnefs. As to the Mahometan Religion it may be observ'd, that is was propagated among a barborous, rude and uncultivated People, and fpread nofarther than the Force of the Sword carried it. It is evident that Mahomet, the Author of the Alcoran, did nothing to prove himfelf to be a Frophet: What Mysteries did he reveal? What Prophefies did he express? What Miracles did he perform ? How many Things in the Alcoran, are contradictory and ridiculous ? Befides its Precepts indulge Mens fenfual Inclinations with Polygamy here, and its Promifes flatter Men's vain Hopes with the Propofal of a carnal Paradife hereafter; a Paradile more fit for Swine, than reafonable and immortal Souls! Well if the Scriptures be abfolutely and comparatively Holy, and tend to make us fo above all other Writings, is it not an Argument of their divine Original? Surely Satan, who is an impure Spirit, would not invent what is fo prejudicial to his Kingdom, nor the Wicked who are under his Influence : It can't be reafonably fuppos'd, that they would, if they could, devife a System of Doctrines and Laws which directly controls their corrupt Inclinations, and dooms them to perpetual Mifery for them! Nor can Angels or good Men be the Authors of the Scriptures, because they would be guilty of frequent lying, in afcribing to themfelves and their Sayings a Divinity, which the Scriptures frequently attribute to itself, therefore it must derive its Original from none elfe but God !

The Neceflity of fome Divine Revelation has been before obferved. And indeed he that denies this, does not only deny the Chriftian and Jewifh, but all Religion in general, for all have alledged this as their Foundation; and befides he must acknowledge, that the Almighty has left Man in in a worfe Condition than the meaneft Creature, to whom he has given fufficient Means, to attain the higheft End of their Beings: But fure this is incompatible with infinite Wifdom and Goodne's! If any fhould fay, that Reafon may fuffice, I anfwer no! It is corrupt, and therefore cannot be the Rule of Right, without a Revelation. The abfurd Opinions of many who have the Help of a Revelation, fhows the infufficiency of Reafon without it, to be our Guide in religious Matters; but if it be granted, that there is fome Revelation, then furely it is the Chriftian, for this alone bears the Character of Divinity; all the Reft carry the manifeft Tokens of Impoflure upon them, as has been before obferv'd. But

5. That Harmony and Agreement which fublifts between all the Parts of the facred Scriptures, is another Proof of their divine Authority. This bleffed Book, was Sixteen Hundred Years a writing; it was written by a great number of Perfons of various Conditions, in different Tongues, in different Ages, in diftant Places, and yet all the Parts whether Hiftorical, Prophetical, Perceptive, Promifory, Minatory, Typical, Doctrinal, fweetly harmonize and tend to the fame noble End ! This could never be the Iffue of human Contrivance; it must needs be the Refult of infinite Prefcience, and divine Guidance! How often do uninfpir'd Men contradict themfelves in their Writings, and how much more would they contradict one another? If many Perfons of inferior Attainments, did at various Times and Places write upon religious Subjects, confidering their natural Elindnels in fuch Matters, and their lyablenels to blunder, even in reporting Matters of Fact; and indeed if the Penmen of the Scriptures had been left to themfelves, in the Compofure, the Bible would have been but a Eundle of Confusi-6. Another on and Contradiction, But

6. Another Argument for the divine Original of the Scriptures, may be taken from the Penmen thereof; and here it may be afferted, that they were Men of fuch blamelefs Lives, that their Enemies could not fix fuch Charges upon them as might justly weaken the Credit of their Writings. It is likewife evident, that they were Men of greatCandor and Integrity, and that from their discovering their own Faults, Moles Records his Backwardness to comply with the divine Call ofgoing to Egypt, his Infidelity, his Murmurings, (Num. xi. 11, 15.) and Jeremy informs us, of his curting the Day of bis Birth, Jer. xx. David makes mention of his Crime in the Matter of Uriab, (Pfal. li.) nay they do not only mention their own Crimes, but those of their dearest Relations; which carnal Policy would have inclin'd them to conceal; thus Moles mentions his Brother Aaron's making the Golder-Calf, (Exod. xxxii 25.) They also acquaint us, with the meaness of their Extraction, thus Amos tells us that he was among the Herdfmen of Tekoah; the Evangelists inform usthat they were Seafaring Men, when call'd to be Difciples.

Neither were the Penmen of the Scriptures, defigning Men, they fought not their own Honour, as appears from what has been faid, neither did they feek their own Intereft. Altho' Mofes had the Burden of Government, yet he did not affect the pomp of a King, neither did he advance his Family to that Wealth and Honour which was in the Power of his Hand to confer ! No, the Laws he made, depriv'd his own Tribe of kingly Government, and the higheft Honour of the Priefthood he conferred on hisBrothersChildren, not his own! Its certain that Inftead of Honour and Profit, many of the Penmen of the Scriptures, expofed themfelves by their writing and preaching to great Contempt and Hardships !

Befides many of the Penmen of the Scriptures, were of fuch Inferior Abilities that they were not able to form an K. Impofure, Imposture and palm it on the World. And some of them were Kings, and so above the sneaking Meanesses of Lying and Forgery! And to conclude this Argument, I may farther observe that the very Writers of the Scriptures appear to be under a Subjection to the Doctrines they delivered, which argues them to be of a divine Original! But

7. The exact accomplishment of Prophesies, proves the Divinity of the Scriptures; to foretel Events that depend upon arbitrary Caufes, exceeds the reach of a human Mind, and is the Prerogative of that God only, who is panophthalmos, all eye and has no Succeffion in Duration; but there are many Infrances of this kind in Scripture, e.g. Moles and Joshua foretold the Idolatrous Apostacy of Israel, (Deut. xxxi. 29. Jol. xxiii 15.) which the Book of Judges fhews was accomplished. Ifaiab and feremiab forefold the Babel-lonifb Captivity, with the Time of its Continuance, and the Deliverance from it by Cyrus, which accordingly came to pafs, as other Parts of the Old-Teflament do witnefs. The Prophecy of a Reformation by Joliah, and his burning the Bones of the Idolatrous Priefts at Bethel, did exactly come to pais three Hundred Years after. ( 1 Kings xiii. 2. 2 Kings xxiii, 15, 16.) And many Propheties respecting the Time and Manner of our SAVIOUR's coming, his Birth, Life, Miracles, and Death, are punctually fulfilled. It was near two Thoufand Years, before that famous Prophify, (Gen. xlix. 10.) had its Accomplifhment, Hircanus was the laft of the Tribe of Judah, who fway'd the Scepter of Government over the People of Ifracl, and this Man Herod a Stranger, an Idumean flew; and fo cut off the Line of Judab, and ufurp'd the Government, as Josephus teftifies; and then did the MESSIAS come. An ingenious Writer gloffeth excellently upon the aforelaid Prophecy, in the following Manner. The Jewish Rabbins sayeth he, " do not deny that by SHI-LOH

" LOH is meant the MESSIAH; now at the Time of Jacob's " uttering these Words, there was little Prebability that a-" ny of his Posterity should have a Sceptre, --- being poor, few, " and in a firange Land; or if they should thrive fo as to be-" come a Kingdom, why flould Judah have the Government? " Seeing there were three elder Brothers, viz. Reuben, Si-" meon, and Levi ; nor was there any likelihood of this Pro-" phecy's being accomplish'd when Moles fet it down in Writ-" ing, for then he himfelf who was of the Tribe of Levi was " in the actual Poffession of the Government, and put into it " by God himfelf, who appointed for his fucceffor Joshua, not of " the Tribe of Judah, but of Ephraim, whence we have a no-" table Evidence, of the Truth and Sincerity of this Pre-" distion : For had not Jacob really uttered it, we cannot " imagine that Mofes would have put it in Writing, to the " Dilparagement of his own Tribe." Thus far he.

We fee with our Eyes the ingathering of the Gentiles, andDifperfion of the Jews! But the Time would fail to relate the accomplishment of those numerous Prophesies that refpect our SAVIOUR: I must therefore proceed to observe.

8. That God himfelf has attefted the Divinity of the Scriptures by Miraculous Works, and furely if we receive the Witnefs of Men, the Witnefs of God is greater. A Miracle is an extraordinary divine Work, whereby fomething is produc'd contrary to the common Courfe and fixed Laws of Nature! Now that many fuch have been wrought by the Prophets, by CHRIST, and the Apoftles, for the Confirmation of the Divinity of their Miffion and Doctrine, we have all the Evidence that fuch paft Facts will admit of, and more cannot be reafonably defir'd. Elijab expression expective between him and the Priefts of Baal, by a miraculous Work, and our Lord appeal'd to the Miraculous Works K 2

he performed in Confirmation of his Miffion and Doctrine, as particularly in the Cafe of John Baptist's Disciples, go and tell him, faid he, that the Blind receive their Sight, and the Lame walk, &c. We have Information by many credible and difinterested Witnesses, that the Miracles which our Lord wrought, were many in Number, beneficent in Kind, that they were wrought before Multitudes of Enemies, who, had there been any fraud, would furely have detected it. They were wrought frequently in open Day, and of this the Relators were Eye and Ear Witneffes. A Miracle is certainly the broad Seal of Heaven, which could never be given to a forgery ! And therefore, as Dr. Owen observes, " When any Dostrine which is in itfelf fuch as becometh Holi-" nefs and Rightcoufnefs, is confirmed by a Miracle, there can " no greater Affurance be given even by God himfelf of its " veracity !" Could the infernal Spirits imitate the miraculous Works which our Saviour wrought? Is it not utterly inconfiftent with the divine Goodness to fuffer them to use the Seal of Heaven in feducing Mankind, without giving fome evident Notices of the Imposture, but this has never been done in this Cafe : The Turks do acknowledge the Miracles of our Lord, and the Jews also; but the latter ascribe them, thro' Malice, to the Power of Magick ! But then, as our Saviour justly observes, Satan would be divided against Satan, and fo bis Kingdom could not fland ! Satan would do that which is contrary to his Intereft, which is abfurd! Irenius, who lived in the fecond Century, affirmeth, " That the " the Dead were raifed to Life, and other Miracles wrought " in his time, by laying on of Hands." And Tertulian, in his Apology, hath these Words, " Let any one be brought be-" for e your Tribunal who is apparently poffels'd with a Devil, " that Spirit being commanded by any Christian, skall confels " kimfelf to be a Devil." But to proceed,

Another

Another Argument of the Divinity of the Scriptures, is their almost miraculous Prefervation for fo long a tract of Time, notwithstanding the rage of numerous, powerful and politick Oppofers, while many other efteemed Composures, which never met with fuch Opposition, have long fince perished. Antiochus Epiphanes, in the Days of the Mac-cabes, made diligent fearch for the Book of the Law, and where ever he found it, burnt it, and threatned those that conceal'd it with Death and Torture. And about the Year of CHRIST 300, the Emperor Dioclefian being determined to root Christianity out of the World, us'd the fame Barbarities to deftroy the Scriptures. But the gracious God has preferv'd them to this Day, maugre the combin'd rage of Hell, and Earth ! yea to preferve them whole and entire, fo that those to whom they were committed, have not been fuffered to corrupt them, altho' they fell into Opinions inconfistent with them, they have therefore fled to unwritten Traditions as the Patron of their erronious Opinions. The Jews to their Talmud and Cabala, which, they fay, Mofes delivered by Word of Mouth. And the Papifts to oral Traditions, which they fay were delivered by St. Peter. But I proceed to obferve,

That the early Succefs of the Gofpel notwithftanding of all the Oppofition and Contempt which was made againft it, and caft upon it, gives aditional Force to what has been before offer'd. What lefs then Omnipotence cou'd make fuch felf denying Doctrines, preach'd by illiterate Men, become victorious over the Pride and Prejudice of multitudes of divers Nations, and that without the Arts of Perfuafion or Influence of civil Power?

And indeed that divine Energy that does frequently attend the Holy Scriptures, is a pregnant Argument of their divine Authority. By thefe the Minds of Men are enlightned, their Confeiences alarm'd, their Hearts comforted and renew'd, having having their general Byass turn'd towards God, and Heavenly Objects, and their Lives reform'd! These Effects which have appear'd in Millions of Men, do surpass the Force of Nature, and must therefore be ascrib'd to an omnipotent Cause. And is it confistent with the Wisdom and Holiness of God to use a forgery to produce such noble Effects, and thereby to confirm an imposfure ? no surely ! most certainly the Almighty uses Instruments adapted to the Effects produced. Tuly justly complains, "That the Pagan Mora-" lifts, wanted Authority to enforce their Sentiments and Pre-" cepts, and that they were rather for Oftentation then Practice.

And indeed the general Tendency and Scope of the facred Scripture, being to exalt God and abafe the Creature, is no inconfiderable Argument of its divine Original. Had Men been the Contrivers, they would have fram'd a Scheme more agreeable to their corrupt Inclinations! They would have reprefented it as an eafyMatter to be faved, and that the Creature is not fo beholden to the Almighty for his Happinefs as the Scriptures fignify.

Likewife the conftant Tellimony both of the Jewifk and Chriftian Church, to the Truth of the Scriptures, ferves to confirm and illuftrate our prefent Argument. Here let it be confidered, that the Truth of Chriftianity depends much upon certain Facts, fuch as the Miracles which CHRIST wrought, and his Refurrection from the Dead. Thefe the Apoftles were eye Witnefies of, and had there been any fallacy in them, could have eafily difcover'd it; for the Connexion we obferve in their Writings, proves that they had the regular exercise of their Reafon. Now how can it be fuppos'd, that Men in their Senfes would conftantly affert what they knew to be falfe, and that in the face of Danger, when they had no Profpect of Honour or Interest by fo doing? But on the Contrary, of Reproach, Poverty and Pain, and at laft Seal it it with their Blood! To which let me add, the conftant Teftimony of Millions of Men ever fince, many of whom fuffer'd great Hardships, yea and Death itself, rather than they would deny the Truth of the Scriptures!

Besides some learned Men observe, That divers Matters of Fact recorded in Scripture, are also acknowledged by Heathen Hiftorians, e. g. " The Creation of the World, by Ovid " in his Metamorphofis. The long Lives of the Patriarchs, " by Manetho. The Flood, by Berofus. Noah, by Herodo-" tus, under the Name of Janus. The Destruction of Sodom, " by Pliny and Justin. Circumcifion, by Herodotus, Strabo, " Diodorus, Siculus, and Tacitus. Ifraels departure out of " Egypt, by the antient Record of the Egyptians, Phenicians, "Caldeans, and Grecians. Mention is made of Solomon, "by Dionifius Cafius. Of the Slaughter of Senacherib, by "Herodotus. The famous Roman Historian Tacitus, in his " Annals, Speaking of Nero's Persecuting the Christians, un-" der pretence of their burning the City of Rome, fays ex-" prefly, That the Author of that Name or Sect, was " CHRIST, who when Tiberius was Emperor, was put to " Death by Pontius Pilate, the then Procurator of Judea. " The Appearance of the Star is mention'd by Calcidius. " Herod's Slaughter of the Children, by Marcrobius. The " Eclipfe of the Sun at our Lord's Crucifixion, by Dionifius " the Areopagite.' Tertulian, in his Apology, appeals to the Roman Records for the certainty of it. And Josephus in his Hiftory, gives Teftimony to the Miracles of our Saviour.

Once more, if the Scriptures were not of divine Authority, wherefore do wicked Men rage fo much againft them? and why are we affayled with fo many Temptations from Satan to doubt and object when we apply ourfelves to the ferious Study of them? Would Satan fo much oppofe them above above all other Books, did they not come from God and tend to deftroy his Kingdom ? No furely !

But notwithstanding of all that hath been faid in order to give us full Satisfaction, there is a neceffity of the internal Testimony of the holy Spirit, whereby Persons are made to feel the Power of the Scriptures, forming holy Dispositions and sweet Sensations in them, answerable thereunto, and thereby enabling them to believe its divine Authority, and hence it is faid, that those who believe have the Witness in themselves.

But I proceed to fpeak, and that but briefly, of the 2d. General Head, which was to discourse upon the Use of the Scripture.

Scripture. And here I may fummarily observe, that the facred Scriptures are the perfect and only Rule of our Faith and Practice. Hence in our Text they are faid to make the Man of God perfect and thoroughly furnish'd to every good Work; and hence they are call'd a Light to our Feet and a Lamp to our Paths, and expressly, a Rule, Gal. 6. 16. And as many as walk according to this Rule, Peace be upon them, and Mercy, and upon the Israel of God. From this we must not swerve to the right or left Hand. Is visi. 20. To the Law and to the Testimony, if they speak not according to this Word, it is because there is no Light in them. And indeed the boly Scriptures, have only the Nature

And indeed the holy Scriptures, have only the Nature and Property's of a Rule, which are thefe following, 1ft. a Rule ought to be prefcrib'd by God alone. Mat. xv. 9. A Religious Rule cannot be prefcrib'd by another than him to whom the Perfons ruled belong. And indeed the Sublimity of the matter which fuch Rules concern, fufficiently manifeft, that they cannot be well made by Creatures.

2dly, A Rule ought to be receiv'd and Publick; otherwife how shall it determine Controversies? And thus it is in respect respect of the Scriptures, they have been prescrib'd by the publick Authority of God himself, and receiv'd by the common Confent of the Christian Church, as has been before prov'd; and hence the Church is call'd the Pillar and Ground of Truth, 1. Tim. iii. 15.

- 3dly, A Rule ought to be clear and plain, otherwife how can we know what we have to believe and do? And fo are the Scriptures, effectially in the Explication of fuch Things, as are of abfolute neceffity to Salvation. And hence they are call'd a Light, and faid not to be bid from us, Dut. xxx. 11. Where we meet with Obfcurity, this arifes from the Sublimity of the Things treated of, or the Weaknefs of our understanding rather than from the Scriptures themfelves.

4thly, A Rule ought to be perfect and adequate, or equal to the Thing ruled, fo that it need never to be augmented or diminish'd in the least, otherwise it will be unfit to measure its Object. Such is the Holy Scripture, there is nothing to be believ'd or done, but what it contains and prefcribes. Now the Perfection of the Scriptures is two-fold, viz. integral or Systematical, and Essential, the first confists in its full Number of Books, which is now compleat and the CannonSeal'd, (Rev. xxii. 18. 19.) the latter refpects the Doctrine contain'd in those Books; and this most certainly is compleat, as our Text afferts, and many other Places. And hence we are bound to the Scripture alone as our Guide, by the ftrictest Injunctions. (Deut. xvii. 18. Ifa. viii. 20.) And forbid to add to it or detract from it, under the fevereft Penalty's! (Deut. iv. 2. Rev. xxii. 18. 19.) And inform'd that we fhall be at laft judg'd by it. John xii. 42. And Reafon will inform us, that it must be perfect, feeing that it is the first Principle, and last Explication of our Faith. 2 Pet. i. 20, 21. If it were not fo, true and perfect Conclusions cou'd not be drawn from it, for the Effect cannot be L. hetter better then its Caufe. The facred Scripture has all its effential Parts, viz. Matter and Form, and all its integral, viz. Law and Gofpel, and is therefore Perfect.

5thly. A Rule ought to be conftant and imoveable, evermore and everywhere like to itfelf, otherwife how can any certain Measure be rul'd by it, and fuch is the Holy Scripture, 2 Pet, i. 19. We have a more fure Word of Prophefy, (bebaioteron propheticon logon.)

Now the aforefaid Characters cannot be justly aferb'd to any thing elfe, that is obtruded for a Rule either by Jews, Papists, Turks Pagans, Deists, Quakers, Antinomians: The Jewish Talmud and Cabula are private Things, destitute of divine Authority, full of Abfurdities, Falfehoods and Impieties against God and Man, as Gallatinus and Sextus Senenfis have made evident. The oral Tradition of the Papi/ts is of the fame Stamp, they are extreamly uncertain, for while fome of the Fathers affert a particular Tradition to be Apoftolical, others of them deny it. They are also contrary to the Written Word, and many of them changed according to the Circumftances of Times, Places, and Perfons. The Turki/b Alcoran is also utterly deflitute of the aforefaid Characters ; the Author of it was a Monster of Lust, having eleven Wives at one Time, befides Concubines, a bafe Adulterer and a cruel Robber, as Andreas Maurus in his Treatife against them, makes evident; and he was also an encourager of Robbery in his followers, as appears from the 19 and 71 Surat of the Alcoran, and in many Things it contradicts the Scriptures. The Pagan Moralifts are likewife abfurd and contradictory in many Things, as I have observed before. Neither can Reason be our Rule, as the Deists and Secinians dream; becaufe it is obscure and imperfect, (1 Cor. ii. 14.) And the abfurd and contrary Sentiments of those who had no other Guide, is a fufficient Confirmation of this. Befides, fome fome Things in Religion are Sublime and Mysterious, and fo transfeend the reach of Reason; yet they are not contrary to it: But tho' on the one Hand, we disclaim the Sociaian Opinion, in making Reason the supream Rule of Faith and Practice; yet on the other we equally detest the Foolry of Entbusiafts, who reject it altogether in the Affairs of Religion. Surely Religion is a reasonable Service; Reason may and ought to be humbly us'd, in order to understand the meaning of the Rule God has given us. The Quakers notion, of the Spirit without the Word to be be our Rule, is a dangerous ignis fatuous, which may lead Men any where. Neither is the pretended new Nature and Love of the Antinomians and Moravians, while they reject the Blessed Law of God and flight the Old Testament, a whit faster Guide then will with the Wisfp! Christ has not come to destroy the Law as these Men pretend; neither docs Faith make void the Law!

If it be enquired, whether the Old Teftament be abrogated, or lefs neceffary to be read, and lefs ufeful than the New? It may be obferv'd, that the Manichean Hereticks, and fome Ana-Baptifis rejected it altogether, the Former as proceeding from a bad Principle and the latter becaufe we are faid not to be under the Law, but under Grace; confounding the Law, confidered as a Covenant of Works, and the old Teftament together, tho' Believers are not under the Curfe of the Law, yet by the Law is the Knewledge of Sin, and the Law is Holy, Juft and Good. The Heretical Secinians imagine alfo, that the Religion of the New-Teftament, differs effentially from that of the Old, and therefore that the Old is not neceffary to be read. The enthufiaftical Moravians do alfo flight the Old-Teftament, and do endeavour to invalidate all Arguments drawn from thence. On the Contrary the reform'd Churches, believe that the divine L = 2

Authority of both Teftaments is the fame and that therefore the Old is neceffary and proffitable to be read as well as the New: Their Reafons are thefe, 1ft. ' The Books of the ' Old as well as the New are divinely infpired, this our Text ' confirms; and therefore both are of infallible Truth and Au-• thority. ' 2dly, Becaufe the Old as well as the New was given for a <sup>6</sup> Rule of Faith and Practice to the Church, P[a. cxlvii 19. 20. 3dly. We no where read in the New-Testament, that ' the Old was abolish'd. But ' Athly, On the Contrary it is confirm'd by the Precept and ' Practice of CHRIST. (Job. 5. 39. Luk. 24. 17.) He directs " us to the Old-Teftament, (Luk. xvi. 29.) and confuted his "Adverfaries by it. (Mat. iv. 7.) And the fame was done by * the Apostles Peter and Paul. (Asts iii, 20. Asts xviii, 28.) ' 5thly, 'The whole Doctrine of the New, is contain'd in <sup>6</sup> the Old. The Apoftle Paul profess'd, that he preach'd nothing befides what the Prophets and Mofes did fay should * come. (Acts xxvi. 22.) The Bereans were commended for ' examining the Doctrine of the New by the Old, (Asts * xvii. 11.) All the Prophets are faid to give Witnefs to Chrift, · Luk. xxiv. 27. ' 6thly, The Old Teftament is faid to be the Foundation of Faith, and of the Christian Church, (Epbef. ii. 20. ' Alls XXiv. 14.) So that fuch as flight the Old-Teftament, * endeavour to overthrow the Foundation of the Christian • Religion : For the New is confirm'd by the Old, and is a ' Fulfilment of the prophetical and typical Part of it.' I proceed to a Word of Improvement. If the Scriptures be of divine Authority, then let us love them with a fincere Love from the Heart, with a fuperlative Love above any Thing clic, they should be fweeter to our Tafte than Honey from the Comb, and more precious than Gold, with a con-

flant Love, as it happens in Hunger and Thirst. (Pfa. i. 2.) with a universal Love extending it felf to the Law and its Threats, as well as to the Gofpel and its Promifes, the Pfalmist glory'd in this, O how love I thy Law, it is my Mc-ditation all the Day. Our Love, fhould be effectual exciting us to gratitude to God for fo excellent a benefit, which we should express with Words and Actions. Let us fear the threatnings, and if Gracious, depend upon the Promifes, and whatever our State be, let us conform to the Precepts of the divine Word; if we have no Grace, this is the Way to obtain it, and if we have, to increase it. Let us read the Scriptures with Care, and meditate frequently on them. We may be excited to the aforefaid Love, by confidering the Perfections of their Author, the Excellency of the Doctrines contain'd in them, with their Tendency and manifold Ufe, They are the Wisdom and Power of God to Salvation. All Scripture is given by Inspiration of God, and is profit-able for Doctrine, for Reproof, for Correction, for Instruction in Righteousness, that the Man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnified unto all good Works.

SERMON IIII.

PSALM xiv. 1.

The Fool hath faid in his Heart there is no God.

HE Knowledge of the divine Existence is the Foundation of all Religion, without this we cannot come to God, and fin cerely feek his Favour; wherefore it appears by the Law of Contraries, that the denial of a Supream Being must needs be the fatal Source of all Impiety and Perfidy. And this the Pfalmist confirms Pfalm 10. 4. The Wicked through the Pride of his Countenance will not feek after God: God is not in all his Thoughts.

The Evidences of a fupream Being, are fo many and manifeft, that it muft needs be an Inftance of the greateft folly and impiety to call it in Queftion : And yet this our Text informs us is the Practice of fome, whofe Character and Courfe we have therein a Defcription of, the Fool. This ignominious Epithet or Character is frequently and juftly affigned to wicked Men in Scripture; for the Contraries of true Wifdom really belong to them, as appears thus, Wifdom directs to an End in the full Enjoyment of which we are compleatly Happy, as well as to Means that directly tend thereto, and excites to the Improvement of the aforefaid Means in their proper Seafon; whereas ungodly Perions either propofe to themfelves an End which cannot yield compleat Satisfaction, namely fome earthly Entertainment; or if they propose the Enjoyment of God in a future World as their End; they purfue contrary Measures to attain it, viz. Sin and Impiety, and postpone the earnest Use of proper Means to fecure an Inteteft in the divine favour, until the golden Seafons of divine Grace are elapied, It is certainly a property of true Wifdom, to exert principal Care and Labour to fecure the most valuable and enduring Good, and to avert the greateft Evil: Whereas impenitent Tranfgreffors on the Contrary, bend their principal Labour and Solicitude in quest of Trifles, which are of no Importance and Duration; while in the mean Time they are fupinely and profufely Negligent of immence and immortal Good, and thereby expose themselves to interminable Mifery, and intolerable Vengeance ! But this methinks is one of the most aftonishing Inftances of the folly of Impenitents, which our Text records, namely, their queffioning the Existence of a supream Being, the Fool hath faid in his Heart : This Expression feems to denote rather a Defire that there was no God, than a Belief that there is none. When Perfons go on in a courfe of crimfon Impiety, as it is faid of the Fool in our Text, they are corrupt, they have done abominable Works. Then they are difposed to Question the Existence of an avenging Judge, that fo they may Sin without Controul or Reluctance : Doubtless fome refactory Transgressors inceffantly labour entirely to extinguish the native Notices of a supream Being in their Minds, that to they may give a lawlefs un-bounded loofe to their fenfitive Appetites, without the uneafy allay of a future Judgment.

In difcourfing on this Text I purpose 1st. To prove the Being of a God by some Arguments. And

II. To expose the Atheists folly in Questioning it.

And 1st. Methinks the Subordination of Caufes which we behold, and their Succession, manifestly point to a first Caufe

Caufe; there hath been for fome ftanding of Time, and there yet is, a fucceffion of Creatures in the World : Now these Creatures cannot make themselves, for that which is not, cannot act : Nothing cannot be the Caufe of fomething. To suppose a Creature could produce itself, involves a manifeft Abfurdity in it, viz. That it is, and is not at the fame Time, and that it acts before it exists, which is impossible : As it produces it must be, for nothing cannot act; and as it is produc'd, it must not be, and as these Creatures cannot make themfelves, fo neither can they make each other, for this Reafon, becaufe to create Something out of Nothing, is a Work that requires infinite Strength. (the diftance between nothing and fomething being infinite) Now no Creature hath this Property of Almightyness, therefore it cannot act contrary to the fixed Laws of Nature in Creating : All that a Creature can do is only, in a natural Way, to give particular Forms to fit Materials, but the Matter itfelf he cannot produce. If the Creature could make himfelf, then it would follow, by a parity of Reafon, that he could preferve himfelf, for the latter is no greater than the former. But manifold Experience proves the latter to be falfe, and therefore the former is fo from which this proceeds.

But farther, upon the fuppolition of the Creatures making himfelf and others, it may be enquir'd, why he has made himfelf and those of the fame Species, to Indigent and Dependant on other Creatures for Support? Likewise how it comes to pass that he knows so little of himself and others? Surely he that makes Things must needs Understand them : From all which it appears, that Man could not make himfelf and other Creatures.

But to bring this Argument respecting the Succession of Creatures, to a Crifis, it may be observ'd, that one or other of these four Particulars respecting it will hold good viz. Either that the Succession is Infinite, or that the fame Thing produces it felf, or that there is a Circulation of Caufes, viz. That  $\mathcal{A}$  should be the Cause of B, B of C, C of D, and Dof A again, or fome first Being who proceeds from none, whom we call GOD, there is not a fifth. Now the Three first Particulars cannot be admitted without Contradiction, as for Example, an infinite Subordination or Succeffion of Caufes, 1ft. infers that while that continues nothing can exift, than which nothing can be more falfe: Now the Juftness of the aforefaid Confequence appears thus, viz. nothing can exift except by its next Caufe, which produces the Effect; But if an infinite Number of Caufes must preceed the next Caufe, that next Caufe would never exift, for there is no end to Infinity, and then it would follow, that therefore nothing now exifts, which is abfurd, and then 2dly That which is infinite would be rendered more, inafinuch as to the fuppofed infinity of Caufes we fee daily new ones added, and thus there would be an infinite which was not Infinite, which is abfurd; and further 3dly That order of prior and posterior which is in fucceflion would be deftitute of a first, from which all Flux or Motion in its own Nature exifts; where there is not a first there cannot be a second or third, neither can there be a fecond or third, where there is not a first; and hence there would be a Succession, which is not a Succeffion; which is abfurd: Therefore an infinite Succeffion can by no Means be allow'd; neither can it be admitted without the greatest Absurdity, that a Creature can produce it felf for the Reafons aforefaid. If an Atheift fhould object and fay, that according to our Opinion God is of himself, we answer, it is true, He is of himself, yet he has not produced himfelf, He is of himfelf negatively, inafmuch as he is produced by no other; but he is not of himfelf M himfelf politively, fo as to produce himfelf; and if the aforefaid Circulation of Caufes were admitted, then the fame Creature would indirectly and mediately produce himfelf, inafmuch as A by B, C, and D, would be the Caufe of himfelf. If the Atheift against the aforefaid Reafonings objects, that we do not fee the Sun, Moon, and Stars to be produced by others, to this it may be reply'd, that altho' we perceive not by our Senfes that those have been produced, nevertheles by reason we may certainly infer this, and that from the following Topick, viz. We observe all these Things to be finite, and feeing that nothing can limit itself and its own Perfection, it is necessary that it should derive its Being and Limitations therein from another. But more particularly, A

2d. Argument to prove the Being of God is this, viz.. The World is created, therefore God exifts: Here we fuppofe what no Atheift will deny, viz. That the World exifts, well then this World that now exifts has either produced itfelf, or has been from Eternity, not produced or is produced by another, and that either of fomewhat pre-exifting, or of Nothing: If the latter holds, it is created, for Creation is but a Production of Something out of Nothing. Now to enforce this Argument let us briefly confider its Parts, and 1. that the World did not produce it felf appears from what has been before obferved : For then it would be and not be at the fame Time, which is impoflible from the Nature of Things. And 2dly that it did not exift from Eternity, the following Particulars demonftrate

rft. Eternity is an Infinity, which a finite World is uncapable of: If the Atheift affirms the World to be infinite, he may be eafily confuted from the Parts of the World, which are either infinite or finite; if they be faid to be infinite, then then there are many Infinites and by Confequece none, which is abfurd; each Part would have all the Perfection. of the Parts joyned with it, or not: If yea, then they would not be different, but one and the fame, which our Eyes beholding the Parts of the World prove to be falfe, if nay, then it would not be infinite, but finite, and if the Parts of the World, be finite how can it felf be infinite, can finite Caufes produce an infinite Effect? No furely! that is contrary to the Nature and Reafon of Things.

2. If the World exifted from Eternity, then an infinite Number of Years, which Eternity implies, must neceffarily have preceeded this Day, and feeing that Number could never have been compleat, by confequence this Day could never fucceed, but we fee it does fucceed; And

3. From the Supposition of the Worlds Eternity it would follow, that something can be added to what is infinite, & therefore that there is an infinite which is not infinite, which is Ridiculous! For is not Eternity an infinite Duration, and yet according to the aforefaid Hypothefis, Years, Months and Days are added to it; from which it follows, that infinite can be more than infinite, inafinuch as the World which was before one Thousand Years agone infinite in Duration, is now older, therefore it cannot be that the World should exist from Eternity.

4. The Corruptibility of the Parts of the World, proves that it is not eternal, for what exifts externally exifts of it felf, and fo exifts neceffarily, and thus is not liable to Corruption. That which borrows its Being of no other needs not & fo depends not upon any other for the Continuation of its exiftence, for that no other can deftroy. But we fee the Cafe is contrarywife with the Parts of the World, and therefore it is not eternal. It must neceffarily be acknowledged fays  $M_2$  "Lucretius " Lucretius, that the World had a Beginning, otherwife those "Things which are in their own Nature corruptible, had ne-" ver been able from all Eternity, to have held out against " those forcible and violent Assaults, which in an infinite Du-" ration must have happened." I add, without the superintendance of an Almighty Being.

5. If the World was eternal, " How comes it to pass, fave " Lucretius, that the Poets fpeak of nothing before the Tro-" jan and Theban Wars?" Was there nothing memorable done in infinite Ages worthy to communicated to Posterity, or could they find no Ways in that vaft Space, to effect this till of late? How improbable are thefe Things? It is certain that divers profitable Inventions have been of late Years found out, fuch as Printing, the Gun, the Vertue of the Loadstone, and divers other Particulars; what fhould be the Reafon that no Genius in infinite Ages should luckily hit upon these before, if the World was Eternal? Had not Men the fame Incitements to feek after fuch Inventions before as now? And to fay that Men of late Ages have more Wit than a fuppos'd infinite Number of Predeceffors, is too great and groundlefs a Compliment upon the prefent Generation, and fome few that have preceeded it. But a

3d. Argument is this, The World is preferved to this Day, therefore God exifts: For what is the Confervation of the World, but a continued Creation? with this Difference only, that the one includes a newnefs of exifting, which the other excludes. If the Atheift fhould deny that the World is preferved, and fay, that it endures only, as we fay our God endures, without anothers Support: In anfwer to which we fay, that it endures indeed but by Prefervation, and that becaufe it was produced by another, as has been before proved: And therefore the Difference between the Duration of of God and the World is very vaft; God is fimply of himfelf, and therefore the Firft, and fo an independant Being, who needs not, and cannot receive Support from any other: Whereas the World is from another, and therefore muft be preferved by him to whom it owes its Original. The World muft be either preferved by it felf or by another; not by it felf, that which could not give to it felf a Being, cannot preferve the Being it has received from another; and therefore it muft be preferved by another, and who can this other be, but he who gave it its Exiftence? But if it was any other Thing that without doubt would be a Part of the World, and thus a Part would preferve the whole which is abfurd!

Surely that which preferves a Part muft needs preferve the whole; moreover feeing there are in the World divers Parts which are not only of a different kind, but contrary to each other, fuch as Fire and Water, &cc. which do contend againft one another with all their Strength, what could keep them from deftroying each other, but the Power of their Almighty Former ? A

4th. Argument for the Exiftence of a God may be drawn from the Government of the World. Here we prefuppole what no Atheift will deny, viz. that the World confifts of various Parts, not only different but contrary, and many of them irrational, which neverthelefs harmonioufly concur to promote their own particular Perfection, and the general Good of the whole Univerfe, and that without their Defign, and contrary to their Nature, of Neceflity therefore they muft needs be governed, either by themfelves or another, not by themfelves, for many of them want Reafon and cannot be their own Guides, therefore it muft be by another, and who is he that is fit for fuch a fpacious and important Province, but an omniprefent, omnicient, omnipotent potent and infinitely wife Being? When we behold the various Wheels of a Watch mutually helping on one Defign, by their contrary Motions which they know not, we prefently conclude, that fome Workman has been there, and has formed the Wheels and adjusted them to their proper Diftances, and by a Spring has put the Whole in Motion. an Atheist should say, that the former Order refults from the peculiar Nature of the Parts, we may eafily reply and fay, but from whence is that Nature, Wifdom and Order? When we behold the Harmony and Subferviency of the feveral Parts of the Creation to each other, we may justly use the Pfalmift's Exclamation, and fay, How manifold are thy Works O God, in Wifdom haft thou made them all ! The Sun enlightens and warms the Earth, which elfe would be but a melancholy and barren Place. The pregnant Clouds thed their balmy Dews and gentle Drops, which prepare the Earth to produce its Fruits, which would be mar'd if the Water defcended from the Clouds in Torrents, which it naturally tends to! And what lefs than Omnipotence, can fupport those vast Cifterns of Water, I mean the Clouds, without any Stronger Prop than the thin Air? Surely if they were left to their natural Gravity only, they would foon innundate the World with a fecond Deluge ! Dr. Bates observes respecting the Situation of the Sun, " That if it was nearer the Earth " it would forch its Surface by too near an Approach, and " if farther off, it would be oppreffed by fuch a multiplicity of " cold moist Vapours as would obstruct its Fruitfulness." Its alfo obfervable, that the Sun by its exhaling Vertue, fupplies from the Sea and moift Places of the Earth the empty Bottles of the visible Heavens, that thus by this constant Circulation, the Earth being refreshed, the Meads may laugh, the Fields be adorn'd with a grateful Verdure ; and indeed the Winds are no lefs remarkable for their manifold Ufefulnefs, fulnefs, in carrying the ponderous Clouds to their Places, Veffels to their Ports, and in refreshing the Earth and the various Animals that live on its Surface, this serves as a Fan to affwage the summers fultry Heat !

And does not the natural Inftinct of acting in a different Manner, which we behold in various Animals, give further Light and Force to this Argument? e.g. The more fierce and formidable, fuch as the Lyon, Bear, &c. who could eafily devour Men, fly from them, and inhabit Defart Places of their own accord, while the more ufeful Animals fuch as the Horfe, the Ox, &c. being ignorant of their Strength to refift, are tame and eafily jubmit themfelves to the Rule of weaker Men. With what furprifing Sagacity does the Bird build her Neft, the Spider frame its Web, the Bee form its numerous Repositories to receive and preferve the Sweets which with much Diligence he extracts from the opening Flowers? With what prudent careful Pro-vidence, does the Ant lay up her Winter-Store before its approach? And likewife the Squirrels, and yet these Creatures act without Reafon or Defign, must it not then necesfarily follow, that there is a divine Government.

But methinks it ftill illuftrates this Argument, when we confider that the Wants of all Creatures are fupply'd: Creatures can no more provide for themfelves than they could make themfelves, and who is equal to this Task, but an all fufficient infinite Being? If there was no Providence, how could this be effected? And can there be aProvidence without a God? Is it not owing to this all governing Providence, that the weakeft Schemes are fometimes crowned with Succefs, and the best concerted prove abortive? Is not the Wifdom of the Wife fometimes deftroyed, and the Understanding of the Prudent brought to nought? Surely the Race is not to the Swift, nor the Battle to the Strong ! Surely Promotion comes neither from from the Eaft, nor from the West, nor from the South; but God is the Judge, be putteth down one and setteth up another !

How amazing is the Conduct of Providence, in implanting in all Animals, rational and irrational, a natural Care for the Provision of their Young Ones, which even the most Savage fort do furprifingly manifeft? and do they not generally bring forth their Young in the Spring? A Seafon when they are most likely to be provided with Food for their Support ! 'To what elfe than a divine Providence can we afcribe the Provision of the Breaft, the Udder with its Milk for their Suftenation ? with their natural Inftinct without Infernction, to feek Nourishment that Way? And it fhould not be paffed over with Silence and Negligence, that those 'Things which are absoutely necessary for the Support of Man's Life are common, and may be attained by the poorer Sort by Labour and Industry, while curious Dainties, fit for the Support of Luxury, are coffly and beyond their Reach.

Is it the Effect of Chance that fome of the Beafts of the Field have Weapons for their Defence? And that others have a natural Swiftnefs to fly from Danger, and that there be Caverns provided for their Security? Is it meer Chance that the Earth is ftor'd with a variety of Medicines and Man enducd with a Capacity to use them for his Cure?

If the Sea, as fome fay, be higher than the Earth, what is it that puts Boundaries to its proud Surges and prevents a fecond Inundation, but divine Providence? And what but this keeps the Elements about us, and Humours within us in a due Temperature? What but this that reftrains the Wrath of our Enemics and preferves us from Ruin? If Hurtful Infects were not deftoy'd by each other, or by the Cold Seafon of the Year, would not they by their Numbers devour the Fruits of the Earth and deftroy us? Now what what can we afcribe this Prevention to, but a fuperintendant Providence?

5. Another Argument for the divine Existence may be drawn from the visible Heavens, which do declare the Glory of God. With what inimitable Pomp and stately Magnificence does the azure Canopy sparkle forth its various and amazing Glories! The Motion of the Heavenly Luminariesis fo regular and steady, that an Astronomer may tell for a Hundred Years to come their Eclipses to a Minute! But from whence does this Order this Law proceed, but fromfome infinitely Wife and Almighty Legislator ?

6. Another Argument may be deriv'd from both the Parter of the Compound Man. And

Ift. From the Body. How curious and beautiful is its Structure? Infinitely exceeding all Works of Art! Surely we are fearfully and wonderfully made! While the Brutal Herds have a prone and grovelling Afpect, the Countenance of Man is erect, to contemplate the Heavens, where his Creator has his chief Seat of Refidence! To fignify as it were, where his chief delight flould be fixt, and that he flould as much exceed the lower Creation in the noblenets of his Sentiments and Affections, as he does in the naturalform of his Afpect! This the Poet expresses elegantly,

Jussit et eresios, ad Sydera tollere vultus.

The furprifing variety of Eeatures in the fmall compass of the Face, where all the Parts are the fame, manifelds the infinite Wisdom of the Architect! Without this we cannot know each other : And thus all the focial Offices on which human Happiness depends, must forever expire and terminate ! The rudest Barbarities and Impieties must ensue, and Men degenerate into a Herd of Beasts!

How excellent are all the Parts of the human Body fitted. by their Form and Situation for Beauty, and all the Ules defign'd by an intelligent Mind? The mitplacing of any Part, would make it as Monftrous as Ufeles! Galen justly observed, " That if a Perfon fludied an hundred Years to place any Part " of the human Body in a different Situation, that it could " not be done without marring its Beauty and Service." But there are fome Parts of this Structure, which efpecialy challenge our Admiration! The Brain in its mazy Labyrinths, which is the Scat of the Nerves and fpring of Motion, who can enough admire or fufficiently explain ! The Eye with its various Coats, Humours and optick Nerve, by which our Sight is form'd. The Ear, with its Tymponum or Daum, on which the diffurbed Particles of Air vibrate and Caufe a diverfity of Sounds. The quick and conftant Circulation of the Blood by the Diaftole and Syftole of the Heart, through certain large Veins or openings and fluttings of it, Caules Pulfation and preferves the natural Heat ! When this grand Wheel is broken at the Ciftern, the Stomack ceates to digeft its Food, the whole Body grows co'l and livid, and all the Offices of Nature fail. How different is that natural Heat which the Circulation of the Blood promotes from all others? Fire will gradually confume itfelf, and all others which only have acquired Heat, will oon grow Cold; whereas the former is preferved many Years without Wafting the Parts of the Body; and leaft the Heart thould be over heated by its continual Motion, which would be prejudicial to the whole frame, to preferve a due Temperature, does not the Lungs ferve as a Fan to cool and refrigerate it ?

And do not the Union of the Body with the Soul, a Being of a different Nature, deferve our Wonder, and manifeftly point to an infinitely Wife and Almighty Being as its Author ? And thus I am led to fpeak of the other Particular before mentioned, or the other Part of the compound Man, and indeed the moft noble, viz. the Soul, whofe excellent Powers and Capacities, if we do attentively furvey, we fhall be obliged to conclude, that it is God that has formed the Spirit of Man within him. How railed and noble a Faculty is the Human Mind, which can form Ideas of Things above its own Nature ? It reflects on Things paft, and this incites either our Pleafure or Regret. It aims at the Profpect of Things to come, and thus it alarms our Fears or fwells our Hopes ! It beholds the Connection between Caufes and their Effects, Premifes and their Conclution : It differents the moral Beauty and excellency of Virtue and Religion !

The Will, through the Aids of divine Grace, can choose what is Good and refuse what is Evil. The Soul by its Reasonings evidently appears to be an Immaterial, and therefore an immortal Substance; for it is impossible from the nature of Things, that meer Matter, however modified and put in Motion, can produce rational Reflections: And if so, then it must be formed by an All-wife and Almighty Being who is God.

The Soul, by Reafon of its fpiritual and rational Nature, is capable of moral Government and Religion, it defires after God and indeed can be only Happy in the Enjoyment of him. And the immenfe and boundlets defires of the Soul evidently argue the reality of a Supream Being : All the Enjoyments of Senfe, in their greateft Affluence and Variety, do not fatisfy the cravings of our vaft Defires! We ftill reach after a more immenfe and adequate Good! Then either there must be an infinite Being, in whofe Embraces we may attain the compleat Happinets we in vain feek elfewhere, or elfe Nature has done fomething in vain, contrary to Ariflotle's just Maxim: And thus the most noble Creature of this N 2 lower World would be made in its primitive Conftitution more miferable than the Brute-Creation, which is very abfurd.

7. Another Argument to prove the Being of a God, may be the exact Accomplifhment of certain Prophefies concerning future contingent Events: This the Mind of Man cannot perceive without the Affiftance of Divine Revelation : It's true we may judge that neceflary Caufes will produce Effects according to their Nature, but respecting Arbitrary, we cannot determine. Now that feveral fuch Prophefies have come to pafs, the Scriptures affert, which ought to pafs for a credible Hiftory, till the Atheift proves the Contrary.

8. The Miraculous Works that have been wrought, prove the Being of a God; for who but he can give check to the courfe of Nature, and controul it's fixed Laws and Order? And that fuch have been wrought is not only evident from the Scriptures, but Prophane Writings. So that he must needs be a Sceptick, and deny all human Testimony that denies this Fact! But to proceed, 9. The Testimony of Confcience proves the Being of a

9. The Teftimony of Confcience proves the Being of a God. Are not Men fometimes terrified with the Dread of Punifhment, becaufe of those Evils which no human Eye has feen them Commit, and which no human Law takes cognizance of? and these uneasiness they are not able totally to extinguish by all the Arts of Diversion they can invent ! Neither can any worldly Grandeur exempt therefrom, witness Nero and Caligula. And on the Contrary what a fweet Calm posses pious Bosons in the Way of Duty? which make them fearless of evil Tidings ! add to this, that the universal Content of all ages gives Testimony to the divine Existence. Tully and divers others affert, "That " there is no Nation fo barbarous but what has acknowledged a " Diety, " Deity. Some indeed were very groß in their Idolatry, worfhip-"ing Leeks and Onions, as Juvenal in his Satyrs obferves. Now altho' those unhappy Nations were miserably mistaken as to the Object of Worship, yet their unanimous concurrence in paying divine Adoration to fomething, shews their acknowledgment of a Deity.

If it be Objected, That History informs us of some speculative Atheists that have been, and of some Countries in Africa and America that have no religious Worship.

Anfw. The Number of fuch who have been recond fpeculative Atheifts has been very fmall, befides by the fear they have fometimes difcovered, they have plainly intimated, that they rather wifhed there was no God, than believed there was none; and fuppofing they did, it will not weaken the Argument : Becaufe fome are born Fools will it follow that Reafon is not natural to Man? As to the other Particulars, the Facts are not fufficiently attefted, thofe that have afferted them have not had familiarity enough with the Indians to know their Notions of a Deity : But fuppofing fome fhould fo far degenerate into Brutes, as to lay afide the Ufe of their Reafon in this Point, it cannot conclude againft the Majority who act rationally, and argue from the Principles of Reafon they are endowed with, the Exiftence of a Deity !

If it be objected, that God is not because he is not seen. Anfiv. This is fordid : Then the Soul is not, because it is not seen, and thus these Men are Brutes in their own Account.

If it be again objected, That the Wicked are prospersus and the Righteous afflicted.

Anfw. What then, is not God a Sovereign, may not he do what he will with his own? But if it be further confidered. fidered, that outward Profperity does not prevent inward Terror, and that good Men are made better by Afflictions, that divine Joy is confiftent with them, and that there will be a future Judgment, the Objection evanishes.

But fome do further Object, That the Notion of a God is a piece of State Policy, invented for the Benefit of Civil Gevernment, propagated by Tradition, and supported by Fear.

Anf. But who was the Man, or fet of Men, that invented this, and when and where did they live? Or when was the World without all Belief of a Deity? Here the Atheift is nonpluft! If the great Men of the Earth had invented the Notion of a God, is it reafonable to fuppofe that they themfelves would be fubject to the Terrors of it, as others have been? And if the Belief of a God was a human Invention, how comes it to be fo univerfally received, and that without the Methods of Force? And why was the Impoffure never difcovered in fo long a Tract of Time?

It is likewife unreafonable to fuppofe that the Belief of a Deity has been propagated only by Tradition, for it is bottomed on the higheft Reafon, has univerfally obtained, and continued in all the Changes of Time and Revolutions of Nations; whereas Notions received with implicit Faith by Tradition, are not grounded on Reafon; are not univerfally received, but liable to change and mutation! It's likewife equally ablard to fuppofe, that the Fear of Punifhment fhould give rife to the Belief of a Deity: For why fhould Men be afraid of Punifhment for fecret-Crimes, if there was no God to punifh? Surely their Fear fuppofes a God, and is the Effect of this Perfwation. And how then can the Effect produce its Caufe? Not to add that the primary Notion we have of God is, that be is a good and lovely Being. The fearful Apprehentions of his Vengeance are but fecondary and the Fruit of Guilt,

What has been observed shews us the folly of Atheism, both Speculative and Practical ! But this appears more par-ticularly in the inftances following ; how ridiculous is the Epicurian Account of the Original of the World, viz. That this beautiful Structure should spring from the fortuitous Concourfe of Atoms in an immense Space ! It is as likely, as Tully observes, " That all the Materials of a magnificent " Edifice should of their own accord meet and unite together." " How long (fays a learned Man) might a Perfon jumble a " for of Letters together, or fling them on the Ground, be-" fore they would fall into an exact Poem; yea or fo much as " make a good Difcourfe in Profe?" The fpeculative Atheift likewife shews his folly in requiring upon the one fide, more evidence for Things than they are capable of ! He afks mathematical Demonstration in moral and religious Matters, which can only be proved by moral Arguments and credible Teftimony; their Nature admiting no other kind of Proof: But on the other fide helabours to believe by implicit Faith, against Reason and Argument, that the Belief of a God has been only propogated by Tradition, but cannot Account for his Notion.

Again the Atheift's folly appears in this, " That he pre-" tends to know certainly what no Man can be certain of, viz. " that there is no God. If he is not certain, how foolifh is it " to deny and defpife fuch a Being as God is! But how from " the nature of Things can a Man be certain of a meer Ne-" gative, unlefs it implies a Contradiction, which the Being of " a God does not. To profefs certainty here, is in other Words, " to pretend to the Knowledge of all Things that are or can be; " which is foolifhly arrogant with a Witnefs.

"Further, there is this great Contradiction in the denial of a God, viz. He afferts that to be impossible which yet he must grant to be possible. For if there is no God already, its " it's impossible now there should be One, because Eternity is. " essential to the Idea of a God. And yet the Atheist must " grant it possible that there should be such a Being, who " hath all possible Perfection, whom we call GOD."

Again, as Atheism deprives a Man of Happinels in the next World, so it robs him of Comfort in this. For as it is incontestably evident, "that Man cannot be his own Happi-"nels, he cannot fatisfy his own Desires or ward off the E-"vils he is inviron'd with; so his principal Support amidst the "numerous Disquietudes of Life, is Hopes of Protection and "Happinels from this Supream Being. This Atheism cuts "entirely off, and so shuts up the chiefest Spring of Support "and Sweetnels.

" Once more, the Atheist flews his folly in contending a-" gainst the devout Man in this Instance, upon unequal " grounds, for he ventures his everlasting Interests; whereas " the religious Man ventures only the loss of his Lust and some " (hort liv'd inconveniencies. He is better in all Respects " without his. Lufts, they are but a difease which mar the " the true Comfort of Life; and as for other inconveniences, " the Peace of his Mind and Expectation of future Happi-" nefs will enable him to comport with them comfortably, fo " that he is at least upon a par with the Atheist as to the com-" forts of this Life: And after Death he is as well of as the "Atheist if there be no God, but if there be a God he is " infinitely better of. If the Arguments for and against the " Being of a God were equal, yet the Danger is so unequal " that Prudence would incline us to choofe the Affirmative, " and make that the Measure of Life.

I need not Mention how defructive atheiftical Principles are to all the Interefts of Society. They open the Elood-gates of Injuffice and Prophaneness and incite Men to fin without Controle! As there are many Evils prejudicial dicial to Society, which no human Laws can fufficiently provide againft. If the Reftraints of Religion'be renioved, we lie open to a thousand Wrongs and Infults, especially where the Transgreffor has hopes of secrefy; and therefore while the Atheift suggests that the Belief of a God is a Trick of the State, he implicitly acknowledges, to the Honour of Religion, that it is necessary to the Government of Mankind. And without Government, Reason will inform us, that the wildest Barbarities would be committed, and Scenes of Blood and Defolation opened !

But is not the practical Atheift still a greater Fool than the Speculative, it possible, who pretends to believe a God and yet lives as if there was none! Such Perfons bid defiance to Reason and Confcience in Matters of the greatest Confequence. By their Lives they labour to confute their Faith, and rush into Damnation with their Eyes open !

Let us therefore Brethren be intreated to labour to get a more full Perfuation and deep Senfe of the Exiftence of a God upon our Minds, and of the Account which we muft quickly render to him of our prefent Stewardship. To this End let us think on the Arguments that have been offered. Let us oppose the Temptations of Satan to the contrary. Let us behold these three great Leaves of the Volumn of Creation, viz. the Heavens, Earth and Sea with their Contents, and confider, their immensity and admirable Structure!

Let us look into the facred Oracles, every Page of which proclaims a God, by reading of which Junius was convinced of his Atheifin. Let us look up to God by Prayer. Let us carefully avoid whatfoever tends to Atheifin. Among others, let us avoid thefe evil Principles, 1ft. That a Man may be faved in his Religion be it what it will: This the Apoftle fpeaks against Eph. iv. 14, 15. That we be not henceforth toffed about with every Wind of Doctrine, and the Prophet O Micab iv. 5. And 2dly. That the divine Providence does not watch over every Thing, yea even the moft minute, and efpecially all the Actions of Men, punishing the Evil and rewarding the Good. And 3dly. That the Soul is not immortal.

And as we fhould avoid corrupt Principles, fo likewife evil Practices, which tend to blind the Mind and harden the Heart and provoke the Almighty to give up Perfons to be deluded by the Devil : The Law of Sin, which is ftrengthned by the Practice of it, inclines Perfons to hate the Law of God, and by Confequence the Law-giver, and hence they are inclined to queftion, difpute and deny his Being, from all which may the good Lord deliver us all. Amen.

SERMON V.

EXODUS, iii. 13, 14.

And Mofes faid unto God, behold, when I come unto the Children of Ifrael, and shall fay unto them, the God of your Fathers hath fent me unto you; and they shall fay to me, what is his Name? What (hall I lay unto them?

And God faid unto Moses, I AM THAT I AM: And he faid, thus shalt thou fay unto the Children of Ifrael, I AM bath fent me unto you.

N these Words, we have an Account of three Things, 1. Moses's undertaking an Embaffy to Egypt : Behold when I come unto the Children of Ifrael, and fhall (ay unto them, the God of Your Fathers hath fent me unto you. " Tho' Mofes was fenfible, of his unworthinefs of the Ho-" nour of fuch an Embaffy, and of his inequality to the " Task: He was well aware that he was not, Par negotio, " yet being call'd of God, he ventures, and well he might, "modeft Beginnings are good Prefages."

2dly. We have an Account of a Difficulty that Mofes ftarts, namely this, and they shall fay to me what is his Name? They will enquire, either from Unbelief to pofe me, they will be fcrupulous, and apt to cavil, and bid me produce my Commflion; or they will enquire out of carnal Curiofity, respecting the Divine Effence, for a Name that may represent it, or they will enquire for Information, doubtlefs they are grown ignoran norant by their hard Bondage, want of Teachers, and lofs of Sabaoths, and need to be told the first Principles of Religion. Now Mofes was anxious to know what he should answer. All that undertake any important Task, should confider the Difficulties before Hand, and endeavour to get suitable Instruction to manage in them. Thus did Mofes. But

3d. We have an Account in our Text, of the Removal of this Difficulty; and God faid unto Moles, I AM THAT I AM; and he faid, thus shalt thou fay unto the Children of Ifrael, I AM bath fent me unto you. This explains his Name Jebovah, and fignifies 1. That God is incomprehensible. Hereby bold and curious Enquiry's after God's Being and effential Name are cenfur'd. And in effect God fayeth, ask not after my Name, feeing it is wonderful, Jud. xiii. Do we ask what is God ? Let it fuffice us to know; that he is what he is, what he ever was, and ever will be, That he is faithful and true to all his Promifes, and not a Man that he flou'd lye. But 2. The aforefaid Name fignifies, that God is Selfexisting and independant, he has his Being of himfelf, and has no Dependance upon any other. This the best of Creatures cannot afcribe to itfelf, for it is by Grace that it is, what it is: 31 God's Eternity is also hereby fignified, forthe Words may be thus translated. I fhall be what LAM, and indeed God's Eternity follows neceffarily, from his Selfexistence. He that has borrow'd his Being from no other can never cease to be; for what is able to deflroy his Existence : And 4. The Immutability of God, is alfo fignified by the aforefaid Words, I AM; THAT I AM. I shall be what I am; I shall be, what I shall be, or I am what I shall be. God is the fame Yesterday to Day and for ever. In discourfing upon this Subject; I shall first speak of the Names, of God. And,

П.,

II. Of the particular Attributes, which are fignified by that Name affumed by the Almighty in our Text. And,

I. I am to confider the Names of God. It is by the Names and Attributes of God, that we come to an imperfect Knowledge of his Effence or Being, indeed the Detign of Names, is to give us fome Idea of the Things they are impos'd upon, they declare their Natures and peculiar Property's, whereby they differ from others, which may be more juftly apply'd to the Names of God than to any other, becaufe they have been devis'd not by ignorant Creatures, but by an infinitely wife God, who only knows himfelf perfectly.

It is true, the Effence of God being incomprehensible, cannot be fully represented by any Name, and hence is Solomon's Query, Prov. xxx. 4. What is his Name, and what is bis Sons Name if thou canst tell?

And inafinuch as God is a most fingular Being, by his Nature most diffinct from all others; therefore he needs not an appelative Name, whereby Species in the fame Kind are diffinguished; or a Proper Name, by which individuals of the fame Species are diffinguished. Nevertheless in Love and Condescention to our Weakness, he is pleas'd to ascribe Names to himself, that so we may be the better enabled to diffinguish him from Creatures and false Gods, and attain clearer Notions of his Being and Perfections.

Now the Name of God in Scripture, Sometimes fignifies 1. Himfelf, (Pf. v. 11.) 2. fometimes all that respects God, e. g. his Attributes, (Ex. xv. 3.) his Commands, (Deut. xviii. 19.) his Worfhip, (AEt. xxi. 13.) yea CHRIST himfelf, who does not only carry the Name of God in him, but brings us to the Knowledge of God the Father, (Ex. xxiii. 19. John v. 24.) but 3. It more properly denotes those Words, by which the Effence of God, or fomething like it is represented. Farther 110 Different Acceptations & Distinctions of God's Names.

Farther the Names of God, are either Effential or Perfonal. The Effential are fuch as thefe, Jebovah, Theos: The perfonal Elohim, Father, Son, Spirit. Again the effential Names of God are either proper or figurative; the latter are afcrib'd to God, either metonimically, thus he is faid to be our Help, Light, Strength, or metaphorically, when he is call'd our Sun and Shield.

The only proper and incommunicable Name of God is Jebovab, by this he will be known to all Generations, and the Glory of this, he will not give to any Creature, the Meaning of which has been before explain'd, in fpeaking upon the Words I AM.

The Name Elohim is plural, from which fome argue a Trinity of Perionsin the Godhead. "Some think it is compounded of Words, that fignify Strong, and has favore becaufe God havingmade Men by his Strength, binds them to his Worfhip as it were by an Oath."

The most usual Name of God, in the New Testament is Theos, which is faid to refer to Elohim " in the Old, and to ex-" prefs its Meaning." This Word is deriv'd of Verbs, which fignify to behold and dispose, because God beholds and disposes of all Things according to his own good Pleasure.

Here it may be observ'd, that all the Names of God, befides Jelsovals, tho' in strict propriety, they belong to the Almighty only, yet improperly, and by way of Analogy or Refemblance, they are ascrib'd to Creatures.

What has been faid upon this Head may excite us to beware of prophaning the Names of God either in our Hearts by Ignorance, or Forgetfulnefs, or by our Lips by a rash and irreverent use of them, or by our Lives thro' impiety. The great God, has faid, that he will not hold them guiltless that take his Name in vain! Those that name the Name of God, ought to depart from all Iniquity. On the contrary, we should declare and profess God's Name call upon it, fear and reverence it, and confide in it. AEIs ix. 14. 2 Tim. ii. 19. Joel ii. 32. Pro. xviii. 10. The Name of the Lord is a strong Tower, the Righteous run to it and are safe !

But I proceed to the 2d. general Head, which was to dif-courfe, upon those particular Attributes of God, which are fignify'd by the Name I AM or Jebovab. Here more general-ly it may be observ'd, that the Attributes of God are fo call'd, because we ascribe them to him! They are the effen-tial Property's of God, by which we attain some Knowledge of his Being: or in other Words, they are that one infinite Perfection of God, which thro' the Weakness and Finiteness of our Understandings, we conceive by various Acts, as 'it were by Parts, just as when we would fee the whole Ho-rizon, which is but one, we use various Acts of seeing, looking to the East, West, North, South, until we see the whole! All the divine Attributes are in God, but one pure and fimple AEt. It is impossible that that Being, who is ab-folutely the first, should be composed of different Things for this would suppose a Composer prior to the First, which is impossible ! Neither can an infinite Being confist of different Things: For these Things must be either infinite or finite. Many infinites imply a Contradiction, neither can many finite Causes produce an infinite Effect: Neither can an immutable and incorruptible Being confift of different Things, for where one Thing is compounded with another it may be feparated from it, and thus Change and Corruption would enfue!

Some Divines do diftinguish the Attributes of God, into those that are communicable & incommunicable, the communicable Attributes of God are fuch as we find some Shadow of in intelligent Beings; of this Kind, are his Holiness, Justice, Goodness, Goodnefs, Truth. We find fomething like these in Creatures, tho' with vast Disproportion! in God they are infinitely, but in Creatures in a limited and finite Manner.

But the incommunicable Attributes of God, are fuch as we find no Shadow of in Creatures. Of this Kind are his Independency, Eternity, Immutability and Incomprehensibility. These shew how infinitely distant God is from all Creatures in respect of Dignity and Excellency, and how he is oppos'd to every Imperfection in them.

Now to affift our Conception of the divine Attributes, these Things following may be observ'd.

1. That feeing all the Attributes of God conftitute but one fimple Act, as has been before obferv'd, therefore no Degrees of Inequality are to be admitted among them inwardly, and on God's Part, all and fingular of them import infinite Perfection, which admits not of more or lefs, notwithftanding it may be, that outwardly one Attribute may extend itfelf to more Objects than another, in which Senfe the Underftanding may be faid to be greater than the Will. Or it may act with more Intenfenefs upon one Object than another, in which Senfe God loves the Elect more than the Reprobate. And,

2. Much lefs can any Contrariety be admitted among them, if any fuch Thing feems to appear between Mercy and vindicative Juffice, this is altogether in the Object, about which the uniform Perfection of God, becaufe of its own Infinity, is occupied various Ways, or it is to be aferib'd to our different Ways of conceiving of the divine Perfection. And,

3. When we think upon the Divine Attributes we must remove far from them, all that Imperfection, which cleaves to fuch like Properties in Creatures, and conceive that the remaining Perfection is attended with the highest Eminence in God. 4.

4. All the divine Attributes do truly belong to God, he is not only in respect of our Thought, but in Regard of the Condition of his own Nature, wife, good, juft. And they belong to him not in the concrete only as they do to Creatures, but in the Abfiract. He is not only wife, just, good, but Wisdom, Justice, Goodness. In Creatures they are secondarily, by way of Quality superaded to their Being, but in him they are primarily without Derivation, and therefore his very Being it felf. But here, before I proceed to a more particular Confideration of the divine Attributes, I shall offer a Word of Improvement, from what has been faid.

Methinks the general Theory of divine Perfections ferves to ftrengthen our Faith exceedingly, in respect of the Trinity: Seeing that the incommunicable Attributes of God which coinceede with the divine Effence, are not only aferib'd to the Father, but to the Son and Holy Spirit.

And with what Firmness and Freedom may we trust in God, and approach to his Throne of Grace feeing there is fuch a Concourse of Perfections in him, viz. of Wildom, Power, Goodnefs, &c. of which every one is infinite, eternal, and immutable!

What powerful Incitements do the divine Attributes Minister to our Praise, Reverence, and Obedience, of and to the Sacred Trinity? And how happy is that People who have fuch a great and glorious God for their Portion and Inheritance? Well might the Pfalmift fay, Bleffed is that Peo-ple whofe God is the Lord, Pfal. xxxiii. 12. When God is curs then all his Attributes are ours, and engaged to promote our Benefit (Rom. viii. 31.) And his immutability affures us, that he will remain ours to all Eternity, (Mal. iii. 6.) His Truth is inviolable, and therefore we may with unfhaken Confidence, reft on his Promifes, which cannet frie! Fil.

His Love and Goodnei's may calm us in all Adverfity, bccaufe they will caufe it to iffue in our Benefit. His Wifdom and Power enable him to do for us all that we need, and his Mercy inclines him to forgive our Sins, and to exert the other Attributes of his Nature in our Behalf.

But I proceed to a more particular Confideration, of thefe Attributes of God which are fignified by the Name I AM, the first of which is his Incomprehenfibility.

The Effence of God as it is in itself, is inacceffible to our Understandings. The Israelites enquire of Mofes, and Mofes of God, Concerning aName which might represent his E/fence, and while the Almighty answers, I AM THAT I AM, reproving the Folly of the Question, what does it fignify, but that his Effence is incomprehenfible, and therefore inexpreffible! The fame Thing which Zophar teaches his Friend, in plainer Terms. Job. xi. 7, 8, 9. Canft thou by fearching find out God? Canft thou find out the Almighty unto Perfection? It is as high as Heaven, what canft thou do? Deeper than Hell, what cans thou know? The Measure thereof is longer than the Earth, and breader than the Sea! And hence he is faid to dwell in Light inaccessible, which no Mortal Eye hath feen nor can fee. 1 Tim. vi. 16. neither with the Eyes of the Body, or of the Mind ; and hence he is call'd the invisible God, I Tim. i. 17. Therefore the Almighty deny'd to Moses a Sight of his Face, while in the mean Time he shew'd him his back Parts. By all our Contemplations we rather know what the Effence of God is not than what it is. Now the Reafons of the Point under our prefent Confideration, are these following, viz. 1. The Being of God is infinite and therefore cannot be comprehended by a finite Mind. 2. The Divine Effence is a most pure and fimple Act, void of all Composition, and therefore cannot be pcfitively conceiv'd of; and hence the Apofle calls Jehreah, not not a Substance shining in the Concrete, but Light in the Abstract; and therefore he is not, nor cannot be seen. 3. The Being of God is most simply one, by which it is so different from all Creatures, that it agrees with them in nothing; and therefore no Idea of the divine Effence can be borrow'd from them. And how then can a proper Definition thereof be formed by us.

But it may be objected againft what has been faid under this Head, that the Scriptures informs us, that God has been feen by many of the Saints, particularly by Abraham, Ifaac, and Jacob, Mofes, Ifaiab, and others, Job was perfuaded that with the fame Eyes he fhould fee God, and the Apoftle Paul informs us, I Cor. xiii. 12. that here we fee darkly, but then, meaning in Heaven, we fhall fee Face to Face. The aforefaid Places are to be underftood either of a fymbolical Vision, not of the Effence, but of the Operations of God, under certain Signs, or of the more perfect Knowledge of God, which will be attain'd in the Paradife of God; which in its Perfection shall imitate Sight or Knowledge by it, yea exceed it; but they do not infer the Vision of his Effence.

But that the Meaning of what has been offer'd, may be the better underftood; it is to be obferved that our Difcourfe is not concerning God, but the Effence of God as it is conceiv'd diftinct from his Attributes, or as it is conceived, as fomething fubftracted or as the first Being, which the Attributes perfect. And 2. our Difcourfe is not concerning the Effence of God that it is, for that is many Ways evident; but what it is in itfelf, and not in the Attributes. This our Minds can have no apprehensive or comprehensive Knowledge of, for the Reasons before mentioned. And indeed in this Respect we cannot know the Effence of Angels, or of our own Souis? Is the Divine Effence incomprehenfible, then 1. this fhould reprefs carnal Curiofity which appears in Enquiries about Things too high for us, and inacceffible to us, and about Things we need not to know for Oftentations fake, or fome other mean End, or in bold Sayings about what we underftand not; as for Example, when Perfons fay that the Divine Effence is but a Thought as the Cartefians, fach are wife above what is written, 1. This vain Curiofity is forbidden by God himfelf, Ex. iii. 4, 5. God call'd unto Mofes and faid, draw not nigh bither. Ex. xix. 21. And the Lord faid unto Mofes go down charge the People, left they break thro' unto the Lord to gaze, and many of them perifk. 2. It is a Piece of foolifh Pride to pretend to grafp Infinity. 3. For looking into the Ark, Fifty Thoufand and Threefcore and Ten Men of the Bethfhemites were flain 1 Sam. vi. 19.

2. We fhould be excited to labour to be modest, while we think or fpeak about the Being or Effentials of God, this Modesty should be expressed in the following Particulars, 1. Before we meditate on those Things, we should implore the divine Direction and Illumination, according to David's Example, Pf. cxix. 18. Open thou mine Eyes, that I may behold wondrous Things out of thy Law. 2. We should be poffefs'd with pious Fear and Solicitude while we are occupy'd about fuch Things, in Imitation of Abram, who fooke to God with the deepeft Reverence, (Gen. xxxi. 2.) Neither fhould we fpeak, without confulting the divine Oracles, in Imitation of Moles in our Text, they shall fay unto me, what is his Name, and what shall I fay unto them? In Imitation of Agure (Prov. xxx. 2, 3.) We should confers, that we are more brutish than any Men, and have not attain'd the Knowledge of the Holy! After the Example of the Angels we should as it were cover our Faces; this Modesty God himfelf requires, Levit. x. z. I will be fanctified in them, that that come nigh me. And indeed the Nature of the Thing demands it, that a poor Worm while he is occupy'd about God and divine Things, fhould fludy Modefly. If Mofes out of Reverence to the Place whereon he flood, becaufe it was holy must pull off bis Shoes! How much more than should we express Reverence for God himself with whom we have to do. And indeed the Judgments of God that have been inflicted upon those who have treated divine Things with Irreverence, should excite us to Modesty. But who were thefe? I answer, Korah, Dathan and Abiram were fwallowed up by the Earth alive, Num. xvi. 31, 32. Uzzah was flruck dead, for touching the Ark 2 Sam. vi. 7. many of the Beth-themites were flain for looking into it. 1 Sam. vi. 19. And King Uzziah was fmitten with Leprofie, for medling with the Priefts Office in offering Sacrifice. 2 Chron. xxvi. 16. 20. It may be fome help to our exercifing the aforetaid divine Vertue, if we compare the Majefty of God with our Vilenefs, and ferioufly confider the Infinite diftance of God and divine Things, from our weak Understandings! As also how easy and dangerous it is for us to mistake in Matters of fo great Moment? Job xlii. 7. And it was so that after the Lord bad spoken these Words unto Job, the Lord said unto E-liphaz the Temanite, my Wrath is kindled against thee, and against thy two Friends, for ye have not spoken of me the Thing that is right, as my Servant Job kath.

But I proceed to confider the 2. Attribute of God, which is fignified by the Words I AM, viz. his Self-Exiftence or Independancy. The Almighty by those Words, informs Mofes that he was absolutely in and of himself, not *positive*ly, as tho' he had produced himself, but negatively, because his Being and Perfections were deriv'd of no other; or in other Words, the Almighty by the aforesaid Expression declares himself, to be absolutely the first Being, and intirely ly independent of any other prior Caufe, either Efficient by whom he fhould be; or material of whom he fhould be, or formal by whom he fhould be, what he is; or final to whom as an End he fhould be directed. All Creatures live and move, and have their Beings in and from God, but it is his peculiar Glory, to derive his Being from none.

From the Firstness, Afeity, Self-Existence, and Independance of the Divine Effence or Being, naturally and neceffarily follows, the Independance of all his Attributes e.g.

1. His Goodnefs is independant, he vouchtafes Benefits upon whom, and when he pleafes, his meer Sovereignty alone determines not only the Objects and Time of conferring his Kindneffes, but allo the Kind, Meafure & Duration of them. He hath Mercy upon whom he will have Mercy, nothing without himfelf can influence, far lefs conftrain him: For this would argue Imperfection and Dependance.

2. His Holiners is independent, he hates Sin, not for any Reafons without himfelf, but becaufe of the eternal Contrariety of his Nature thereto.

3. His Power is likewife independent, as he has deriv'd it from none, to he depends upon none in the Exercise there-of. And therefore cannot be control'd by Creatures in his providential Proceedings. He does what he pleases in the Armies of Heaven, and among the Inhabitants of the Earth, and who can start hand, or say to him what does the two of the Wisdom of God is independent, his Wisdom is

4. The Wifdom of God is independent, his Wifdom is not in him, as a Quality added to his Eeing, as it is in Creatures, but it is hundelf, he receives not his Ideas from Objects without himfelf, as Creatures do, in which refpect they are dependent on them; but the Knowledge of God was infinite, before any Creature had a Being. Hence the Royal Prophet enquires with Beauty and Emphasis? Who bath directed the Spirit of the Lord, with rehow took be Council, cil, and who infiructed him in the Path of fudgment? Ifa. xl. 13, 14.

The Scriptures give Teftimony to the Self-Exiftence and Independency of God, Rev. i. 8. I am the Alpha & Omega, the Beginning and the Ending faith the Lord, which is, and which was, and which is to come, the Almighty. The fame is repeated in the Book of the Revelations frequently. And Reafon alfo confirms the aforefaid Truth. Seeing it is abfurd to suppose, that any Thing should be the Cause of itself, for then it must be and not be at the fame Time; and fecing that an infinite Succeffion of Caufes is impoffible, for then the next Caufe which produceth the Effect, would not fubfift, becaule there is no End to Infinity: There must of neceffity be fome first felf-existing Being, which we call God. Now from this Firstness or Self-Existence of God; proceed his Unity, Immutability, Infinity and Simplicity. And I. his Unity. What is absolutely the first Being, must needs be one; for if more fuch be imagin'd, neither will be abfolutely the first, because it does not preceed the other. 2. Immutability; If he is changed, he is changed by another, and that other must be before him, but what can be before him that is abfolutely the First? 2. His Infinity. Whatfoever is limitted, is limitted by another, for nothing can limit itfelf, and its own Perfection, & that other must be before it, but what can be before him who is abfolutely the first ? 4. His Simplicity. Whatfoever is compos'd, is compos'd by one prior to itfelf; but what can be before the First? Again the Independance of God, appears evidently from his producing all Things by his Power. Such Things as he has made must needs depend upon his Power and Pleafure for their Being and Support, now if they depend on him, how can it be that he should depend on them? To suppose the Cause and Effect to be mutually dependant on each other, is to suppose they are mutually deriv'd from each other, which is impossible! Once

Once more, if God be infinitely above the nobleft Creatures, then he cannot depend on them, for dependance argues inferiority. Now that God is above all created Beings, is most manifest. The Nations are but as the Drop of a Bucket, as the fmall Duft of the Balance, yea as nothing and lefs then nothing and Vanity; as the Royal Prophet observes, with noble Pomp of Diction. Is God independent, then 1st. Hence we may learn the Sin and Folly of aferibing this divine Attribute to dependant Creatures! On the Contrary let us conclude that all our Springs are in God, from him all our Bleffings flow; he is the only Source of our Happines, the Foundation of our Hope, the Author and finisher of our Faith. And 2dly. Our inability to lay the Almighty under any Obligation by our Services, feeing he is independent; and for compleatly Happy in himfelf, who hath first given to Lim, fayeth the Apostle Paul and it shall be recomposed to him again ! for of him and thro' him and to him are all Things. Our Goodness extends not to him, fays the Pfelmist, can a Man be profitable unto God, faith Eliphaz, as he that is Wife may be profitable to himfelf, or is it any gain to him that thou makeft thy Ways perfect ? Job xxii. 23.

Cur Goodneis extends not to him, lays the Pjalmill, can a Man be profitable unto God, faith Eliphaz, as he that is Wife may be profitable to himfelf, or is it any gain to him that thou makeft thy Ways perfect? Jeb xxii. 23. 3dly, We may hence learn the Sinfullneis and Danger of oppofing God's Sovereignty, either 1ft. Openly by withing it abolifh'd, (Pfal. 14. 1, and 10, 4.) Or 2dly interpretatively, when Men in the Bufinefs of Predefination, believe that the Grace of God is fulpended upon forefeen Faith and Good Works. Such Perfons do deprive God of his abfolute Sovereignty, and aferibe an Independance to the Creatures Will; and thus they jumble Heaven and Earth together. Or 3dly practically in the following Inftances, 1ft. When Perfons limit God, Pfa, lxxviii 41. Preferibing to him the Time, Manner, and Means, of Deliverance rance, or in a greater or leffer Degree diffrust his Word and Power. Numb. xi. 21, 23. And 2dly, When Perfons by Difobedience difpute the divine Dominion, and ftruggle with him for Independency, after the example of Pha-roh, (Exo. v. 2.) and other ungody Perfons. (Job. xxi. 14.) And adly, when Men will not acquiels in the Decrees and Providences of God, but murmur against him, (Rom. ix. 20.) All those Sorts of Persons, I have now mention'd do endeavour tho' in different Degrees and Modes, to deftroy the Effence of God, which confifts in abfolute Independance, and therefore are Atheifts, or at least partake in an awful degree of Atheifin. All fuch shall find God to be fuch, as they would not have him to be, except they repent he shall be to them a fevere Judge, a confuming Fire, as a Bear bereav'd of her Whelps, They thall find him to be fuch as Phareh, the Atheift of old, found him. Jer. 16. ult. Therefore, behold, I will this once caufe them to know, I will caufe them to know mine Hand and my might, and they shall know that my Name is the Lord. Eut, 4thly, From hence we may learn the comfortable State of those who have a covenant Interest in God. Amidst all the Difficulties of this Prefent Life, do they want the Goods of Fortune, Honour, Wealth, Relations? Are they cover'd with Reproach, and counted the offcourings of the World? Do they want the neceffary fupports of Life, and are their dear Relations Dead? Do they want the Goods of the Body, Health, Peace, Liberty? Are are plaug'd with Enemies, Perfecutors, and tafk Mafters? Do they want the Goods of the Mind, viz. neceffary Wildom, fpiritual Light, and Comfort ? And do their Enemies fometimes lead them Captive? What can in fuch Cafes and in all others of the like Nature, more effectually support and comfort us, then to think, 1st, That God is. By which Argument the Almighty Q

Almighty comforted the Israelites in our Text. And Asaph himself, Psa. lxxiii. 25.26. Whom have I in Heaven but hee? and there is none upon Earth that I defire besides thee. My Flesh and my Heart faileth : But God is the Strength of my Heart and my Portion for ever.

And 2dly, That God is eminently all being, he is omnicient and perfectly knows our wants, he is omnipotent, and can eafily fupply them, in his Hand is Power and Might. He is infinitely Gracious and Merciful, and fo will not finally forfake his poor People, but is inclin'd to relieve them. He is All-fufficient, poffeffing every Thing that ferves to fupply his Peoples Neceffitys, and remove their Miferies ! He is a Sun and Shield, a biding Place from the Wind, &c.

And 3dly. That God is not only to himfelf, but to us All in All, the Author of our Beings and Fountain of every of our Bleffings!

4thly. That he is a Self-Exifting, and by confequence an Independent and Eternal God ! whole Help does not depend on Creatures or Inftruments, and whole Love will never change in any vicifitude of Circumftance, or Succeffion of Duration. I AM THAT I AM, I fhall be THAT I AM. From the aforefaid Confiderations fpring fweet Support and Solace in every immergent, in cafe we do but cloie heartily with God in Covenant, by which he may become ourGod. Jer. xxxi. 33. But in the laft Place. By what has been before obferv'd,

But in the laft Place. By what has been before obferv'd, we fhould be exhorted to perform the following Duties 1ft, We fhould put our Truft in God, and him alone, feeing that he is that one I AM, by his Effence, who by his fovereign and almighty Beck, can command Light to fpring out of Darknefs, Order out of Confufion, and call the Things that are not as tho' they were! Curfed is the Man that truffeth in Man or maketh Flefb his Arm, whoje Breath

Breath is in his Nostrils, who is crushed before the Moth, who changeth with the Wind, and is lighter than Vanity! The great I AM is only worthy of our entire Confidence, his Immenfity and Almightines are only equal to our vaft Defires : His Independent Excellency is only worthy of our fupream Love ; and his Eternity is only parallel to our interminable Duration. He, he, will never fail the believing Expectation of his People! 2dly. Let us deny our Wildom, Will and Power, and fay with our dear Lord, thy Will be done and not mine : Being always mindful that God only is independent and the first mover of all. 3 dly. Let us bumble curfelves before the great I AM, whole Prerogative it is alone to be abfolutely; in Comparison of whom we poor dependent Worms are not, are nothing, and lefs than nothing, as a drop of the Bucket compared with the wast Ocean, and as a little Duft in the Balance compar'd with the whole Globe of the Earth ! 4. We should receive the Word of God, and Ministers of it, with due Reverence and Respect. For this End Mofes, in our Text, was furnished with Credentials, go to the People of Ifrael and tell them, that I AM Laib fent me unto you. Those that despise the faithful Ministers of CHRIST, despise thro' them their Master, and must expect to meet with their Reward in this or the next Life. except they Repent ! No Employment on Earth is attended with more Difficulty, and yet more poorly Rewarded in this Life, than the Ministerial Office ! Many think their Tongues are their own, and that they may foourge them with falle Invectives as they lift; and many, who feem to make Confcience of their other Debts, think they are at Liberty to wrong them and rob them of their promis'd Maintainace, and act accordingly. But 5thly, and finally. Let us be excited to glorify God on Account of his Independency, in Heart, Lip and Life. Let us bow before the Sovereign God, and fubmit ourfelves to his equitable Government and unerring Difpofals, with the greateft Readinefs and humbleft Reverence! Let us extol Jebovab the abfolute Lord of the whole Univerfe, with chearful Acclamations, inceffant and harmonious Hofanna's on the Account of this very venerable Jewel of his Crown! In this Way we may expect to be owned by the Independent Sovereign of Heaven and Earth here, and accepted by him hereafter at the grand and important Advent of the Son of God, when univerfal Nature diffolving in Agony and Confufion, fhall open the moft amazing and tremendous Scene!

SERMON VI.

EXODUS, iii. 14.

And God faid unto Mofes, I AM THAT I AM: And he faid, thus fkalt thou fay unto the Children of Ifrael, I AM hath fent me unto you.

N Difcourfing on this Text you may remember, that in the preceeding Sermon after an Explication of it and more general Obfervations upon the divine Attributes,

I proceeded to speak upon two particulars, namely, the Incomprehensibility and Independency of God, which I apprehended were included in it. And moreover made mention of two others, which I am now to discourse upon, viz. the Eternity and Immutability of God. In speaking upon the Eternity of God, I shall endeavour to explain, confirm and Improve this great Truth. And

ift. The Word Eternity fometimes fignifies, a long fpace of Time that hath both a Beginning and End. Thus he that ferv'd to the Year of Jubilee, is faid to ferve for ever, Ex. xxi. 6. And fo the Ceremonial Laws are faid to be forever, Num. x. 8. 2dly. Sometimes it fignifies a *Dura*tion, which has a Beginning but no End. Thus it is with the Angels and our own Souls. And 3dly. Sometimes it fignifies a Duration without Beginning or End, which is applicable to God only, and diffinguished from the other Significations nifications by redoubling of the Words thus, forever and ever, from everlafting to everlafting.

Various Descriptions are given by different Divines of Eternity. "That is properly Eternal (says. Petavius) which "never had a Beginning nor never can cease to be." "Eter-"nity (say Drexilius, Barlow, and Prideaux) is an ever "present Duration, it is one perpetual Day, which passes not "into what is pass or future." "That is Eternal (says "Zanchy) which wanting Beginning and Ending is still the "fame." Eternity(says Boetius) is a full and perfect Possef-"fion of interminable or everlass Life together and at once."

But the most easy and intelligible Description thereof is this, viz. that it is an imcommunicable Perfection or Property of the Deity, whereby his Duration is without Beginning; Succession and End.

And 1ft. That the Duration of the Almighty was without Beginning, is evident both from Scripture and Reafon, Deut. xxxiii. 27. The eternal God is thy Refuge, and underneath are the everlasting Arms ! Pfal. xciii. 2. Thy Throne is eftablished of Old, thou art from Everlassing. And hence the People of God are faid to be chosen before the Foundation of the World. And Reafon allo confirms the fame Truth, as follows, 1ft. If God created all Things in the Beginning of Time, than he himfelf was before it, and to by confequence from Eternity. Time being in its Nature a fucceffive Duration, taking its rife from a certain Point or Moment, which is termed a Beginning: The Duration which was before it must be Eternal, unless we suppose Time to begin before it did begin, which is a Contradiction. But God did create all Things in the Deginning, as both Scripture and Reason affure us, Ergo.

2dly. The Eternity of God may be inferr'd from the Perfection of his Nature. His Duration is Ferfect, and therefore fore Infinite; for to begin to exift is an Imperfection, on which Account Creatures are faid to be but of Yefterday, which is a diminutive Character. If God was not from Eternity, what he is, he would not be God, becaufe God is a most perfect Being, i. e. who has all Perfection which is or can be: Now that which is defititute of Existence, is destitute of all that Perfection which is in Existence; yea he would be distitute of Essence and Existence are in God one and the fame.

3dly. If God was not from Eternity then Nothing would exift. For if the Firft does not exift, a Second or a Third cannot, as appears from the Subordination of Caufes.

4thly. If God was not from Eternity, there was a Time when he was not, and than he would not be now. For either he muft produce himfelf before he was, and fo be and not be at the fame Time, or be produc'd by another, who by Confequence muft be before the Firft; both which are equally abfurd: For it is effential to God to be abfolutely the firft Being and Self-existent.

5thly. Seeing that the Almighty gave Being to all Creatures, which is imply'd in their being fuch, it will neceffarily follow, that he could not receive his Being from them, and fo muft needs be from Eternity. And 2dly. As the Duration of God is from Eternity, fo it is without Succeffion. Years and Days cannot properly be afcrib'd to him, no Times have pafled over him, he enjoys himfelf in an everlafting now ! It cannot be properly faid, he was, but that he is, and hence is his Name I AM. One Day is therefore with him as a Thoufand Years, and a Thoufand Years as one Day. There can be no Succeffion in the Duration of the Almighty, for the following Reafons, 1ft. Becaule it is Infinite. Now what is Infinite cannot be be meatured by fucceffive Parts and Periods, for it has none.

2dly. The Duration of God is unchangeable, and therefore it hath no Succeffion. This the Pfalmi/l confirms Pfal. cii. 27. Thou art the fame and thy Years fl. all have no End. Now that which hath Succeffion, is not the fame, for every Moment adds fomething to it which it had not before.

But 3 diy, As the Almighty has no beginning or Succeffion in Duration, thus he is likewife without End. Hence it is faid, that be liveth for ever and ever, and that his Years fhall have no End, Rev. iv. 9, 10. Pfa. cii. 27. The following Arguments tend to eftablish this Truth, viz.

Ift. God is a moft fimple Being, void of all Compofition, and therefore can never have an End from any neceffity of Nature, there being no Tendency therein, to a Difolution. It is true, compounded Beings becaufe of their various Parts, are liable to a Difolution, which arifes from the contrariety of those Parts of which they are conftituted, which tends to deftroy each other, and fo to diffolve the Compound; but the Almighty hath no Parts.

2dly. The Self-Exifience of God, which has been before prov'd, fhews that as he could not begin to be, fo neither can he ceafe to be. For as Johevab has deriv'd his Being from none, fo he depends upon none for its continuance. And feeing all Creatures owe their original to him, he has no equal, much lefs fuperior, who can deprive him of his. Exiftence!

3dly. Neither can the Almighty Defire or Will his own Deftruction, for that is contrary to the Nature and Reafon of Things. No wife Being peffeffed of compleat Happinefs, can Will the lofs thereof, becaufe Happinefs is the proper Object of defire! Now a Diffruction of the Being, would neceffarily ceffarily deftroy the Happiness possess'd by it; and therefore it cannot be defired by God. Well then, if the Almighty cannot ceafe to be from any necessity of Nature, or by the Will of another, or by any Act of his own, he must needs exift to Eternity. And 4thly. Eternity is peculiar to God : Tho' fome Creatures be Everlafting, as Angels and the Souls of Men, yet they had a Beginning, have Succeffion in their Duration, and depend for its Continuance upon the Power and Will of God! and therefore their Duration is not neceffary and independant. Whereas on the Contrary the Duration of God, as has been obferv'd had no Beginning, has no Succeffion, and neither fhall have, nor can have an End.

But becaufe Contraries ferve to illustrate each other; let me observe somewhat concerning the Nature of Time : This is as fome obferve, the measure of the Creatures Duration. It has no diffinct Being of its own, but is an Adjunct or Quality that belongs to Creatures, which has these three ingredients in it, namely, 1st. A Beginning; that which once was not, must needs begin to be, if it exists at all : Thus at the Creation of the World, we read of the Begin-ing of Time, which fhews that Creatures are the Offfpring of it, and measured by it. Time gives date to their Exiftence.

2dly. Time hath Succession, it is not all at once, but flows by Degrees, it ftands not, but is ftill in Motion, it confifts of divers Parts or Moments, which are in a continual Flux, fucceeding each other constantly, by these we calculate the Space or Term of a Creatures Existence.

3 dly. Time bath allo an End or Period, and this is refpecting the Creature, when it ceafes to be. The aforefaid Particulars give Room for our diffinguishing Time into that which is paft, prefent, and to come. Time paft is all the Space 01or Duration, which the Creature has run thro' from its first Existence to the present Point or Minute. Time present is the Moment of Existence, which is now in being. Time to come, is that which remains of the Creatures appointed Duration, until it expires. Now it's impossible to make those different Periods of Time to subsist at once. Whereas on the contrary Eternity, as has been observ'd, is a perpetual Now, having no Beginning, Succession or End.

That we may have fome Idea of the Eternity of God, it will not be improper to reprefent to ourielves, certain temporal Spaces, and by those to compass the divine Duration, as we cannot conceive of the divine Immensity or Omniprefence, without the Spaces of Place, fo neither can we conceive of his Eternity without the Spaces of Time, but we should be cautious in the mean Time, that we do not conceive these different Spaces to be real Beings, otherwise we shall conceive of many Eternals. And 2dly. That as in the Spaces of Place, we admit not of Extention, or of the Dimensions of Length and Breadth, fo in the Spaces of Time, we admit not of Succession, or a Flux of Moments.

The Schoolmen truly defcribe Eternity, "to be an inter-"minable, indivifible, and independent Duration." It is interminable, becaufe it wants Beginning and End. Indivifible, becaufe it has no Succeffion of Moments. Independent, becaufe it has no Imperfection or Change, nor any Poflibility thereof.

It is certain that the Almighty exifts with all the Periods of Time, viz. paft, prefent and future, immoveable and unmov'd, which the Antients did in fome fort fhadow forth by a Circle, whofe Center remain'd unmov'd, notwithftanding of various Agitations in the Circumference. And the following Similitude may be used to the fame End, viz. Of a Man fitting by the Bank of a River, he fees only the Water Water that is prefent, not that which is paft, or that which is to come, but when he is lifted up on high, he fees the whole River in its Spring, and Courfe, and Outlet, and it is prefent with him. Hence it appears, that in God thereis nothing paft, prefent, or to come, for thefe are but the Afpects of Time, upon Creatures. Eternity, admits of no Divifions, all Things are prefent before God at once. Things move in refpect of themfelves, but not in refpect of God : He fees them all at once, both paft, prefent and to come. And tho' he is before, and in, and after all Time, for he has made it, yet it caufes no Alteration in him, becaufe he is no Subject of Time, and has no Dependance upon it. And for this Reafon God cannot wax old, Time has no Relation to him, it cannot be the Meafure of his Exiftence, becaufe it is Eternal. And therefore when in Scripture, he is called the Antient of Days, it is only after the Manner of Men, to fuit the Weaknefs of our Conception, which cannot form an Idea of Eternity, but under the Notion of an Infinite Space of Time.

But the nobleft Creatures, even the Angels, had a Beginning, once they were not. They have likewife a Succeffion, being finite, they cannot poffibly poffefs an Eternal now: And therefore their Duration muft be progreffive. And tho' they have no Tendency to Mortality in their Natures, yet are they dependant on their Creators Pleafure, who can fpeak them to nothing by the Word of his Power in a Moment. But an Objection may be offer'd againft what has been before afferted, namely this, is not the Creation of the World paft, with God, when he made it in Six Days. Anf. God's Acts are Two-Fold. 1ft. Immanent terminated in himfelf. (Ephef. i. 9.) Thofe have no Succeffion, the Almighty did not devife one Thing after another. 2dly Transfient, in and upon the Creature, fuch as Creation, Providence, R. 2. Vocation, Vocation, &c. And here we must diftinguish between the Act it felf, and the Work produced by it. Gods Act in creating is the Act of his Will, that such a Creature should exist in Time, but if we confider the Work itself produc'd, fo the Creatures have a Being one after another.

Is God Eternal? Then this flews, 1ft. The Vanity and Frailty of all Creatures, who are different from God, they are the Offfpring of Time, but he is the Father of Eternity. They are of Yesterday and may foon ceale to be, but He, and He only, is from Everlasting to Everlasting ! What if they should fubfift a Thousand Years, this Space compar'd with Eternity is but as a Day, nay not fo much, for between a Thousand Years and a Day, there is some Proportion, but between a Thoufand Years and Eternity there is none! Yea if we confider the Duration of Creatures abfolutely, without refpect to Eternity, feeing it confifts of a continual Succeffion, they fublift but for a Moment : For the Time past ceases to be, and the Time to come has not begun to be, and what then remains, but the prefent Moment? How foolifh is it therefore, for fuch as we are to be Proud, or to promife our felves any thing ftable, any durable Satiffaction, from any fleeting Creature Enjoyment, whether of of Honour, Profit or Pleasure ? And how vain to set our Hearts upon that which is not? And on the Contrary how prudent is it for us to fix our fupream Love upon an Eternal God, and him alone, that he may be our Habitation in all Generations? And,

2dly. This Subject affords great Comfort to all that are trulyReligious, amidft all the Sorrows that fpring from the fluctuating and uncertain State of Creature Enjoyments. Do our dear Friends and Relations die, and are our Goods fnatch'd from us by Force or Fraud, or otherwife remov'd? Well this is our Comfort, that God lives, that he will remain forever forever and will never fail. Does Sin terrify us with its Agravations, Behold the Mercy of God endures for ever, Plal. ciii. 17. Are we in spiritual Desertion, behold God is Eternal, and his Love is like himfelf! Whom he loves, he loves to the End ! For a fmall Moment have I forfaken thee, but with great Mercy will I gather thee ! In a little Wrath I hid my Face from thee; but with everlasting Kindness will I have Mercy on thee, faith the Lord thy Redeemer, Ita. liv. 7, 8. If under the Terrors of Death, how fweet is it to meditate on the Eternity of God, who makes Death the Way to his Peoples enjoying eternal Life! And whatever other Difficulty we are under, how fweet is it to think, that these light Afflictions, which are but for a Moment, do work for us an exceeding and eternal Weight of Glory. In the Lord Jehovah is everlafting Strength, and from him we shall re-ceive everlafting Love and Salvation! And furely this is an over Ballance for all the Miferies of Life! But 3dly This Subject opens a Scene of Terror to unbelieving impenitent Sinners! God's Being is eternal, and fo he will ever live to punifh you. He is the living God, the everlafting King, at his Wrath the Earth fkall tremble, and the Nations Ikall not be able to abide bis Indignation ! Pfal. xc. 11. His Power is eternal, and thus he will be always able to make you inexpreffibly miferable, his Juftice, Holinefs, Truth and Wrath, which incline him to exercite his Power againft you, are eternal ! Who knows the Power of thine Anger, fays the Pfalmift, According to thy Fear fo is thy Wrath, xc. 11. It is a fearful Thing to fall into the Hands of the living or eternal God ! Heb. z. 31. Befides Sin, without a Pardon thro' a Mediator, is Eternal ! The Sinner is likewife Eternal ! The Prifon of Hell Eternal ! The Fire of Hell kindled by the Breath of God like a River of Brimftone Eternal ! The Punifhment of Lofs, viz. the Privation of an infinite Good Good Eternal! The Punifhment of Senfe, viz. the Worms of Confcience Eternal! And all this for the momentary Enjoyment of Sin. Should not all these Things incline us to avoid and detest Sin, and likewise to bewail it, and seek a Remedy in him who has brought in everlasting Righteousness?

In fine, the Eternity of God fweetly invites to glorify God on account of this divine Perfection, by high Thoughts of God, and humble Acknowledgments of this adorable Excellency, as well as by earneft feeking of God, and placing our Happiness in him alone, and not in the fleeting Entertainments of Time. O let us believe, fludy, and live to Eternity ! 2 Cor. iv. 18. While we look not at the Things which are feen, but at the Things schich are not feen : For the Things which are feen are Temporal, but the Things which are not feen are Eternal! Let us most firmly believe the Eternity of the divine Being and Attributes, as well as of a future State of Rewards and Punifhments, which will much influence our whole Life to Vertue and Goodnefs! Let us daily fpend a little Time in meditating on Eternity, that we may apprehend fomewhat of its awful Nature, and inexpreffible Moment to us, either in our Salvation or Damna-tion, and finally let us live to Eternity, let us think of it, fpeak of it, intend it, and labour for it, above any Thing elfe. Let us work, and fuffer, and pray for a happy Eternity. This, this is only worthy of our supream Affections and vigorous Pursuits. If we are risen with CHRIST, let us fet our Affections on the Things above.

But I proceed to difcourfe upon the 4th divine Attribate, which I obferv'd was included, in the Words I AM, viz. The Immutability of God. In treating upon which, I shall

I. prove this Truth, that God is immutable,

II. Explain it.

T3-1

III. Anjwer fome Objections

IV. Improve the Whole. And IV. Improve the Whole. And If. The Scripture proves this many Ways, Ift. By re-moving all Shadow of Change from God. Jam. i. 17. with whom there is no Change or Shadow of turning. The Original Words (parallage & tropes aposciasma) here us'd, are a Metaphor borrow'd from the Sun, which as Aftronomers fay, has its Paralaxes or various Afpects. It appears other-ways at its rifing in the Eaft, from what it does at its fetting in the Weft, it likewife appears differently at Mid Day, it hath alfo various Changes, fometimes it fhines, and fome times its clouded with an Eclipse. It likewife changes its Place moving from East to West, from one Tropick to another, fometimes it draws nearer to us, and fome Times goes farther from us, caufing a longer Shadow, but the Apoftle affures us, that the uncreated Father of Light has none of thefe Alterations. And adly. Sometimes the Scriptures remove from God those Things that imply a Change. e. g. Repentance Num. xxiii. 19. God is not a Man that he should lie, neither the Son of Man that he should repent. I Sam. xv. 29. And also the Strength of Ifrael will not lie, nor repent, for he is not a Man that be flould repent.

3dly. Sometimes it afferts his immutability expreily, Pfal. cii. 27. But thou art the fame, and thy Years fhall have no End. Some of the antient Fathers have fpoken well upon this Head, particularly these following viz. Proclus in a Sermon concerning Faith fayeth, " That the Deity remains "Superior to all Mutability. Change is a Paffion of a fluent "Nature, but Immutability is proper to an Eternal Nature "that is always the fame." Hillarie in his Book concern-ing the Trinity fays "I think not that God is changeable. Nei-" ther Vice, Amendment, Progrefs, or Lofs, happens to the Elernal,

" nal, but what he is he always is." Augufline in the Preface of his fourth Book concerning the Trinity fayeth, " that " the divine Effence, hath nothing mutable, either in his Eter-" nity, Verity or Will."

And right Reafon likewife gives its fuffrage to the immutability of God, as appears by the following Confiderations, viz.

ift. God is a moft fimple Being, and therefore cannot be chang'd: For Change, being an altering Viciffitude, would deftroy his Being intirely, when that which is moft fimple is changed, nothing remains of what it was before, and thus it is deftroy'd entirely. Thus you fee, it is Atheifin to afcribe Change to the Almighty.

2dly. God is a most perfect, yea infinitely perfect Being, and therefore cannot be chang'd, because to that which is perfect, no Good can be added. If God be chang'd, it must be either into a worse or better State, or into a Condicion equal to what he was before. But he can't be chang'd into a worse State, for then he would be imperfect after the Change, and so no God. Nor into a better, for then he would be imperfect before the Change & so no God. Nor can he pass into an equal State to what he was before, for this implies an equal Proportion of Loss and Gain, and thus there would be more infinitely perfect Beings than one, and so more Gods, which is impossible, and blass before to imagine.

3dly. Seeing the Almighty is abfolutely the first Being, he cannot be changed, for whatfoever is chang'd, is chang'd by one prior to itself, but this in respect of God is impossible, for none can be before the First.

4thly. Seeing the Almighty is incorruptible, he cannot be chang'd : For what is a Change of the beft Being, elfe but a Corruption of it?

5thly. God is infinite and therefore cannot be changed by adding any Thing to him or diminifhing any Thing from him, him; for if he were capable of Addition, he must be finite before the Change ; and if of Diminution, he must be finite after it, and fo neither Ways the true God. For as Infinity is an effential Character of God, fo this is incapable of more or lefs : For then there wou'd be an Infinite which was more than Infinite, and fo an Infinite which is not Infinite; which is ridiculous! But I proceed to the

2d. Proposed, which was to explain the Nature of God's Immutability. And here it may be observ'd, that God's immutability may be thus defcrib'd, viz. That it is an effential Perfection of the divine Nature, whereby the Almighty is without all possibility of any Kind of Change. In order to explain this Difcription, let the following particulars be confidered.

Ift. That when we call God's immutability a Perfection, we fuppofe his Goodnefs and Excellency, otherwife it would be no Perfection; but the Contrary to be immutable in Sin and Mifery is the highest pitch of both, which is the doleful Cafe of damned Angels and damned Souls!

2dly. Immutability, in strict propriety, belongs only to God. Hence it is faid, that he only hath Immortality, 1. Tim. vi. 16. His immutability is underiv'd and independent, whereas the immutability of all Creatures is dependent be-caufe deriv'd. It is borrow'd from the Power and meet Pleafure of God, and therefore its Duration is entirely and perpetually Subject thereto ! The vifible Heavens of all inanimate Beings feem to be the most free from Corruption, and even these are lyable to it. Pfal cii. 25. 26. Of Old thou thou hast laid the Foundations of the Earth and the Heavens are the Work of thy Hands, they shall perish, but thou shalt endure, yea all of them shall wax old as a Garment. Yea the most noble Creatures in Heaven it felf are subject to change; the Angels are capable of new Additions to their Happiness S

Happinels, for new Object may be offer'd to incite their Praife, and this tends to increase their Felicity. The Angels doubtless know more now concerning the Mysteries of the Gospel, than before the Incarnation of our Saviour; hence they are faid to know, by the Church, the manifold Wisdom of God, Eph. iii. 10. and to defire to look into these Things, 1 Pet. i. 11, 12. The Happinels of all Creatures admits of Degrees, and so of Change, because they are finite: But God is Infinite and so peculiarly immutable!

3 dly. Creatures may be chang'd two Ways, either 1ft. Outwoardly, in respect of Time and Place: Things that are the Off-firing of Time, are subject to it and changed by it outwardly, they grow older: They are likewise chang'd outwardly when they move from Place to Place. 2dly. Creatures are likewise liable to change in respect of their Being and Paculties; but the Almighty is capable of neither of these nor any other Change, as will appear by the following Induction of particulars. And 1st. The Almighty is not chang'd in respect of Place, because he is Immense and Infinite, and cannot be measured by Space. Nor 2dly. In respect of Time, because he is Eternal, and so no subject of Time, as has been before observ'd. Nor 3dly. Can the Almighty be chang'd in respect of 'Accidents, because they are not applicable to him, on account of the Simplicity of his Being. Hence every Thing that is in God is himself, he is true, just, wise, &c. by his Essence. Neither 4thly. Can the Almighty be chang'd in respect of his Essence. For this suppos'd Change must be either effected by

4thly. Can the Almighty be chang'd in refpect of his Effence. For this fuppos'd Change muft be either effected by himfelf or another : not by himfelf, becaufe there is no tendency in his Nature to a Change, it being void of all Composition ! Neither can it be reafonably fuppos'd that an infinitely Wife and perfectly Happy Being would Will a Change in his own Happines, feeing there is no Necessity for for fuch a change, were it possible. Neither can another change the divine Effence, feeing that all are inferior to God; for he that changes another must be fuperior to him whom he changes. Nor 5thly. Is the Almighty chang'd in his Perfections or Faculties which are indeed in him the fame with his Effence, altho' in our manner of conceiving of them they are diffinguish'd, to which God is pleafed to accommodate himtelf in his Word, by assuming to himfelf an Understanding, Will, Affections, all which being himfelf are by confequence immutable. And

1ft. God is Immutable in his Understanding. A Change of Sentiments implies Weaknefs; to increase in Knowledge fuppofes Ignorance, and to decline in Knowledge is to return to a state of Ignorance, both which are equally inconfistent with the Perfection of the divine Mind !

The Knowledge of God is not deriv'd from outward Objects, as that of Creatures is, and to is not dependent on them, and by confequence not altered by their Changes.

Again, the Knowledge of Creatures is fomething diffinct, from the Faculty receiving, and fo may be increas'd or diminish'd: But in God it is himself or his Being, it is no other than God knowing: And therefore if this were changed, the Being of God must be chang'd also, which is impossible.

The facred Scriptures affure us, that God's Understanding is Infinite, Pfal. cxlvii. 5. And if fo, it must be unchangable, for what is Infinite admits of no degrees. More it cannot be, for Nothing can be greater than Infinite; nor lets, for than it would not be Infinite. God knows all Things in Eternity in himfelf with one glance. Hence he is call'd the only wife God, I Tim. i. 17. and that all his Works are known to him from the beginning of the World, Act. xv. 18.

140 The Creators Immutability confirm'd.

2dly. God is unchangeable in his Will, altho' his Will isfree, it is neverthelefs Conftant and Eternal. He is in one Mind and who can turn him, fayeth JobChap. 23. 13. and elfewhere, the' there be many devises in Man's Heart, yet the Council of the Lord that Shall Stand. Now the Truth of this will farther appear, if we confider the following Particulars, viz.

Ift. If the Will and Purpose of God were changable, than the State of the best Men would be render'd exceeding precarious and miferable; for then the special Gifts of God vouchsafed at one Time, might be remov'd at another, and then the Condition of the most Devout would be as perilous as that of Rope-Dancers, who are every Moment in danger of breaking their Necks. But the facred Scriptures affure us, that the Gifts and Calling of God are without Repentance, Rom. xi. 29. And 2dly. If the Will of God were not unchangable, than he would neither be the Object of Truft or Fear; for then, from the mutability of his Nature, both his Promifes and Threats might be revers'd, and fo the former would not merit our Confidence, nor the latter our Dread! And thus Hope and Fear, the great Springs of Religion, would be de-ftroy'd.

3dly. Inafmuch as the Will of God is really himfelf, and is diffinguished from his Effence only in our Conception, (modaly) then if his Will was changed, it would follow neceffarily, that himfelf was chang'd, which cannot be, forthe Reafons before mention'd. And,

Athly. Seeing that the Almighty Wills and Purpofes with infinite Wildom and Council, upon a fure and unalterable Foundation, whatfoever shall come to pass, it cannot be that his Will should Change. But to make this more Plain and Evident, let me offer the following induction of Particulars to prove that none of those Things that induce Men to change their Purposes, can be apply'd to God. And,

If. Sometimes Men are compell'd to change their Purpofes by the Threats of Superiors, or by fome other meafure of coertion : But none is God's equal, much lefs his fuperior, and therefore no conftraint can be laid upon him! Ita. xiv. 27. For the Lord of Hofts hath purpofed and who shall difanul it? And his Hand is stretched out, and who shall turn it back? Pfal. cxv. 3. But our God is in the Heavens, he bath done what foever be pleafed.

2dly, Sometimes Men change their Purpofes for want of Power to compais them, this has rendered many well concerted Schemes abortive ! But the Defigns of God cannot be mar'd thro' Impotency, becaufe he is infinite in Strength.

3dly, Men fometimes alter their Purpofes, becaufe fomething unforeseen and unexpected happens, which gives such a turn to the Scene of Affairs, as makes an Alteration neceffary. But to ascribe this to God, is to destroy his Happines and the infinity of his Knowledge; and so by Confequence to deny him to be God.

4thly, Men change their Purpoles fometimes through a natural Fickleness and Instability, which makes them in a little space of Time for and against a Thing, and proceeds partly from Ignorance, and partly from the moveableness of their Affections; none of which can de aferib'd to God, he being immutable in his Nature, must be so also in his Purpole or Will.

5thly. Men change their Purpofes in promifing, and not fulfilling what they promife, from the Corruption of their Nature : But God is invioably Holy, and therefore cannot Change in this respect.

6thly. Men fometimes change their Purpofes becaufe they were rafhly made, without a thorough Knowledge of Things and due Confideration upon them: But neither of these can be ascrib'd to God, for as he is Infinite in Knowledge, fo he Works all Things after the Council of his Will, as the Apostle observes, Eph. i. 11. But I proceed to the

3. Propos'd, which was to answer some Objections. And ift. The Pelagians, Semipelagians, Jesuits, Arminians and Remonstrants, object, That by the aforesaid Immutability cur Free-Will would be destroy'd.

Anfw. No! By no Means, because the freedom of our Will confifts in a freedom from Force or Co-action, and faculty of acting by Council or with rational Complacency, and not in any independent indifferency to contraries, which is not: hurt by the Immutability of God, but rather eftablished. For God has purposed that every Agent shall act according. to his Kind. Natural Agents neceffarily (ad ultimum fui possed to the extent of their Power; thus Fire burns, and Water wets as much as they can. And rational Agents, voluntarily or freely. If Liberty confifted in indifferency to contraries, then God himfelf, Angels and glorified Saints, would be depriv'd of it, for they have an eternal contrariety. to Sin, and an eternal propenfity to Holine's! And to suppose Creatures independent in Willing or Acting, is to fuppofe them to be Gods, becaufe then they would not be under the Government of the Almighty. A Creature may as well exift of itself as act of itself. Second Caufes must needs depend on the first in Being and Acting, for in him we live, move and have our Being. And as Divines justly observe, (operari Sequitur effe) Action follows the Kind of the Being it proceeds from. Independent Action follows an independent Being; and dependent Action, a dependent one, otherwife the Effect would exceed the Vertue of the producing. Caufe, which is abfurd ! A

2d. Objection

2d. Objection is this, That by the aforefaid Immutability, God himfelf would not have a free Will, becaufe according to it, he could not alter a conceiv'd Refolve.

Anf. God Almighty Wills, what he Wills, of rational Complacency, and therefore Wills it freely. He acts according to his Nature, and therefore freely. To fuppofe that God can't Act freely without croffing his Nature, is to deftroy the Happinefs and Simplicity of God, and fo by confequence his very Being, and to affert, that Liberty confifts in conftraint, which is a Contradiction. A

3d. Objection is, God threatens fome Things which come not to pafs, as in the Cafes of Hezekiah and Nineveh, (2. Kings xx. i. Jonab iii. 4.)

Anf. God difpenfeth his abfolute Purpofes to his Creatures by conditional Promifes and Threatnings; and tho' the Conditions of Faith and Repentance be not always expressed, yet they are imply'd. Jer. xviii. 7, 8. If I speak concerning a Nation to destroy it, if that Nation against whom I have pronounced, turn from their Evil, I will Repent of the Evil I tho't to do unto them.

Objection 4. God is faid to repent.

Anf. It's elfe where faid, that he is not a Man that he fhould repent, i. e. He can't repent as Men do by changing his Purpofe, and in being forry for what he has done. All that looks like Repentance in God, is an Alteration of the Courfe of his Providence towards his Creatures, and this is a change of the Work, not of the Workman, and its only on this Account that Repentance is afcrib'd to God.

Objection 5. God Wills and makes mutable Things.

Anf. He does to, but after an immutable Manner, even as by his Eternity, which is defititute of all Succession, he directs fucceflive and mutual Things. Its true the Revelation tion of God's Will may be changed, whereby that may be rendered a Duty at one Time which is not at another, as appears from the Ceremonial Law : But these Changes being before determined by God, make no Alteration in his Will, as Aquinas observes, "It's one Thing to " change the Will and another to Will a Change." As St. Augustine fayeth, "The Change is in us, not in God, as " Houses and Trees seem to move to those that are in a Ship, " but the Ship moves and they fland firm.

Objection 6. The fecond Perfon of the Trinity was made

Man in Time, which he was not before, and fo was chang'd. I answer with Wendeline, "He affumed the human " Nature, but was not changed into it, and this was but ac-" cording to an Act of his Will from Eternity, and therefore

" he was not chang'd, for all politive change is by fuffering. Objection 7. God is faid to fuffer Death. Act. xx. 28.

Anf. He did fuffer it, but not in himfelf, but in the affumed human Nature, and fo is not chang'd.

Objection 8. God created the World in Time, which he did not from Eternity.

Anf. He did fo, but by that Power which is Eternal and Immutable. Creation is nothing elfe but an Act of God's Will from Eternity that the World should exift in Time. Here the Creature is altered, but not the Will of God. Neither does any Thing accrue to God by the Creation but a meer Relation, which infers no change in him ! Object. 9. What God Wills is not always done.

Anf. Yes, what he Wills is done, but in the Manner he Wills. If he Wills only by commanding that the Thing Commanded be our Duty, then that is done : If he Wills by decreeing that any Thing should exist, then it does exist.

Object. 10. God loves fome Men whom he before hated, viz. the Elect that are called, and therefore he is changed. Anf. Anf. Rational Affections are but Acts of the Will 'or its Pofures to an Object, and there are ever the fame in God. Love or Hatred, as they are Paffions, can't be properly afcrib'd to God, for fuch would deftroy his Happinefs, Simplicity and Perfection, and therefore they intend no more but his Purpofe to confer Benefits upon his Creatures in Time, or to punifh them together with the Execution thereof, which is no more than an Act of his Will from Eternity, together with his Providence purfuant thereto in Time: Or they intend that Perfons who were before expoled to the Curfe of the Law, are now according to God's eternal Purpofe delivered therefrom, which makes a Change in the Creatures State but not in God.

Object. 11. The Scriptures reprefent the Almighty as having Complacency in his People.

Anf. Its true; but this fnews only the Creatures conformity to God's Nature, and therefore fignifies a Change in it, but not in him. The Sun which was troublefome to fore Eyes, is pleafant to them, being heal'd: Here the Sun is not chang'd, but the Eyes.

Object. 12. If God be immutable, then what fignifies Prayer, or the Ufe of any other Means?

Anfw. The Defign of Prayer, is not to move God, but our felves, to express our Allegiance to him, and get Preparation for the Mercies he offers. Moreover it may be observed, that Prayer is a mean in the Use of which God is wont to confer Mercy. Now he immutably Wills the Mean, as well as the End. But I proceed to the Improvement. Now from what has been faid, we may learn, 1st. The Vanity and Emptiness of all Creatures, God alone is immutable, every thing under the Sun befides him, is frail and fleeting, and hath no abiding ! The World is a roling Wheel, and every thing in it, is subject to change and mu-T tation; yea even those Things, that seem most Specious and Stable, are in a continual Whirle-pool of Change, viz. Nobles, Princes, Kings common Wealths, Kingdoms and Empires: Both Scripture and History inform us, of the Catastrophes, or Desolations, every of those is Subject to ! Riches make to themselves Wings oftentimes and fly away; Honour is but an instable blast, often times conferr'd with as little Judgment as it is remov'd; and Pleasure has no stability: As for the Love of Friends, it often changes with the Wind: How foolish is it therefore to over love or confide in such changeing Shadows of Good? God is the only Object worthy of our Love and Confidence ! Let us therefore use these Things as tho' we used them not, with due Weanedness and Moderation, and acquies in the immutable God only. And 2dly. Hence we learn the great ground of the Saints Perfeverance. Is it any Thing in them, or any Thing refolved or done by them? No, they are but Creatures, their Grace might fail, as appears from the fall of the Angels, and of our first Parents, and their Refolutions might alter; but the immutability of God cannot. And this is the Ground of the Saints Perieverance. Mal. 3. 6. I am the Lord I change not, therefore the Sons of Jacob are not confumed. God has fix'd his everlafting Love upon them, he has made an everlafting Covenant with them, and given his unchangeable Promife to them, that he will never leave them, and will he, can he go back, and fuffer his Faithfulnefs to fail? No, its impoffible.

3dly, Hence we may learn, the awful Cafe of the finally impenitent. That God is unchangable, who hath threatned to curfe and deftroy them, and this they muft everlaftingly endure. After the Day of his Mercy expires, he will be inexorable to all the Cries and Importunities of the Wicked; their dreadful Doom fhall never be reverfed; their intolerable and inexprefible Plagues, fhall be immutable ble and eternal! God is in every refpect Immutable, viz. in his Effence, in his Attributes of fuffice, Wrath, and Hatred againft Sin and Sinners; in his Threatnings as well as in the Execution of them, which shall have no Remission in Degree, and know no End! O, should not these folemen Considerations frighten Impenitents from Sin and Security, to God and Goodness!

4thly, Hence we learn alfo the great Ground Believers have to truft and rejoyce in God in every Immergent. God is the only Object worthy of our Truft, for he always remains the fame, and will never fail them. He is the immoveable Rock, the unfhaken Foundation upon which his Church is Built ; against which the Gates of Hell shall never prevail. When we are perplex'd with a Sight and Senfe of our own Treachery and Weaknefs, compar'd with the Strength and Policy of our Enemies, or with a view of the many Viciflitudes, Wars, Confusions, Calamities, Difceafes, and Deaths, which mankind are involv'd in and expos'd to. What is a fweeter Support than to think God is a Rock, whofe Foundation stands fure; the Lord knows who are his: That his faving Gifts are without Repentance, and that Jebovab in the midft of those Changes, will be unmov'd to his own, and prefent with them by his Strengh, that they may not be mov'd, that he will remain Immutable in his Love and Grace, in his Purpofe and Promifes, which are fo many and fo great! And why then may we not with the pious Prophet triumphing fay, Altho' the Fig Tree shall not Blosom, neither shall fruit be in the Vines, the Labour of the Olive shall fail, And the Field shall yield no Meat, the Flock shall be cut off from the Fold, and there shall be no Herd in the Stalls ; yet I will rejoice in the Lord and joy in the God of my Salvation ! What the' all beneath the Sun, were in a tumultuous Uproar : Our Rock Jebovah is unmov'd, and therefore let us truft and joy in him !

Bu:

But in the last Place, let us be exhorted to glorify the incorruptible and immutable God by our Thoughts, Speech and Practice. Let us think highly, and fpeak reverently of this venerableAttribute of God, least with the GentilePhilosophers, while we profess our felves to be wife, we become Fools, and change the Glory of the incorruptible God ! But efpecially let us glorify God in life by avoiding all inconftarey in our pious Purpofes and Promifes made in the Covenant entred into at our Baptifin, and renew'd at the Lords Supper : And O let us not be unstable in our Profession of CHRIST's Truth! Or in love to him, or in the Practice of Piety! For by Levity and Inconftancy we contradict the Example of the immutable God, in imitation of whom our Perfection confifts. Let us therefore be Stedfast in all the Duties we owe to God and Man: And particularly let us be immoveable in our adhering to the Truths of God, which are the Ground of all. rational Religion. Without this, nothing remains but Confution, Enthusiafm and Noniense! O Let us not be as Children toffed about with every Wind of Doctrine, thro' the Craft and Jugling of those that lye in wait to deceive ! O let us beware of Wolves in Sheeps clothing! This is a Time of great Danger, the Moracian Foxes are trying with all fubtilty to deflroy the tender Grapes: Let us be as impregnable Rocks against those Deceivers: It's Perseverance Crowns all, if we be ashamed of CHRIST'S Truths in this adulterous Generation, of us will be be afhamed at laft when he comes in his own and his Fathers Glory to judge the World: How will daftardly Fugitives from the Camp of CHRIST Tremble & be Confounded, when they behold the incarnate God, the Sovereign Lord and Supream Judge of Quick and Dead, feated on his Saphire Throne, environ'd with Miriads of Angels aray'd in all the Pomp of God, bearing all the Enfigns of the most sparkling and aftonishing Majesty, the most blazing, and awful Glory!

SERMON VII.

JOHN, iv. 24. God is a Spirit, and they that worfhip him, must worfhip him in Spirit and in Truth.

HESE Words are Part of our Lord's Anfwer to the Woman of Samaria, concerning what the had faid refpecting worfhipping God upon a particular Mountain, by which our Saviour informs her, and us by her, that the Ceremonial and Typical Sanctity or Holinefs of Places, which obtain'd under the Jewifh Difpenfation, is now under the New-Teftament remov'd; and that fincere Service or Worship, is accepted of by God every where, without any refpect had to the Place where it is perform'd.

Now the Text we are confidering contains three Things, Ift. A general Description of God, viz. that he is a Spirit. God is call'd a Spirit, 1st. negatively, because he is not a Body, 2dly. Analogically, " becaufe there are many Excel-" lency's in spiritual Substances, which do more shadow forth " the Divine Nature, than any Bodily Thing can." As Dr. Ames observes in his Medulla. 3dly. God is call'd a Spirit properly and eminently, inafinuch as he is most remote from all manner of Composition. And altho' Angels and the Souls of Men, have a kind of Simplicity, yet the Almighty infinitely exceeds them therein ; For whatloever is affirm'd affirm'd of God, which is communicable to Creatures, the fame muft be underftood to be in him, in a more excellent and fingular Manner, and in an infinitely greater Degree. The third Perfon of the Trinity is not only call'd a Spirit, bypoftatically, and by Way of Apropriation, becaufe of his Proceffion from the Father and the Son by a certain ineffable Breathing, but alfo every Perfon of the facred Trinity, is call'd Spirit, cffentially, becaufe they all have the fame immaterial Effence.

But 2dly. We have in the Text before us, a Defcription of that Worship which is only acceptable to God, and this confifts of two Parts, Spirit and Truth. 1st. We muft worship God in Spirit, i.e. Our Worship must proceed from our Spirit, or inward Parts. Pfal. li. 6. Behold thou defireft Truth in the Inward Parts Rom. i. 9. For God is my Witnels whom I ferve with my Spirit, in the Gofpel of his Son. That Worship which confists only in Profession and Externals, is far from being fpiritual. And 2dly. We must worship God in Truth, not feignedly by Hypocrify, but in the Sincerity of our Heart, with the unleavened Bread of Sincerity and Truth. I Cor. v. 8. Not typically by Shadows and Ceremonies, being in Bondage to Places and Times : For the Law, the ceremonial Law, was given by Mofes but Grace & Truth came by JESUS CHRIST. John i. 17. And 3dly. we have in our Text the Necessity of the aforefuid Worship reprefented, must worship him, &c. Because God is a Spirit, therefore he is delighted with the Spirit and fpiritual Things, thefe are agreeable to his Nature : As allo becaufe God rejects the ceremonial Shadows under the New Teftament, and now efpecially requires that fpiritual Worship, which was prefigured by them.

In difcourfing upon this Text, I shall in the

I. Place offer iomewhat to confirm this Truth, viz. That God is a Spirit. II. II. Shew the Analogy or Refemblance, between the Almighty and created Spirits.

III. The unliknefs between them,

IV. Open the Nature of that fpiritual Worship, which we ought to perform to God. And

V. Proceed to fome Improvement. And

Ift. That God is a Spirit, appears from both the Old and New Testament, Judg. iii. 10. And the Spirit of the Lord came upon him, Ezek. xi. 24. 2 Cor. iii. 17. Now the Lord is that Spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is there is Liberty. And Reason assure us likewise, that God is a Spirit.

1ft. Becaufe a Spirit is the beft, higheft and pureft Nature, it many Ways exceeds a Body, now God being the moft perfect and excellent Existence, must needs be a Spirit.

2dly. That God is a Spirit, may be justly inferr'd from his Infinity, which cannot confist of finite Parts as Bodies do. Befides, 3dly. Bodies are dependant upon their Members, and corruptible becaufe compounded; but theie Things cannot confift with the independancy, fimplicity and incorruptibility of the Supream Being. But the

2d. General Head of Discourse, was to shew the Analogy or Resemblance, between the Almighty God and created Spirits And

1ft. Spirits are impalpable, they cannot be felt, they are inacceffible to our Senfes, which require a Bodily Object. The Reaton is this, that which is felt, must be more gross than our Animal Spirits, which feel it. But Angelical Substances are much finer than our lensitive Spirits, which are made of the Coarse Elements, and therefore cannot be felt by them. Here our LORD convinced vinced his Difciples by this Argument of Senfe, that he was no Spirit. Luke xxiv. 39. Behold my Hands and my Feet, that it is I my Self, handle me and fee, for a Spirit hath not Flefh and Bones as ye fee me have. And God himfelf is much more impalpable. And hence the Apoftle Paul obferves in his Epiftle to Timothy, vi. 16. That the Lord of Lords only hath Immortality, dwelling in the Light, which no Man can approach unto. Tho' we live and move in God, and have our Being from him, yet we are infenfible of his effential Prefence.

adly Spirits are invisible Substances, 1st. They are Subflances not Accidents, for Accidents are but Qualities cleaving to a Subflance, which are therefore variable and Depend-ant, as for Example, Whitnefs in the Wall: Whereas Spi-rits are Exiftences by themfelves, and God who is the Father of Spirits, Exists of himself absolutely, 2dly. Spirits are invisible, as well as intangible, and the Reason is, because what is feen, must be groffer than the Medium of Air, thro' which we fee, and groffer than the Animal Spirits by which we fee; but Angelical Subfiances are finer than both, and therefore invifible to us. Neither does their affuming in Antient Times human Bodies, or fome groß Matter in the Form of them, and appearing to Abram and others, in the leaft contradict this: For it was the Body affum'd that was feen, and not they. And how much more is God himfelf invisible, who infinitely exceeds all created Spirits, in fublime Excellency. Hence he is call'd the King, Immortal, Eternal, Invitable. I Tim. i. 17. And that he dwells in the Light, which no Man can appreach unto, which no Man kath feen or can fee. I Tim. vi. 16. And hence it is, that the Almighty is faid to dwell in fecret. Mat. vi. 6.

3 dly. Spirits are in their Nature Immortal, having nothing in their Conftitution tending to change or Corruption, becaufe caufe they confift not of various Parts, as Bodies do, which may be difunited; and thus have their Form alter'd. Neither are Spirits, becaufe of the Subtilty and finenefs of their Nature, fo lyable to Imprefilions by inferior Beings, as Bodies are, but ftill they are fubject to the Controle of him, who gave them Being. But God himfelf is abfolutely incorruptible. Mal. iii. 6. I am the Lord, I change not.

4thly. Spirits are the most perfect and excellent Beings. The Souls of Men and Angels, are much more noble than Bodies, and all Beings purely Material, and how infinitely does the bleffed God exceed the fubliment Scraphims, in Excellency and Perfection?

Excellency and Perfection? 5thly. Spirits are the flrongest of created Beings, hence they are call'd Principalities and Powers and faid to excel in Strength. Pfa. ciii. 20. Bless ye the Lord his Angels, that excel in Strength. And hence the Weakness of Flesh is oppos'd to Spirit. Ifa. xxxi. 3. And is not Jehovah wise in Heart, and mighty in Strength? Who has bardened him felf against God and prospered? The combin'd Strength of all the Angels, together with the whole Posse of created Beings, is no more in Comparison of the Power of God, than a Drop to the great Ocean, or a little Dust in the Ballance with the whole Earth. The Almighty takes up the Isles as a very little Thing, and all Nations before him are as Nothing, and they are counted to him less than Nothing, and Vanity Ifa. xl. 15, 17.

6thly. Spirits are the most nimble in their Motions, and unwearied in their Actings, of all created Beings. One of them is faid fly from the third Heaven to the Earth in a few Hours (Dan. xxi. 22.) Now feeing God himfelf is a pure Act, must he not of Confequence, be the most agile and active of all Beings, hence he is figuratively reprefented by the Pfalmift, to ride upon a Cherubin, and fly upon the U Wings of the Wind, Pf. xviii. 10. And hence Ifaiah observes, that the Creator of the Ends of the Earth fainteth not, neither is weary. Ifa. xl. 28.

7thly. Spirits are endow'd with Understandings and Wills, & are capable of putting forthActions agreeable thereto, which Beings purely Material, have no Capacity for. e. g. The Sun tho' it be a Beautiful Creature, because material, is not capable of Tho't or moral Action, both which Angels and the Souls of Men can exert. And hath not God himself an Understanding that is Infinite, and a Will which no created Power can control?

But tho' there be fome likeness between Godand the Creatures in some Things, yet it must be still remembred, that he infinitely transcends their nobless Excellency's and in many Things is unlike them Pfal. extrini. 13. Let them Praise the Name of the Lord, for his Name alone is excellent, and his Glory is above the Earth and Heaven. This leads to the

3d. General Head which was to fhew the Diffimulitude or Unlikeness been God and created Spirits, even of the highest order, which appears in the following Instances, viz.

Ift. The Excellencies of created Spirits are deriv'd from him to whom they owe their Beings, who is therefore ftil'd the Father of Spirits, and the God of the Spirits of all Flefk, Heb. xii. 9. But as the Almighty had no Beginning of Existence, consequently his Perfections must be undetiv'd and Eternal.

2dly. The Excellencies of created Spirits, are but comparative, viz. that they excell the beft of material Beings in their Nature and Properties, whereas the Bleffed God excells both material and immaterial.

3dly. The Beings and Excellencies of created Spirits are limitted, their being Creatures proves them to be finite. He that made them must needs give Bounds to their Beings, fo fo that they cannot fill all Places at once. And Infinite Excellency's cannot be poffefs'd by any Thing that is in its Nature finite. But as the Being of God is felf-exiftent, and therefore unlimited, fo his Perfections are infinite.

4thly. The Excellencies of created Spirits are dependant & alterable, becaufe deriv'd from another, they muft depend on him who form'd them. Angels themfelves, who are the nobleft of created Spirits, inafmuch as they once were not, are capable of returning to their former Nonentity: They are alto capable of the Imprefilions of Happinefs and Mifery; fome of them have fallen from their original State of Holinefs & Happinefs; but none of thefe Things are applicable to God, he is far from the Shadow of Change, an independant God. Who tho' he is happy, can neither be made happy or miferable. He only hath immortality.

5thly. Angels are under the Dominion of God, they muft needs owe Subjection and Homage to him, who gave them their Exiftence. And this their very Name Angel or Meffenger imports. But it is the unalienable and incommunicable Prerogative of Jehovah alone to be fupream and above all Control.

But I proceed to the 4th general Head which was to open the Nature of that fpiritual Worship, which we ought to perform to that God, who is a Spirit, &c.

ift. It imply's fpiritual Principles, viz. Experimental Knowledge of God and our Selves, fuch as affects and humbles us, and makes us judge our felves, with holy Paul, to be lefs than the Least of all Saints. Without Knowledge, fays Solomon, the Mind cannot be good. And Indeed we cannot love rationally without fome Knowledge of the Object we love.

rationally without fome Knowledge of the Object we love. 2dly. Another Principle of fpiritual Worfhip, is Love, tranfcendent Love to God in CHRIST, becaufe of his unparallel'd and inexpreffible Excellency, whereby we choofe U 2 God

God as the only Portion of our Souls, and his Worfhip as our moft agreeable Entertainment. (Jof. xxiv. 15.) 3dly. Another Principle of fpiritual Worfhip is Faith in the eternal God, Father, Son and Spirit, even fuch Faith as renews the Heart, and reforms the Practice : For he that comes to God must believe that he is, and that he is a Re-warder of those that unfeignedly seek him, But 2dly. Spiritual Worskip implies a spiritual End, not our own Credit or worldly Interest, with the Pharises of Old; but God's Glory, and in Subordination thereto, our own and our Neighbours Spiritual Good and Edification. This is to ferve God with our Spirits, as the Apostle Paul expresses it (Rom. i. 9.) If we should refer all our natural and cicil Actions to the Glory of God, how much more our Religious? Whether in eating or drinking, or whatfoever we do we should do it all to the Glory of God. See Col. iii. 22,23: Not with Eye Service, fuch as Men Pleasers, but in singleness of Heart fearing God. And whatfoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord and not unto Men.

3dly. Spiritual Worship, implies a spiritual Rule, not the Customs of the Age we live in, or the Inventions or Tra-ditions of Men, but the written Word of God, this is sufficient to make the Man of GodPerfect, and thoroughly furnifked to every good Work. To those that walk according to this Rule, Peace be on them and on Ifrael of God. To the Law and to the Testimony, if they speak not according to this Word, it is because there is no Light in them. Ifa. viii. 20. As God only knows what Worfhip will be acceptable to him, fo he only has a Right to prefcribe Acts of Worfhip, being the Creator and Lord of all, and therefore when Men add to the divine Inftitutions, as they abridge their fellow Creatures of the Liberty God has gracioufly given them, to they ufurp the divine Prerogative, and injurioufly reflect upon the Wifdom

Wildom and Fidelity of the great Legiflator. Our Lord charged the Pharifees, with vain Worfhip because they taught for Doctrines the Commandments of Men. 4thly. Spiritual Worfhip, implies a fpiritual Manner of 4thly. Spiritual Worship, implies a fpiritual Manner of Performance, And this is when the Heart joyns with the outward Man in God's Service, when we do it out of Choice. (Josh.vxiv. 15.) When we long for an absent God, Pf. xlii. 1. When we heartily lament his Absence, with Job. O that I knew where I could find bim! When we rejoyce in his Presence! (Phil. iii. 3.) When under a Sense of our Inability to perform Duty aright, without the Help of the Spirit thro' CHRIST, and our Unworthiness of that Help, we rely upon the Lord JESUS for Strength. Thus the Spouse is faid to come out of the Wilderness, leaning on her Beloved. But I proceed to the Improvement of this Subject. And

But I proceed to the Improvement of this Subject. And Ift. From the fpirituality of God, or from his Being a Spirit, we may infer his Simplicity. A Spirit, as all acknowledge, is an immaterial Being, and therefore a fimple one. If it be objected, that Angels and the Souls of Men are called Spirits in Scripture, and yet they are not altogether fimple. Anf. They are fo only in a diminitive Senfe, by Way of analogy, becaufe they come neareft of all to the Spirituality of God. But God himfelf is most properly & perfectly a Spirit. The Holy Scriptures teach this Simplicity of God, fo often as it reprefents him not in compounded or in concrete Terms, but in fimple and abstract ones. e.g. When he is therein call'd Love. I John iv. 8. He that Loveth not, knoweth not God, for God is Love. 2dly. God is call'd Life. I Joh. v. 20. This is the true God and eternal Life. 3dly He is faid to be Light in which there is noDarknefs at all, I John i. 5. i. e. His Godhead has nothing of a different kind, which is not pure Godhead.

And

And indeed the Simplicity of God, follows neceffarily from many other of God's Perfections. e. g. 1ft. From his Self-Exi/tence, by which he is abfolutely the first Being, if by Com-position there were different Things in God, then there would be many first Things, of which none would be abfolutely the first, because not before the Parts join'd with it : Moreover if God were compounded, there must be one to compound him, who must exist before the first, which is im-possible. And 2dly, The Simplicity of God follows from his Independency: For on the contrary, what is compounded cannot be Independent, for then the whole depends upon the composing Parts, and the Union of those Parts depends upon the Composer. 3dly, God is immutable and therefore a fimple Being, for whatfoever is compounded, is liable to be difolv'd into the Parts of which the Composition is made, and thus it is changeable. 4thly. The Eternity of God proves him to be a fimple Being, for whatfoever has had a Beginning may have an End! To this we may farther add, big Infrit and Buffitting. And the If Cond has Infrit. his Infinity and Perfections. And 1st. If God be Infinite, as the Scriptures afferts when it informs us, That be fills the Heaven and Earth, and that the Heaven of Heavens cannot contain him, than he is a fimple Being : For whatfoever is compounded is finite, the Parts composing must needs be finite, becaufe they are lefs than the Whole. And it is impoffible for a Number of finite Parts to produce Infinity. 2dly. If God be a most Perfect Being as the Scripture afferts Mat. v. 48. Be Perfect as your Heavenly Father is Perfect, then he is a fimple one. Because not only all Men acknow-ledge that it is more Perfect to be Wisdom itself, than to be Wise, to be Goodness it felf, than to be Good : But also the Notion of a Part involves a manifold Imperfection, inafmuch as it has not the Perfection of the Whole, and pre-requires a Compofer, Now

Prov'd and Explain'd

Now the Simplicity of God is a divine Property whereby he is void of all Composition, Mixture and Division, being all Effence, so that what so ever is in God, is God. The Almighty by his Simplicity is free from all Kinds of Composition, by which different Things unite. As particularly,

Ift. From a Composition of quantitative or bulky Parts which belongs to Bodies; but God is a Spirit, as has been already made evident.

2dly, Of effential Parts, fuch as Matter and Form, thefe belong only to Bodies, but God is immaterial.

3dly, Of Subflance and Accident. Seeing that all Accidents are judg'd more imperfect than the Subflances to which they belong, and are liable to change, as Whitenefs in the Wall, they are therefore inconfiftent with the divine Perfection.

4thly. Of Effence and Exiftence, feeing that Exiftence is but an Act of the Effence, and nothing different from it, which might infer a Composition.

4thly. Of Genus and Difference, which every Species contains : God is a Being above Being, in nothing he agrees with others, but in all Things he differs from all. But on the Contrary, every Creature is fubject to Composition, and confequently to Division. All Things which are created, are made by joining together into one, more Things than one, and to they confift of divers Things. Some have a more groß Composition of Parts, both Effential and Integral. As a Man, of Soul and Body; and the Body of Flesh, Blood and Bones. Some have a finer Composition, e. g. an Angel is compounded of Substance and Accidents that cleave thereto. His Substance or Effence, his Faculties and Qualities are different Things. His Life is one Thing; his Will, Power, Wifdom, Agility, or Nimblenefs other Things. And the fame may be faid of his Goodnefs, which the the Scriptures inform us, fome Angels have loft and yet retain their Beings. And thus the Soul of Man and all other Creatures are made up of many Things joined together.

But God is abfolutely Simple, without Parts or Accidents; his Effence and Attributes are all one Thing in him, tho' differently conceiv'd of by us ! But here let it be carefully obferved, that Simplicity; as it is oppos'd to Wi/dom, which is fometimes the Senfe of the Word in Scripture (Pro. i. 22.) cannot without the greateft Blafphemy be afcrib'd to God. It is therefore Simplicity only, as it is oppos'd to Mixture and Composition, that is to be afcrib'd to God. "That is prc-" perly called Simple (fays Zanchy) which is not composed of " different Things. And by how much the lefs any Thing is " compounded, fo much the more Simple it is, and is " call'd." But 2dly. Is God a Spirit? Then we should frame no refemblance of him in our Thoughts as tho' he were a material Being or had a Body! And far lefs should we form Pictures and Images of God, either for Decency or Devotion. It is Folly with a Witness to pretend to draw the Lineaments or Form of an immaterial and invisible Being. And indeed it is an idolatrous Practice, which the Almighty strictly caution'd the People of Ifrael against, Deut. vi. 12, 15, 16. And the Lord spake unto you out of the midst of the Fire, ye heard the Voice of the Words but faw no similitude; take therefore good Heed unto yourselves, for ye faw no manner of Similitude in Horeb, lest ye corrupt yourselves and make you a graven Image, the Similitude of any Figure, the likeness of Male or Female. But

3dly. Is God a Spirit? Then he is the most fuitable Good to our Souls, which are Spirits. As he is a fpiritual Being, he fuits their Nature and can communicate himfelf to them, And as he is All-fufficient, he can fully fatisfy their most extensive Spiritual Worship apply'd. 161 extensive Defires. But on the Contrary, tho' carthly Entertainments may gratify our fensival Appeties, yet, because of their gross and elementary Nature, they cannot fatisfy, and do not fuit our Souls, neither in respect of their Nature and Dignity<sub>3</sub>- or their Defires and Duration. It was therefore exceeding foolish in the rich Man to fay to his Soul, in respect of such Things, that it had much Goods laid up for many Years. Such Entertainments can no more fatisfy the anxious Soul, than Huss, Gravel-Stones, or the East Wind can fatisfy the cravings of our Stomach! And it is with great Justice that the Scriptures afcribe such ignominious Epithets to all earthly Good, to fignify in the strongest Terms its infufficiency to content the Mind.

4thly. Is God a Spirit? This fhews us then the neneceffity of Spiritual Worfhip. This indeed is plainly exprefs'd in our Text. Such a Worfhip is fuitable to the Nature of God, and will be only accepted by him. The juftnefs of this inference fome of the Pagans difcovered by the Dint of Natures Light. Cato fpeaks excellently about it in his Difticks, in the following Manner:

Sideus estanimus nobis ut carmina dicunt.

Hic tibi precipue sit pura mente colendus, i. e.

If God is a Spirit, as the Poets inform us, then our cheif Care, should be to worship him with a pure Mind.

And feeing this fpiritual Worfhip is the Touch-Stone of true Chriftianity, we fhould be hereby enduced to examine ourfelves with all Speed and Serioufnefs, whether we perform it or not, and that by an impartial and deliberate Application of what has been faid concerning it, in the doctrinal Part of this Difcourfe. Now if upon Tryal we find the aforefaid Characters of fpiritual Worfhip in us, we may and ought to rejoyce in Chrift Jefus, notwithftanding our many defects, becaufe we are compleat in him. Sincere Intentions are accepted for Performances, effectally when an X. opportunity opportunity for Action does not prefent it felf. Thus it was in David's Cafe, altho' he did not actually build the Temple, yet becaufe he honeftly purpofed to do it, the Almighty look'd upon it as done.

But fuch as are defitute of the aforefaid Characters who worfhip God who is a Spirit, without Spirit ; who draw near to God with their Lips, while their Hearts are far from him ; who reft in a dead Form of Devotion ; who content themfelves with bodily Exercife, which profits little, and in the mean Time with their Minds ferve themfelves, all fuch are in a doleful Cafe, their fpecious Worfhip being defitute of Spirit and Soul, is dead, and ftinks before God as a dead Corps that is putrify'd does in our Noftrils ! Such Services Jebovab cafts as Dung upon their Faces, Mal. 23. Such in the Judgment of God are Hypocrits, and fuch he pronounces a Woe upon, Mat. xxiii. 25, 26. Wo unto you Scribes and Pharifees, Hypocrits, for ye make clean the out fide of the Cup and Platter, but within they are full of Extortion and Excefs.

5thly, Is God a Spirit? Then let us purify our Spirits or Hearts more and more from all fpiritual Wickeducts, and devote them to God. Now the Defires or lufts of the Mind, which War against it, and ought to be purged away, are thefe, viz. Ignorance, fpiritual Blindnefs, Pride, Infdelity, Hypocrify. We should be enduced to oppose fpiritual Evils by the following Confiderations, 1st. Because they make us most like the Devils, who are fpiritual Wickedness.

2dly. Becaufe Sin is ftrongeft in the Spirit, as its Fountain.

3dly, Becaufe God who is a Spirit, as he is pleafed with fpiritual Services, fo he is principally offended with fpiritual Abominations ! Befides, those Evils are effectially contrary to the Perfection of the fpiritual Law of God. Now we should endeavour endeavour to purge our Hearts from the aforefaid Evils, by Watchfulnefs in oppofing the first evil Motions, by meditating on the divine Word, by repeated Acts of Faith upon CHRIST, and by earneft Prayer. And we should be incited to give our Hearts and our Spirits to God by confidering 1ft. That he requires it, my Son give me thine Heart. 2dly, He has the best Right to it, for he has made it, he is the Father of Spirits.

3dly, He best deferves it also in Point of Gratitude, on Account of his preferving, providing, and redeeming Love.

4thly, It ought to be given to him also in point of Intereft, for he can only fatisfy it with fuitable and enduring Good ! Let us there commit our Spirits into his Hands, that he may iustify them by the Blood and Obedience of his Son, and fanctify them by his Spirit, and at laft receive them into his Kingdom.

Is God a fimple Being? Then let us glorify him upon the Account of this Attribute, by which he is fo much exalted above all changeable and Compounded Beings ! and let us with fimplicity entirely depend upon him in all ad-verfity ! He is Light to direct us, Power to fupport us, Love to refresh us, yea he is our Life and Salvation ! His fimplicity makes him an Object worthy of Trust and Confidence, for he will not deceive the Expectations of the Poor. And flould not we Endeavour to imitate the Simplicity of God in Heart and Conversation? Let us ferve God, not with a double Heart, as Hypocrits, who look two contrary Ways; but with Simplicity, which includes thefe Things in it, viz. Purity, Sincerity, and Conftancy. 1ft. With Purity of Heart, Hence our Saviour pronounces a bleffing upon those who are pure in Heart, i. c. Who love, long for. X 2 and and labour after Holinefs in Heart, and do not habitually indulge the Contrary !

2dly, Sincerity, and that is when a Perfor by one direct Line, aims at God's glory in the general Courie of all their Actions, Natural, Civil, and efpecially Religious. Hence our Lord informs us, that if our Eye be fingle our whole Body is full of Light, Mat. vi. 22. And 3dly, That this pure and fincere Heart contends towards its Mark, with a Con/tant and as much as may be uniform Endeavour, the want of which makes Perfons inftable in all their Ways, Jam. i. 8. And we fhould alto be fimple in Converfation, after the Example of the Apoftles, avoiding all Deceit, Fal/hood and Guile, 2 Cor. i. 12. This is our rejoycing even the Teftimony of our Confciences, that in fimplicity and godly fincerity, not with flefhly Wifdom we have had our Converfation in the World. We fhould be excited hereto by the following Motives, 1ft. Becaufe hereby we imitate God in his primary Perfection, which is the greateft Excellency of the reafonable Creature. 2dly. Such are Bleffed by our Lord (Mat. v. 8.) 3dly. Simplicity is the Foundation of Conftancy, as a double Mind is of Inconftancy. 4thly. The double Minded are abhor'd by God, and muft, fo continuing, expect perpetual ruin. (Pfa. xii.)

SERMON VIII.

PSALMS cxlv. 3.

Great is the Lord, and greatly to be praifed; and his Greatnefs is unfearchable.

HIS Text reprefents to us the Infinity of God's Effence or Being, and the Neceffity of Honouring him on this Account. And 1ft. we have a Reprefentation of the Infinity of the divine Being, more generally in thefe Words, great is the Lord or Jebovah. Here God, denominated by his Effence, is faid to be great: For the Name Jebovah intends his Effence or Being, that thus we might know his Effence is Infinite. The Word great muft either refer to Quantity or Quality, if to Quantity, then either to Number or Magnitude ; in refpect of Number God is one, but fo one, as eminently to include yea exceed all ! In refpect of Magnitude, God is great withoutQuantity, as he is good without Quality, i. e. As his Goodnefs is not any Thing added to his Being, as it is in Creatures; but is the fame with it, fo his Greatnefs does not confift in the Bulk or Dimenfions of Bodys, fuch as Heigth, Depth, Breadth, &c.

But if the Word great, be apply'd to Quality, then it denotes the Excellency of a Thing or Perfon, together with an eminent Degree of that Excellency. And thus it is with with God, he exceeds all others in Excellency; but we have in the Words of our Text, a more Particular Defeription of the Infinity of the divine Being, in these Words. And his Greatnefs is unfearchable, or as the Words are in-terpreted by others, has no End, as that which is finite may be fearched, fo on the contrary that which is un-fearchable must needs be Infinite, Job. 5. 9. Which doth great Things and unfearchable, marvellous Things without Number. Rom. xi. 33. O the Depth of the Riches, both of the Wifdom and Knowledge of God, how unfearchable are his Judgments, and his Ways paft finding out ! Which is emphatically exprets'd by comparative Terms, whereby God is faid to be greater than all other Gods. 2 Chron. ii. 5. And the Houfe which I build is great, for great is our God above all Gods. Pfal. cxxxv. 5. For I know that the Lord is great, and that our Lord is above all Gods. i. e. Not only above Emperors, Kings, Princes and Magistrates, who are call'd Gods, becaufe they bear fome Image of the divine Sove-reignty, by their Superiority and Power of Government; but alfo above all faile Gods, who are great in the Opinion of their Worfhippers. The Number of which in the Time of Hefod, was above Thirty Thouland, to every of which was affign'd fome peculiar Perfection ; without doubt then, he who is greater than all those must needs be infinite, and ought to be praifed as fuch; which is the 2d. Particular our Text contains. Great is the Lord and greatly to be prais'd. God fhould be greatly honour'd by our Minds, and highly extol'd by our Lips and Lives. He fhould be prais'd in the fuperlative Degree, more than any, more than all, because he is greater and more excellent than all, in his Being and Perfections. In difcourfing upon this Text, I shall

Ĩ.

I. Endeavour to prove that God is infinite in his Effence.

II. Labour to explain the Nature thereof, And

III. Speak of his Immenfity or Omniprefence, which refults therefrom, and fo proceed to the Improvement. And

Ift. The Scriptures affert the Infinity of God's Effence, not only in those Places already mentioned, but also in these following viz. Job xxxvi. 26. Behold God is great, and we know him not, neither can the Number of his Years be fearched out, Job. xi. 7, 8, 9. Canst thou by fearching find out God, canst thou find out the Almighty unto Perfection, it is high as Heaven, what canst thou do, deeper than Hell what canst thou know? The Measure thereof is longer than the Earth, and broader than the Sea. And Reason also confirms the fame Truth, as appears by the following Particulars, viz.

If. If God's Being and Perfections are incomprehenfible, as has been prov'd in this, and in a preceeding Sermon, then certainly they are infinite. The great Reafon why Men and Angels cannot grafp the Knowledge of the divine Being is, because it is too vaft an Object for their finite Capacities to compas.

2dly. There is nothing in Creatures that argues an End or Defect, either in their Being, Power, Prefence, or Duration; for which they are call'd finite, which is not very alien or remote from God, and therefore he is Infinite.

3dly. He created the World out of nothing, which requir'd infinite Power, because of an infinite Distance which was to be overcome, between nothing and something.

4thly. Seeing the highest Perfection, is necessarily included in the Notion of a God, and this the Scriptures confirm, by calling him the most High, Pfal. xviii. 13. Then his Being and Attributes are Infinite : For fomething higher and more more excellent than finite may be conceiv'd, viz. fomething that is Infinite. And 5thly. Seeing he is abfolutely the first Being he must of Neceffity be Infinite, for thus there can be none before him, to limit his Being and Perfections. If his Being had any Bounds, it could not be abfolute. The Reafon why Creatures are finite is, becaufe they are made by another, who has circumferib'd their Beings within certain Limits. Now that God is abfolutely the first Being, existing of himfelf, has been already prov'd in a preceeding Sermon:

6thly. Forafinuch as all the various Perfections of Creatures, both Angelical and Human in Heaven and Earth, are borrow'd from God. He who is the unexhaufted Fountain, from which they all flow, must be Immense and Infinite : For furely the Giver must be greater than the Receiver: Hence is that notable Scripture. Rom. xi. 35, 36. Who hath first given to him and it shall be recompensed unto him again, for of him, and thro' him, and to him are all Things. I proceed to confider the

2d. Propos'd which was to explain the Nature of God's Infinity, effecially in his Effence; which may be thus defcrib'd, viz. That it is an incommunicable Property of Jehovah, whereby he is without all Bounds and Limitations in his Being and Perfections. 'The Infinity of God may be faid to refpect, either his Attributes or his Being; as it refpects his Attributes, thus his Juffice, Power, Wifdom, Holinefs, Grace, Mercy, and Duration, are faid to be Infinite in Scripture, that is without Bounds, Limits, or End. As it refpects his Being, it fignifies that it neither is, or can be bounded, neither outwardly by an encompaffing Body, as material Things are, nor inwardly, by proper Limits, as created Spirits. All Creatures both Human and Angelical, as well as others are bounded bounded by their Effences, the Form acting upon the Matter limits it within its own Confines. But God is unlimited, and can't be fcarched out to Perfection. Job. xi. 7. And indeed this is applicable to all that can be faid of him! Hence fays the Pfalmift bis underftanding is infinite. And indeed infinity is the peculiar Glory of God, whereby he is diftinguish'd from and far advanced above all fecondary Beings.

God is infinite not according to the Etimology of the Word, which respects an End only, for he is without Beginning and End. Zanchy observes, "That a Thing is call'd " privativly Infinite, which indeed hath not an End, but " can have it. This is applicable to the noblest Creatures " even to Angels and the Souls of Men.

" And 2dly. That that is negatively infinite, which neither " has nor can have any End." In this Senfe God only is infinite, yet when we fay that God is negatively infinite, a pofitive Perfection is thereby intended. " Infinity (faith " Gomarus) is an abfolute property of the Effence of God, " which is not limitted or circumferib'd by any Terms, or " Bounds of Caufe or Measure." To explain this, let it be observ'd, that every Creature hath a fourfold Limitation, viz. Of the Kind of Being, Degrees of Being, of Time and Place.

And. 1ft. Creatures are limitted as to their Kinds of Being, fome are of one Kind, and fome of another fome are fimple, fome compounded, fome have Bodies, fome not, fome have Life, fome none, fome have Senfe fome none. The great Creator hath fix'd them in their feveral Kinds and Orders, that fo the whole Frame of Things may be beautify'd with variety. But God himfelf is not limited to any kind of Being. He hath in himfelf all Kinds, not fubjectively, but eminently.

2 dly. Creatures are limited to Degrees of Being and Goodnefs, or Excellency, fome have higher and fome lower Y Degrees, Degrees, but the Being of God is abfolute perfect and infinite and fo beyond all Degrees and Meafures; and thus are all his Attributes which fpring from his Being, and only differ therefrom in our Manner of conceiving.

3dly Creatures are limited as to Time or Duration they have a Beginning either with or in Time, and a Succeffion in Duration, and either have or may have an End. But God is Eternal an Everlafting Now, without Beginning, Succeffion, or End.

4thly. Creatures are limitted as to Place, they are included in a Place, and cannot be every where at once, but God is Immente and Omniprefent. And thus I am led to fpeak upon the

3d, Propos'd, viz. the Immenfity and Omniprefence of God. These Words represent the same Thing after a different Manner. Infinity, as it cannot be measured by Place, or any other Dimensions of Length, Breadth, Depth, Height, is call'd Immenfity. As it exfifts with every Creature, it is call'd Omniprefence; and as it co-exifts every where, it is call'd Ubiquity. This Attribute of God may be thus defcrib'd, viz. That it is the Infinity of the divine Effence, as that exists with all Space. By Space, we are to understand nothing more than where a Creature does or may exift, and therefore it is two Fold, viz. Ift. either a vacuum or void, where a Creature can exift, or a Place where it actually does exist. Therefore Space is properly no Being, much less a Body, for then when a Body is in a Place, one Body would be in another. Neither is it the fame with a Body which is contain'd in a Place, for when a Body is remov'd the Place containing remain's. Neither are Breadth and Length, and other fuch like Dimensions, properly in Space; but in the Bodies which are or may be contain'd therein. Now the Almighty is not extended together with Space, or diffus'd thro' it, for thefe Things only belong to Bodies. Jebouah being being without Matter or Parts, muft be without Extension ; and having no Matter he can have no Form, which belongs to Matter, and gives it the Dimensions of Weadth and Length, &c. The Almighty only exists together with all Space, not by Multiplication of himself, for he is one ; nor by Division by Parts, being partly in Heaven and partly on Earth, for he is most Simple and cannot be divided : Neither can the Almighty be circumferib'd or bounded by Space, because he is a Spirit ; or limitted to a certain Place, because he is Infinite. God exists with all Space by filling of it. Jer. xxiii. 24. Do not I fill Heaven and Earth, Jayeth the Lord. The Almighty indeed does not fill Space as Bodies do, because his Being there does not exclude the Creature : Whereas two Bodies cannot occupy the fame Place in the fame Instant of Time. But Jehevah fills all Places in the following respects.

Ift. So as not to be included in any Place or encompafied, for then he muft be finite: But the Heaven of Heavens cannot contain bim. And 2dly, So as not to be excluded out of any Place; and hence it is faid, Act. xvii. 27. That he is not far from every one of us. Even the Heathens, by the Light of Nature, could fay, " Jovis omnia plena; all Things are full of " Jupiter."

3 dly, So as to be without Motion from Place to Place : And therefore, when the Scriptures fpeak of his defcending from Heaven to Edrth, his riding on a Cherub, and on the Wings of the Wind, it is only a form of Speech accommodated to our weak Way of conceiving of God and divine Things, importing fome fpecial Manifeftation of God in his Works of Providence. And 4thly, So as to be beyond all Place; for what is Place but the Limit of created Beings? It must therefore be finite how vast foever it be, and therefore cannot contain the infinite God.

The Holy Scriptures affert in ftrong Terms, the Omniprefence of God, Pfa. cxxxix. from the 7th to the 1 oth Verfes, Whether fkall I go from thy Spirit, or whither fkall I flee from thy Prefence? If I affend up into Heaven, thou art there, If I make my Bed in Hell, behold thou art there. If I take the Wings of the Morning and dwell in the uttermost Parts of the Sca, even there fkall thy Hand lead me, and thy right Hand skall bold me. Act. xvii. 28. For in him we live and move and have our Being. And indeed the Omniprefence of God neceffarily follows from his Infinity, which we have before confidered: For what is Infinite in Effence, cannot be reftricted to any Place. It is contradictory to suppose that that which is boundles, should be bounded; it is just in other Words to fay, that that which hath no limits, nor possibly can have them, yet that it hath them; which is absord !

Befides, to be reftrained by any to a Place, is as inconfiftent with the Independency of God, as Motion from Place to Place is with his immutability or unchangablenefs!

It likewife follows from the Almightynefs of God, that he can Work every where, which could not be if he were limited to any Place.

And how can we fuppofe, that a perfect Being, who is poffels'd with all Perfection, can want that of Omniprefence, without a manifeft Contradiction? And that the various Perfections of God admit of no Degrees or Measures, follows neceffarily from his Simplicity. Compounded Beings admit of Degrees and Dimensions, but such as are Simple, have none: Sweet Things have their Degrees, but Sweetnefs itself is above all Degrees! But before I proceed to the Improvement of this Subject, I would have it observ'd, that altho' the Immensity and Omniprefence of God, does in the first place, concern his Effence, yet that it doth also respect his Knowledge, his Operations, his Providence, by his Effence. Hence all Things are faid to be naked and open unto the Eyes of him with whom we have to do, Heb. iv. 13. And hence God is faid to uphold all Things by the Word of his Power, Heb. i. 3. Now in respect of God's Operations, he is faid to be variously present with Creatures.

Ift. In Heaven, he is prefent by his Glory: There he makes his divine Majefty and Glory, peculiarly manifeft to the equal Admiration and Delight of Saints and Angels! Hence that bleffed Place is call'd the Throne of God, Ifa. lxvi. I. And bis dwelling Place, 2 Chron. vi. 21.

2d. On Earth, God is prefent by his Grace, enlightning, adopting, fanctifying and comforting his People; hence the Spirit is promis'd for thefe Ends, Job. xvi. 8. 9. 3d. In Hell, God is prefent by his Juflice, Pfa. exxxix. 8. If I make my Bed in Hell, lo thou art there: There in that awful Vault of Horror and Mifery, are dreadful difplay's of divine Vengeance upon damned Angels and damned Souls, without Intermifilon and without End ! I might alfo obferve that the Almighty is prefent after an inexpreffible Manner, with the human Nature of CHRIST, by the Hypoflatical Union, Col. ii. 9. For in him dwells all the fullnefs of the Godbead bodily. God was alfo prefent with the Prophets after an extraordinary Manner, by Wifdom and Revelation I Pet. i. 11. And fo with the Apoftles, by whom he wrought divers Miracles; and the Almighty may be faid to be in a general Way prefent with all the Works of his Hands, fupporting all Creatures by his Power, and Governing all their Motions by his Providence to his own Glory, and his Peoples Good. I proceed to the Improvement of this Subject. And,

Ift. The ferious Confideration of the Greatnefs and Infinity of God, compar'd with the Nothingnefs of Mankind, may juftly make us afham'd of our Pride, and humble us before him! With what becoming abafednefs did Abram of old fpeak to God upon this Account, Gen. xviii. 27. Bekold now I have taken upon me to fpeak to the Lord, who am but Duft and Afkes! And do not the Angels, those Nobles of the Court of Heaven, for the very fame Readon vail their Faces before him, Ifa. vi. God is Infinite in his Being and all his Attributes; and what are we but Skadows, Worms, Locufts, drops in the Bucket, a little Duft in the Balance, yea as Nothing and lefs than Nothing. For what Proportion is there between what is finite and infinity? How juftly may we therefore ufe the Pfalmifts Exclamation, Pfal. viii. 4. What is Man that thou art mindful of kim?

2diy, The Confideration of the Infinity of God, fhould incline us to Modefty in our Thoughts of divine Myfteries, fuch as the facred Trinity, the hypoftatical Union of two Natures in the Perfon of Chrift, and any other Difficulties we meet with in Scripture, to which our weak Underftandings are not equal. In this Cafe it would be of excellent Ufe, humbly to call to Mind the Words of our Text, Great is the Lord and greatly to be praifed, his Greatnefs is unfrarchable. As well as the faying of Zophar, Job xi. Canft theu by fearching find out God, canft theu know the Almighty to Perfection, it's higher than Heaven, what canft theu do?

In respect of these Things we must use the Apostle's admitting Exclamation, Rom. xi. 33. O! the Depth of the Riches, of the Wisdom and Knowledge of God, how unfearchable are his fudgments, and his Ways pass funding out !

ble cre his fudgments, and bis Ways pass finding out ! 3dly, 1: Jebovab infinite in his Being and Attributes. Then how worthy is he of our highest Love, entirest Confidence, Confidence, and freeft Choice ? As Excellency is the proper Object of Love, fo by Confequence an Infinity of it muft needs demerit our dearcft and moft fupream Refpects ! And how fafely may we repofe our whole Truft in a Being, who is infinite and immutable in Wildom, Power and Goodnefs ? Who would not then make choice of fo glorious a Being, for his Portion and Inheritance ? For furely as the Pialmift obterves, Happy is the People whole God is the Lord, Pja. exliv. ult. The Excellency's of poor Creatures are variable and limitted, and while here, ftain'd with many Defects and Blemifhes, they often deceive our Expectation ! Hence the Perfon is curs'd who truffeth in Man, or maketh Flefth his Arm ! Sometimes they cannot, and fometimes they will not help us in extremity. Let us therefore difchaim all Dependance on them, all immoderate Love to them, and make the infinite 'febovah the only Foundation of our Religious Truft, the only Object of our transcendent Refpect and Love ! But the only Object of our transcendent Respect and Love! But 4thly. Is 'febovab great? Then be is greatly to be prais'd, this is the Pfalmi/t's inference in our Text. If it be proper to make Panegyricks or commendatory Orations in thePraife of temporal Princes, on the Account of their Greatnes, how much more fo must it be to praise the King of Kings and Lord of Lords! He, and He only, is abfolutely great! Great of himfelf, independently Great, invariably Great: As his Greatness depends upon none, fo it is Subject to no Alteration: Likewise the Almighty is comparetively and fuperlatively Great : Great above all Gods, yea infinitely and inexpcflibly Great ; Great without Bounds, and beyond all Expreflion and Conception. Whereas the greatness of the most puisfant Monarchs on Earth, is deriv'd, dependent, variable, and finite. Now we should Praise the great God, 1st. In our Hearts, by thinking great Things of him, yea the greateft eft, feeing Jebovah transcends the highest flight of an Angels-Thought; by a great Esteem of him above all others and of his Prefence, Love, Promifes, Worship. By a great and infatiable Defire after a Senfe of his Love, and conformity to his Nature, as well as after the Manifestation of his Glory and the Promotion of his Kingdom, Pfal. lxxxiv. 1, 2. How amiable are thy Tabernacles O Lord of Hofts ! My Soul longeth, yea even fainteth for the Courts of the Lord, and my Fleff cryeth out for the living God ! And farther we should Praife God in our Hearts, by Delight and Complacency in him, and in all his Ways of dealing towards us, as well as by ex-pecting to receive great Things from a great God! How condefcending and amazing is that Place of Scripture mentioned by the Royal Prophet Ifa. xlv. 11. Thus faith the Lord the Holy one of Israel, afk me of things to come concerning my Sons, and concerning the Work of my Hands, command ye me. Jebovah delights to manifest the dazling Glory of his Greatnels and Infinity, in compaffing great Salva-tion for his People! And therefore as we may freely afk great Mercy's from God, fo we may fafely expect them ! For who can control Omnipotence, or fet bounds to Infinity? and therefore when in our thoughts, we Queftion his Almightinefs, we turn back from God and tempt him, and limit the holy one of Ifrael, (Pfal. 78. 41.)

2dly, We fhould praife God with our Lips, by declaring among others with a loud Voice, his infinite Greatnets and Excellency, and exciting others to do the fame, (Pfal. eiii. 8, 20, 21.) And,

3dly, We should praise the great God by our Lives; by a profound Reverence of his Majesty, and fear of offending him, even in the smallest Things, by an earnest Endeavour to obey and please him, and by an infinite defire, and steady Care to enjoy him here and forever! But, 5thly, Omniprefence apply'd, 5thly, Is Jebovab Infinite? Then we may hence learn the dangerous Cafe of those who flight God; but who are they, and what is their Mifery?

Anfw. 1st. All such as fay in the Pride of their Hearts with Pharach, who is the Lord that I should obey him? Ex. ii. Or like those whom fob speaks of, Job xxi. 14. They fay unto God, depart from us, for we define not the Knowledge of thy Ways; what is the Almighty that we should force him?

2dly, All fuch as abuse the Kindness and Long-fusfering of God. Rom. ii. 4, 5. Or despises the Riches of his Goodness and Forbearance, not knowing that the Goodness of God leadeth to repentance. Sc.

3dly, Thofe flight Jebovab, who flight his Embaffadors, (Luke x. 16.) And 4thly, Thele who prefer any Thing in this World before him, 2 Tim. iii. 4. Lovers of Pleafures more than Lovers of God. How dreadful is the Cale of all fuch, feeing they have an infinite God against them? How can they endure his infinite Wrath, and which Way can they elcape it? Not by Craft, for he is infinite in Wifdom and Knowledge; not by Might, for he is infinite in Power. When he but touches the Mountains they fmoke, yea the Hills tremble at his Prefence ! Not by Flight, for he is every where Prefent. If they take the Wings of the Morning and fly to the utmost Ends of the Earth, if they afcend the Top of Carmel or defcend into the Deeps of the Ocean, yet they cannot elcape the Cognizance of God's Eye, or the reach of his Arm ! He is wife in Heart and mighty in Strength, who hath bardned kimfelf against him and propered?

6thly. We found be excited by the confideration of God's infinite Greatnefs, to be bold and magnanizants in the Service of God, particularly in undertaking great Lebsurg for God, and in encountering great Difficulties and Dangers in Z the Way of Duty, feeing that God will be to us at laft, as to Abram of old, an exceeding great reward. And farther we fhould express magnanimity in a generous Contempt of all worldly Gain and Grandeur, when compared with God and his Service. And in a frequent Meditation upon, and vigorous Profecution of divine and heavenly Objects! We are the Sons of a great Prince, born to a great Inheritance, and we are redeemed by a great Price, no less than the Biood of the Son of God: Seeing that the great God is our Shield and Buckler, let us despife the Threats of Worms, that are cruth'd before the Moth! But 7thly. Is God Immenle, and every where Prefent? This opens a Scene of fweet Confolation to God's People in every Danger and Difficulty, becaule he is prefent with them, not only with his Effence, but by his Grace. What then tho' they fhould walk thro' the Valley and fkadow of Death, yet they need fear no Evil, for God is with them, and kis Rod and Staff fkall comfort them ! Particularly if they are in Solitude, Bapifhment, in Prifon, under Perfecution, the Power of Deceafes, or any other Calamity. How fweet is it to think that God is at their right Hand, yea as a Wall of Fire about them ! And therefore it may be faid to them as 'fulius Cæfar fpoke to the Ship-Mafter in the 'Time of a Storm, " Truft to fortune, faid he, for Julius is in the Ship." And as Alexander to a Soldier, " While I am prefert, faid he, " fear the Arms of no Adverfary, tho' you yourfelves be un-" arm'd." And as Auguftine, " What Man flouddell thou " fear webo art plac'd in the Bofom of God," This is well exprefs'd in the following Stanza.

Sic ubi Chriflus adeft, nobis vel aranea murus. Sic ubi Chriflus abeft, vel murus aranea fiet. i. e. When CHRIST is prefent, Cobwebs as Walls we fee. But when he's abfent, Walls as Cobwebs be !

O ! how refreshing is it to think that God is not only with his People, present by his Essence, but present by his Wisdom, Power and Providence! to conduct, support, protect and revive them in every Difficulty, and to fancily them to them. How careful should we be therefore, that this great omniprefent God, should be ours in the Covenant of his Grace, by embracing the Mediator of the Covenant by a living Faith, and living to him that died for us. We may be separated from our earthly Friends very far, but God is every where : He was with Daniel in the Den of Lyons; with Jonab in the Water ; with the three Children in the Fire ; with Paul and Silas in Prifon, and with John in the Retirements of Patmos ! If we live humbly and watchfully, no human Art or Violence can seperate him from our Embraces! Well might the Pfalmift fay of him, that he is a present Help in the Time of Trouble.

8thly, Is God Omnipresent? Then his Eye is continually upon us, in our most retir'd Recesses. This Confideration should excite us to detest and avoid all fecret Sins, because a holy God, a just Judge, and righteous Avenger of Sin continually beholds us ! and is prefent with us in our most obscure Retreats ! The Darkness bides not from him, but the Night fhines as the Day. Hence the Lord himfelf commanded the Ifraclites to remove every filthy Thing out of their Camp, becaufe he walk'd in the midit thereof least he should turn away from them, Deut. xxiii. 14. The atheiftical Imagination that God is far off, and takes no Cognizance of human Actions, is the fatal Source of Sin and Security ! Hence fome are induc'd to commit those Evils in Secret, which they dar'ft not do, in the Prefence of the meanest Witness, not confidering that Confcience is as a Thousand Witneffes, and that God is infinitely greater than our Hearts, and knoweth all things, 1 Job. iii. 20. A

A Senfe of God's Omniprefence and Omnifcience, is a most excellent Defensative against feeret Impicty, it was by this, that gallant and virtuous Yofeph, was ded off the formidable Aflant of his lacivious Withrefs, Gen. xxxiv. 9. How can I do this great Wickednefs, and Sin against God? And by this Yob repell'd Tempeations to Idolatry, Job xxxi. 26, 27, 28. If I beheld the Sun when it shin'd, or the Moon walking in Erightness, and my Heart hath been secretly enticed, or my meuth hath hissed my Heart hath been secretly enticed, or my meuth hath hissed my Heard, this also were an Iniquity to be punified by the Judge; for I should have densed the God that is above. The following Council of a Pagan is worthy of Remark, "Turpe quod astarus te fine teste, i. e. If then art about to do any Thing Base or Igneble, be afraid of your felf, tho' there be no Writness. It was likewide a noble Answer of a Christian to a heathen Philofopher, who being ask'd where his God was, reply'd, "Let " me first understand from you sobere be is not." But, othly, Is God Immenfe and Omniprefent? Then we should be hereby excited to fecret Duty, and all manner of Sincerity. The Lord is every where Prefent with us, "For "God is all Eye, and continually behelds us; be is all Ear "and inceffantly bears us," as Augustine observes. He bottles all our Tears, and records all our fecret Sighs and Groans, none of our Wrestlings will be lost! For that God who now fees in Secret, will by and by reward openly. Surely Solitarine's should neither embolden us to Sin, or hinder us from Duty. Mr. Leigh in his Body of Divinity, tells the following Story of two religious Men, who took two contrary Courses with two leud Women in order to reclaim them, "The one come to one of the Women as defirous "of her Company, fo it might be with feerefy, and when she " head brought him to a close Room that none could pry into, " then he told her that all the Belts and Bars which were, " could Omniprefence apply'd.

" could not keep God out. The other defired to accompany " with the other Woman openly in the Street, which when " fhe rejected as a mad request, he told her it was better " to do it before the Eyes of a multitude than of God.

In fine let us be exhorted to labour to walk fincerely with God evermore, and every where as prefeat with us; in Imitation of Enoch, Gen. v. 24. And Enoch walked with God: Of Noab Gen. vi. 9. Noah was a just Man and perfeet in his Generations, and Noah walked with God : Of Abram, Gen. 17. 1. This the Holy Scriptures many Ways require, when it urges us not only to walk with God, but to walk before him, after him in his Name, and by his Spirit. Let us therefore obandon all Hypocrify, walk with Fear and Reverence as under the Eye of God; on the one Hand abstainingfrom every Evil, becaufe of a prefent God; and on the other Hand embracing every opportunity to do prefent Good, without delay and without difguise, not with Eye Service as Men pleafers, but in finglenefs of Heart fearing God, that we may have the Testimony of our Consciences here, and be accepted of by the great Omniprefent and Omnifcient God hereafter ; which may God grant for CHRIST's fake.

SERMON IX.

ROMANS xi. 33, 34. O the Depth of the Rickes both of the Wifdom and Knowledge of God! How unfearchable are his Judgments, and his Ways past finding out. For who hath known the Mind of the Lord, or who hath been his Counfellor.

HIS Text contains an admiring Exclamation, refpecting the transcendent Knowledge and Wildom of God, more efpecially apparent in the Bufineis of Redemption and Predefination, in which we may observe three Things viz. Ift. The Person exclaiming, Paul an Apostie, yea one of the most eminent of that Order. A Person of a piercing Genius, and polite Learning, bred at the Feet of Gamaliel, a Perfon of great Advances in Grace and divine Knowledge, a Perfon peculiarly fumous for unwearied and extensive Labours to promote the Good of Mankind, and moreover one whom the Almighty was pleafed to infpire after an extraordinary Manner, to communicate the Knowledge of himfelf in his Son to a loft World! Yet here we may behold this excellent Perfon maz'd and nonplus'd, and that in a Matter belonging to his own Province, a Matter which he made the fubject of his careful linquiries ! This leads to a 2d, Particular in the Exclamation, viz..

viz. The Particle O! which is the Manner of it. This reprefents the Strength and vehemence of the Apoftles pious Paffion, in this and in the two preceeding Chapters, he had spoken of many profound Mysteries, and answered many critical Questions. But here he makes a Pause, and falls into an Admiration of God, in refpect of his Wildom and Knowledge! He feems like a Man who wades in deep Waters, till he loofes Ground, and then cries out, O the Depth! And io proceeds no farther. Mr. Pool in his Synoplis justly observes, " That the Words of our Text are an " Epilogue or Conclusion of the whole preceeding Disputation, " by which he teaches that he had aduced fome Reasons of " Election and Reprobation, but that he neither know them " nor had taught them perfectly. As if he had faid I have ex-" pounded these Things as I could ; but I am Jwallow'd up " in the Abyfs of the Councils of God, which cannot be fearched " to Perfection, but must be adored." Now the 3d. Particular in the Exclamation, or Outcry is the Matter of it viz. The Depth and Unfearchablenefs of the Riches of God's Wildom and Knowledge, in his Judgments and Ways. By the Judgments of God, the Context leads us to understand, his Decrees and Purposes ! And by his Ways, the Execution of them in General, and more especially that Instance thereof which appear'd in the Rejection of the Jews, and calling in of the Gentiles to their Priviledges. The Apostle declares concerning both, that they are Unfearchable i. e. they cannot be fully understood, and perfectly found out by any Creature, however intelligent be be, especially in this World "It's a Metaphor (fays Pcol "in his Annotations) taken from Hounds, who have no Scent of "the Game which they purfue. Nor can Men trace the "Lord, or find out the Reajon of his Providential Astings " and

The Text explain'd.

" and therefore flould forbear cenfuring them." Tho' great Wildom and Knowledge attend the divine Purpofes and Providences, yet it is fuch a Depth, as cannot be founded thoroughly by the Line of human Reafon. And this the Apostle affures us of in the Text, which is under our prefent Confideration. O the Depth ! The Wifdom and Knowledge of God exceed all Dimensions, as Zothar elegantly obferves, Job xi. 8, 9. It is higher than Heaven, deeper than Hell, longer than the Earth and broader than the Sea ! The Word Riches fignifies an excess of Wealth, by which a Perfon has more than he needs. And therefore here it intimates the exceeding Abundance, and transvendent Eminence and Affluence of the divine Wildom and Knowledge, which we we can neither speak or think highly enough of! Altho' God's Wifdom and Knowledge be one and the fame in himfelf, yet in our Manner of conceiving of them they are dif-tinguish'd : For Knowledge is meerly speculative, and beholds Things fimply as they are ; but Wildom difpoies them in a certain order to fome valuable End.

From the Text thus explain'd, two Propolitions offer themfelves to our Confideration, viz. 1ft. That the Knowledge of God is deep, unfearchable and Infinite. And 2dly. That the Wildom of God is fo allo I return to the 1ft. Propolition which was as before deferib'd. Altho' Knowledge be put after Wildom in our Text, (perhaps by the Figure call'd byfleron protoron) yet in the Order of Nature it leems to be before it: For we first behold 'Things, before we difpofe them in any Order to a certain End. Now in difcourfing upon this Subject, I shall labour to profecute the following Order.

I. Prove the Infinity of the divine Knowledge.

II. Shew the Kinds thereof.

UI,

184

III. Speak of the Properties of God's Knowledge.

IV. Point to its various Objects, and laftly improve the whole. And 1ft. The facred Scriptures fully affert this Truth, P/. cxxxix. 9, 10. If I take the Wings of the Morning, and dwell in the utermost Parts of the Sea, even there shall thy Right Hand lead me. 1 Sam ii. 3. The Lord is a God of Knowledge, and by bim Actions are weighed. Pro. v. 21. The Ways of a Man are before the Lord and he pondereth all his Paths. Pro. xv. 3. The Eyes of the Lord are in every Place, beholding the Evil and the Good. Job xxxiv. 21, 22. For his Eyes are upon the Ways of Men, and he feeth all their Goings. There is no Darkness nor Shadow of Death, where the Workers of Iniquity may hide themselves. Heb. iv. 13. Neither is there any Creature that is not manifest in kis Sight, lut all Things are naked and opened unto the Eyes of him, with whom we have to do.

And right Reafon affures us of the fame Truth. For

1ft. Seeing to know and understand is an Excellency involving no Imperfection in it, it cannot without a Contradiction, be deny'd to an infinitely perfect being. And 2dly. How can the supream Being be without Knowledge, feeing he is the Fountain and Original of all that Knowledge, which intelligent Beings poffers? It is in his Light, that they fee Light. Shall not be that planted the Eye fee, and he that form'd the Ear hear ? And without Knowledge what would the Almighty be but an Idol of whom it is faid, Pf. cxv. 6, 7. That they have Eyes and fee not, Ears and hear not. But thus to imagine of God, is the bafeft Blasphemy! Now the infinite Extent of the divine Knowledge, is evident from the following Confiderations, viz.

ift. Becaufe it is the fame with his Being, which his Simplicity affures us of. Now the Being of God has been A a

prov'd to be infinite in a preceeding Sermon, and therefore his Knowledge must needs be fo, which coincides with it. And 2dly. Seeing God has given Being to all Things at First, it cannot without a Contradiction be supposed, that he should be ignorant of the Effects of his own Power. Must not a Workman know his Work? Besides

3dly. As Jebovab by his Almightinefs has brought the whole Universe out of Nothing into Being, fo he continually fupports the fame, otherwise it would immediatley return to its primitive Non-Entity or Nothingnefs: For it is in himsee live move and bave our Being. As we could not at first begin to exist without Gol, fo neither can we subfist a Moment, or think, or speak, or act without him, who is the great Source of Being and Spring of Motion! And 4thly. As God upholds every Thing by his Power, fo he governs. All by his fovereign wife and unerring Providence in the best Manner, and to the nobleft End. viz. His own Gkry. Surely then the End and Means conducing thereto, muft be known by him; and indeed if the Kingdom of God did not rule over all, as the Scriptures affert, all Nature would be in Confusion, the differdant Elements would immediately break their prefent Harmony, and jumble into the wildest Chaos, and confequently differe in a tumultuous and extensive Ruin! The Innecense, the Lives, the Goods of intelligent Creatures would instantly be made an easy Prey to repacious Lists and restifieds Violence! The whole Globe would grown with a melanchely Train of fueceflive Tragedice, and foon be ting'd with a crimfon Flood !

5thly. Seeing the Almighty hath fixed a Deputy in our Bofonse, I mean Confeience, whole Bufinefait is to obferve and register register our whole Behaviour, whole company we cannot shun, whole Cognizance we cannot escape! How much more then must the Almighty be acquainted with all our Ways? For he is greater than our Hearts, and knoweth all Things, as the Apostle John observes. Again

6thly. Methinks the Confideration of the general Judgment, gives additional Evidence to the aforefaid Truth, for how can Jebovah judge all, unlets he knows all? The Apostle asiures us, Rom. ii. 16. That God will bring every Work into Judgment, with every fecret Thing, whether it be Good or whether it be Evil. Yea, Hiftory both facred and prophane inform us, of God's bringing to publick Light crimton Evils, before veil'd with the Curtains of obfcureft Secrefy ! But I proceed to the 2d, propos'd, which was to fpeak of the Kinds of divine Knowledge. And here I may observe, that as it respects Creatures, it is two fold, viz. Either intuitive, or approbative, or as others phrafe it, general or special. Now God's general Knowledge, or his Knowledge of Intuition is that Property of the Almighty, whereby he only knows, or beholds all Things. In this Senfe it is faid Acts xv. 18. That known unto God are all bis Works from the Beginning of the World. And

2dly. God's approbative or fpecial Knowledge, is that divine Perfection, whereby Jebovah knows fo, as to approve of, and delight in what he knows! Hence our Lord, Mat. vii. 22. commands the Wicked to depart from him, and tells them that he never knew them, that is fo as to approve of them. But I pais on to the

3d. Propos'd, which was to speak of the Properties of God's Knowledge. And

Ift. The Knowledge of God is most Simple, inafinuch as he beholds at once all Things in himfelf, without the Ule of any of those Methods, whereby human Knowledge is ac-A a 2. quir'd, quir'd, viz. The Composition of Things of the fame Kind, the Separation of Things of a different Kind, the comparing of one Thing with another, and the inferring of one Thing from onother. Hereby the human Mind proceeds gradually in a Way of reafoning, from the Knowledge of Things more known, to the Knowledge of Things lefs known, but it is the Weaknefs of our Understandings, that renders those Meatures neceffary, and therefore they cannot confift with the Perfection of the fupream Being. If a Succeffion in Duration be an Imperfection, as was prov'd in a preceeding Sermon concerning the Eternity of God, a Succeffion in Knowledge must be fo likewife : For as it neceffarily infers Increate of Knowledge by Obtervation and Experience, fo it as evidently fuppoles preceeding Ignorance, which to aferibe to the Almighty is deteftable Blafphemy. And 2dly. The Knowledge of God is Independent, becaufe it is not in him as an Accident, Quality, or Idea, different and feparable from his Effence, as it is in Creatures : For then he would be compounded of different Things, as Creatures are, and fo might in Time ceafe to be. No, his Simplicity affures us, as I obferv'd before, that his Knowledge is the very fame with his Effence, it is no other than God knowing, and therefore muft needs be independent. That the Effence of God is independent, has been already proved in a preceeding Sermon. But to proceed preceeding Sermon. But to proceed 3dly. The Knowledge of God is Eternal, inalinuch as he neither begins, or ceafes to know, as the Things known by him begin or ceafe to be in themfelves. The Reafon of which is, becaufe he knows all Things by bis own Effence or eternal Purpofes, and not by receiving Species, or Images, or Ideas from Objects without himfelf, as Creatures do. Here obferve that two Things are required to conflitute conftitute the Knowledge of Creatures, viz. 1ft. The Images or Ideas of Things. And 2dly. the Speculation of them, which implies the receiving of those Ideas thro' the outward Senfes by the Fancy and Contemplation of them being receiv'd, which confifts partly in the Comparison of a Composition, Division, Affirmation, or Negation; and partly in Deductions, or Reafonings, whereby we proceed from Things more known to Things lefs known. The Method of human Knowledge is by comparing, compounding, di-viding and fubftracting the Images of Things receiv'd ; as alfo by confidering their Connection and Dependance, and infering one Thing from another. But the Ideas of God are not borrow'd from outward Objects? For if fo, Creatures must exist, before the divine Knowledge; and then it would be temporary and finite, this cannot be without the Deftruction of the divine Effence. Two Things indeed are neceffary to the divine Knowledge in our Apprehenfion diftinct. viz. The Prefence of Ideas and the Perception of them, to that it may be thus defcrib'd to be a perfect Intuition of himfelf or his own Ideas, but without any receiving of them from without, and without any Comparison, Composition, Division, or Inferences, as was observ'd before, respecting the Knowledge of Creatures, for all fuch Things, do manifefty involve Imperfection. Amefius in his Medulla fayeth, " That " the Idea of Gad, is no other than his very Effence, as " it is underflood by him to be imitable, in the Creature, or fo " that the Image of that Perfection, may after fome fort be " express' d in Creatures." The Idea in a Man, is deriv'd from the Things themfelves, and therefore the Things must first exist in themselves, then they approach our Senses, and from thence to our Understanding, where they conftitute some Idea to direct a following Operation; but the Idea of the Almighty is the Model or Pattern, which firft exifis, exifts, according to which, Things in Time are exactly form'd, which Idea as it is abfoloutely confidered in Relation to God, is but one, becaufe it is his Effence; but as it is confidered respectively, it is manifold, because it denotes many respects to the Creatures, so that the Idea of one Creature, is not the Idea of another. Thus it appears that Things are known by God as they are, and that there is a Connexion and Dependance among the divine Ideas. Whenee fprings the Order of Prior and Pofterior, which we obferve in Predefination and Providence? It is doubtlefs on the Account of the Manifoldness of the divine Idea, in the former Senfe, that his Knowledge receives various Names; in respect of the Truth of Things, 'tis call'd Knowledge, in respect of its Extent, 'tis call'd Omniscience, in respect of Pall Things' tis calld Remembrance. (Plal. xxv. 6, 7.) In respect of prefent Things Sigkt. (Heb. iv. 13.) In respect of future Things Fore-Knowledge. (Rom. viii. 29.) In respect of the divine ordering of Things to a good End, 'tis called Wildem, in respect of the Knowledge of the most fit and proper Scafons for all Things, it is call'd Prudence. But 4thly. The Knowledge of God is immutable, he knows not one Thing more than another, neither does he know Things more now than formerly, or more formerly than now; becaufe he beholds all Things in his immutable Fiftence or Purpofes, and in his Eternity, by which he exifts without any Succeffion in Duration, altogether utmov'd in all the different Periods of Time.

5thly. The Knowledge of God is Infinite perfect and diffinct, he knows all Things without Sufficient of Ignorance or Error. His Knowledge is diffinct and particular, not confus'd and general. Hence it is faid, that when he had finified the Works of Creation, that he faw every Thing, and behold it was very good, that is, fuited to answer the the End intended for them, agreeable to the Idea or Plan respecting them, which was from Everlasting in his own Mind. Besides the Knowledge of God is certain and infallible, without any Hesitation or Possibility of Mistake : And therefore exceedingly differs from the Knowledge of Creatures, who can but guess and conjecture at Things to come, according to the present Appearances, and probable Tendency of Things. This last Property of the divine Knowledge naturally leads to the 4th propos'd, which was to point to the various Ohjects of the Knowledge of God, the Consideration of which will be a farther Confirmation of it's infinite Extent, by an Induction of Particulars. And

If. God knows bimfelf and his own infinite Mind. viz. What he has done, can do, or will do. Rom. xi. 34. For who hath known the Mind of the Lord, and who hath been his Counfellor, or who hath first given to him? Here it is fuppos'd, that the' Creatures know not the Mind of God, yet he does himfelf, and of himfelf, without Affiftance from others. Seeing it is an Excellency in an intelligent Creature to know himfelf, the' but in an imperfect Degree, therefore felf Knowledge in the higheft degree of Eminence, must be aferib'd to the Almighty, who is infinitely perfect, and if to, then the Almighty must needs know all Things, because they are included in his Power and Purpose.

2dly. God knows all Things poffible. As the Power of God is unlimited, he certainly can do infinitely more than he does, or will do. This extent of his Power he muft needs know, becaufe he knows himfelf, the Almighty can do all Things that do not involve a Contradiction. e.g. He could create, if he pleafed, Millions of Worlds, and Millions of more Orders of Creatures in them than there be in this! We our felves, as free Agents, can do more than we do, and as intelligent Agents we know the Inftances wherein. in: And how much more must this be afcrib'd to God, who is infinite in Power, and calls the Things that are not as the they were? When David enquired of God I Sam. xxiii. 12. Will Saul come down, and will the Men of Keilah deliver me up? The Almighty anfwered they will. Which fignifies that the Almighty knew they would, except they had been prevented by his Providence. This Knowledge of Things poffible, is call'd by Zanchy and others "The "Science of fimple Intelligence."

3dly. The Almighty knows all Things that have been, are, or fhall be. This is call'd the Science of Vision, which respects the Existence of Things, And

1ft. The Almighty knows all Things faft, for they were once prefent, nay they may be faid, in propriety of Speech, to be now prefent to God, because he has no Succeffion in Duration, one Day is with him as a Thousand Years, and a Thousand Years as one Day. To suppose that the Almighty torgets any Thing, is in other Words to fay that his Knowledge is less perfect than it was, which cannot confift with infinite Perfection. And zdly. God knows all Things prefent, which the Reafons before offered to prove the Infinity of his Knowledge fufficiently confirm. Seeing all Things depend upon his Power and Providence, they must be known by him, for his Knowledge and Power cannot be feparated.

3dly. God likewife knows all things future, or to come, whether they are produced by a neceffary Caufe, fuch as Fire or Water; or a voluntary Caufe, fuch as Men who act by rational Complacency, or a contingent Caufe, which by its Nature, or in it Self, is not determin'd to this or that Effect. The many Prophefies of the Prophets concerning Events, many Ages before they came to pafs, fufficiently confirm this Truth. It was well obferv'd by Tertullian againft The Objects of divine Knowledge.

against Marcion, " That the fore Knowledge of God, has as " many Witneffes, as he has made Prophets." Was not Judas's betraying our Lord an Effect of a voluntary or free Caufe? And yet this was prophefied of. (John vi. ult. Acts iv. 28.) Of the like nature was Ifraels Oppression in Egypt, and yet this was foretold Four Hundred Years before it came to pafs. (Gen. xv. 13.) Was not Joseph's Advancement a contingent and very improbable Event, and yet it was made known feveral Years before it came to pals by his Dream. (Gen. xxxvii. 5.) What could be more contingent than Ahab's Death by a Random-shot, and yet this was foretold before he entred the Field of Battle. I Kings xxii. 17, 34. Things are faid to be contingent and accidental, becaufe they happen or come to pafs unexpectedly to us, without our Defign or Knowledge, and becaufe the Caufes that produce them, are not in themfelves neceffarily determin'd to produce fuch an Effect; but nothing can come to pafs without Jebovab's Cognizance, and Furpore. And hence the Scriptures inform us, that the most minute Events, fall within the Care and Compass of his Providence, which extends it felf to the most inconfiderable Creatures, a Sparrow cannot fall to the Ground, without our Fathers Permiffion, and the very Hairs of our Head are numbered. Mat. x. 29, 30. The Time would fail, if I should relate all the Propheties mentioned reipectingCHRIST. I shall therefore rather choose toobserve, in Addition to what has been faid, that Almighty God knows all that concerns intelligent Beings in particular, as may appear by the following Inftances, viz.

ift. He knows all their Actions Pf. cxix. 163. For all my Ways are before thee. There is no Darknefs or Shadow of Death, where the Workers of Iniquity may hide themfelves.

2dly. He knows all our Words, Pial. cxxxix. 4. For there is not a Word in my Tongue, but lo, O Lord, thou knowest it altogether.

3 dly. He knoweth our Hearts, this he claims as his pe-culiar Prerogative, Rev. ii. 23. And all the Churches shall know that I am he that fearcheth the Reigns and Hearts. He knows the Thoughts of the Heart : Hence he is faid to know them afar off, i. e. From Eternity, as Divines generally interpret; and hence he is likewife faid to tell unto Man his Thoughts, Amos iv. 13. He knows the Imagination of the Thoughts of the Heart. Gen. vi. 5. And God faw that the Wickedness of Man was great on the Earth, and that every Imagination of the Thoughts of his Heart was only Evil continually. By the Imagination of the Thoughts, we may understand Thoughts in their Embryo not fully form'd. He knows the Intention of the Heart, Heb. iv. 12. And is a difeerner of the Thoughts and Intents of the Heart. He knows the Bent of the Heart, Hol. 11. 7. And my People are bent to Back-fliding from me, though they call'd them to the most high, none at all would exalt bim. And the Knowledge God hath of what has been mention'd, and of every thing elfe, is certain and evident. Hence Zanchy pertinently observes. " That Knowledge by " the Understanding, is either Opinion, Faith or Science. " Opinion, faith he, is neither a certain or evident Knowledge, " but so affents to the affirmative or negative Part that it "Doubts concerning the other. Faith, fays he, is a certain, " but not evident Knowledge ! (Heb. xi. 1.) but Science is " both a certain and evident Knowledge, this therefore up-" on both Accounts is truly and properly aferib'd to God." But against what has been offer'd in Confirmation of

But against what has been offer'd in Confirmation of the Infinite and universal Extent of Gods Knowledge, the Pelagians and Socinians object, 1st. That God is faid to be be griev'd, Gen. vi. 6,7. That he expected good Grapes of bis Vine, Ifa. v. 2. That he tryed the Faith and Obedience of Abraham, and in refpect of it faid, now I know that thou fearest God. Gen. xxii. 12. To this we answer, with Athanasius, "That those and such like Places of Scrip-"ture, are spoken after the Manner of Men, but should be "understood so as to consist with the divine Perfection." They are defign'd to repent the exceeding Contrariety of Evil to the Purity of the divine Nature, and the Agreeableness of what is Good thereto.

Object. 2. It is faid concerning the inhuman Barbarities which the People of Judab committed in the Valley of Hinnom, that it came not into the Heart of God, Jer. vii. 31.

Anfw. The whole Verfe confidered together explains itfelf: There we have these Words, which I commanded them not : So that the meaning of the Scripture appears to be no more than this, that it never came into the Almighty's Heart to command or approve of the Wickedness of Israel, in facrificing their Children to Moloch.

Object. 3. Future Contingencies have no determin'd Certainty.

Anfre. It's true they have not in themfelves, but they have in the Decree of God, who does all Things after the Council of his own Will, Eph. i. 11. But I proceed to the Improvement. And

ift. The Confideration of God's Omnifcience fhould deter us from fecret Sins. Impenitent Transgreffors are apt to fpeak in the Language of Eliphaz, How doth God know? Can be judge thro' the thick Cloud? Thick Clouds are a covering to him, that he feeth not, and he walketh in the Circuit of Heaven. But it is vain for Men to encourage themfelves thus in finning by hopes of Secrefy; For there is no Darknefs or fkadow of Death where the Workers of Iniquity may hide themselves. The Darknefs is as the Light to God, and the Night fhines as the Day. As Augufline obferves, "Jehovah is all Eye," he not only beholds fecret Impieties with just Indignation, but records them in order to the last Judgment. Then will be made manifest the hidden Councils of Sinners Hearts : Then shall they be exposed to all that Shame and Misfery, which their difguifed Impieties deferve ! And 2dly. The Confideration of God's Omniscience flould powerfully incite us to fecret Duties, feeing our heavenly Father who feeth in fecret will reward openly, Mat. vi. 4. Hypocrites love much outward Show and Oftentation, as the Pharifees of old, who made Broad their Philacteries.---But truly pious Souls incline to ferene much of their Devotion from others Observance, by a Vail of Modesty. How comfortably does our Lord speak to his Church in her Retirements. Cant. ii. 14. O my Dove, that art in the Clifts of the Reck, in the fecret Places of the Stairs, let me fee thy Countenance, let me bear thy Voice; for feeet is thy Voice, and thy Countenance is comely, 3dly. This Subject alfo invites us to be fincere both in our fecret and publick Duties, and in all manner of Converfation after David's Example, 1 Chron. XXV. 17. I know alfo my God that thou tryeft the Heart, and halt Pleafure in Uprightnefs. Seeing that the most retir'd Receffes of our Souls are open to the All-penetrating Eye of God, let us watch our Hearts diligently and chiefly labour to approve our felves to him, who principally requires the Heart, without which all outward Service is but a fpecious Kind of Mockry. And athly. The Confideration of the divine Omnifcience fhould make us afham'd of our Ignorance; furely we are but of of Yesterday, and know nothing comparatively. What Reafon have we to lament with Agur, that we are as brute Beasts before God, and have not attain'd to the Knowledge of the Holy? If we have a little Knowledge, let us beware that we be not puff'd up with it; for the highest acquired Attainments in Knowledge here, are as nothing compar'd with what we are Ignorant of; and lefs than nothing when compared with the infinite Abys of divine Knowledge. If we have received any Thing from God, why should we boast as tho' we had not received it, especially confidering that by those Talents we are more deeply indebted to God as Stewards under him, who must give an Account. And, sthly. Is God Omniscient? Then if we are fincere, we may hope and rejoice in him in every Difficulty, whether Perfonal or Publick ! Are we reproached by our fellow Crea-tures ? What then ? Let us fpeakin the Apoftle's Language, 2 Cor. i. 12. For our rejoycing is this, the Testimony of our Conficience, that in fimplicity and godly fincerity, not with flejlly Wildom, but by the Grace of God, we have had our Conversation in the World, and more abundantly to you-wards. Are we in Poverty and Want? our beavenly Father knoweth that we need Support. (Mat. vi. 31.) Are we perfecu-ted? our Father beholds the Mischief and the Spite, and will requite it with his Hand, as the Psalmist expresses it. Are we in Defertion, and ready to fay that God bath forgetten us ? How supporting is it in such a Cafe to think upon that iweet Paffage, Ifa. xlix. 15. Can a Woman forget her fucking Child? And that of the Apostle, 2 Tim. ii. 19. The Lord knoweth webs are his. What the' we be environ'd with Trouble, fo that we can't fee the finalleft Paffage open for an Efcape ; yet God knows how to deliver his People : He can with the Temptation, fend a Door of Deliverance ! And what the' the poor Church be covered vered with Clouds and Darknefs, and every way encompafs'd with Enemies and Diftreffes, fo that a human Underftanding is quite nonplus'd and cannot fee how Relief fhould come? Then it's comfortable to think that all Things are open to the Eye of God, and that he who fits in Heaven, derides the Councils of his Enemies, (Pfal. ii.) and will bring them to Nought in his own Time, and that no Weapon form'd againft Zion fhall profper.

In fine let us glorify God on the Account of his Knowledge, and cry out with the Apostle in our Text, O the Depth of the Knowledge of God ! And let us labour to imitate this divine Perfection, left we be as Brutes, in whom there is no Understanding, (Pfal. xxxii. 9) without divine Knowledge the Mind cannot be Good, as Solomon obferves. It was a pertinent Observation of Bishop Beveridge, in his Thoughts on Religion, " That as God would not ac-" cept of blind Sacrifices under the Law, fo wither will he " of blind Services under the Gofpel." Religion is a Reatonable Service and therefore it must be attended with. Knowledge (Rom. xii. 1.) The Almighty complains by the Prophet, that his People were destroy'd for lack of Knowledge. Hof. iv. 6. Hence the Almighty promifes to fend Paffors after his own Heart, which should feed the People with Knowledge and Understanding Jer. iii. 15. Hence the Priests Lips are faid to preferve Knowledge. But on the contrary its faid of the Pharifees, that they took away the Key of Knowledge, Luk xi. 52. And that the Ignorant and Inftable wreft the Scriptures to their own Deftruction. Therefore let us earneftly feek the Knowledge of God in the ufe of all proper Means, for this is the Foundation of all reafonable Religion.

ROMANS xi. 33, O the Depth of the Riches both of the Wifdom and Knowledge of God! How unfearchable are his Judgments, and his Ways past finding out.

y OU may remember that in the preceeding Difcourfe, after an Explication of the Text, I observ'd these two Propositions from it, viz. That the Knowledge of God was Deep, Unfvarchable, and Infinite. And 2dly, That the Wifdom of God was fo alfo. The first of which has been already difcours'd upon ; the 2d, therefore comes now to be confidered. In Relation to which it will be neceffary to fpeak upon these four Particulars following, wiz.

I. The Nature of the divine Wildom.

II. It's Kinds.

III. It's Properties or Qualities.

IV. Its Difflays. And laftly improve the whole. And, Ift. The divine Wifdom may be thus describ'd, viz. That it is that pecular Virtue or Perfection of the divine Mind, whereby the Almighty knows by what Methods he can best compass and illustrate his own Glory in all his Works, whether of Creation, Redemption, or Providence. There is a twofold Act of Wifdom, and both eminent in God. The first is Knowledge in the Nature of Things, which is call'd Science.

Science. The 2d. is Knowledge how to order and diffeter of Things in the best Manner, and to the best End, which is call'd Prudence. The Wisdom necessarily supposes Knowledge, yet it contains more than Knowledge; for there may be but little Wisdom where there is much Knowledge, the there can be no Wisdom without Knowledge! "Knowledge, as Dr., Ridgely well observes, is as it "were the Eye of the Soul, whereby it apprehends or fees" "Toings in a true Light, and so it is opposed to Ignorance, "or not knowing Things; but Wisdom is that whereby the "Soul is directed in the skilful Management of Things, or "in ordering them for the best. And this is opposed not fo "much to Ignorance or Error of Judgment, as to Folly, or "Error in Condust, which is a defect of Wisdom." In Wildom therefore there are these four Ingredients, viz. 1st. A fixing upon the noblest End.

2dly, A. Choice of the best Means, viz. Such as directly conduce to attain the End defign'd.

3dly, An alloting of the fitteft Seafon for the Use of the aforefaid Means, together with the Observation thereof.

4thly, A Forefight of, and Provision against all such Occurences, as may mar our Attainment of the End propos'd, or offer Occasion for uncass Sensations, on the Account of Missionagement! Now every of the aforetaid Ingredients are truly applicable to febovab: For 1st. he hath fix'd upon the best End in all his Works, viz. His own Glory. Hence it is faid that he made all Things for himsfelf, Pro. xvi. 4. But here it may be enquired, what is the Glory of God? And how does it appear to be the best End?

Anfre. The Glory of God may be thus defcrib'd, viz. That is the Brightnefs of his infinite Eminence known and manifested, But how does this appear to be the best End?

Anface.

Anfw. As God himfelf is the beft Being, the Manifeftation of himfelf, muft by Confequence be the moft excellent and noble End! And what is this but his declarative Glory? Seeing that Creatures are deriv'd from him as their producing Caufe, it is but reafonable that they fhould be referr'd to him, or his Glory as their End. Hence faith the Apostle, for of him, and thro' him, and to him are all Things ! But feeing that God is of himfelf, he can have no other final Caufe but himfelf. If he had any other Supream End but his own Glory, he would aim ultimately at fomething below himfelf, which is abfur'd, and depend on fomething befides himfelf, which is impossible. From what has been faid it is evident, that the first Character or Ingredient of Wifdom, viz. a fixing upon the noblest End, is justly applicable to Almighty God. I proceed to the

is juftly applicable to Almighty God. I proceed to the 2d. Which was the Choice of the beft Means directly conducing to attain the End defign'd. Now that this is applicable to God, will appear by the following Particulars. 1ft. Jebovab hath made his Glory manifeft or vitible, by engraving large and legible CharaCters thereof in his Word and Works, in both which we may eafly differ many Footfteps or Signatures of his adorable Attributes! Now without this Manifeftation, however Infinite and Tranfcendent, the effential Emminence or Perfection of God might be, yet it would not be perceived or celebrated by Creatures. And,

2dly, God hath made intelligent Creatures capable thro' his Affiftance and Influence to perceive, acknowledge, and honour his Excellency and Glory, manifefted as aforefaid. Tho' irrational and inanimate Creatures may objectively glorify God. In this refpect it is faid that the Heavens and Earth do flow forth God's Glory, i.e. They offer Occafion to inteligent Beings to magnify God's Name, by thewing the C c Power Power and other Perfections of God apparent in their Production. Rom. 1. 20. For the invisible Things of him, from the Creation of the World are clearly seen, being understood by the Things that are made, even his eternal Power and Godhead; so that they are without Excuse. Yet none but intelligent Creatures can actively and with Defign, Glorify God. And 3dly, Becaufe fome are either fo Stupid or Negligent, that they cannot or will not, in a way of reafoning, infer his Perfections from his Works; therefore the Almighty has implanted a Monitor in Mens Bofoms to inform them of their Duty, and reprefent the Danger of Neglect in the moft convincing Manner. Hence it is faid that the Heathens not having the Law, i. e. The moral Law written, were a Law unto themfelves: Their Confeiences in the mean Time accufing or excufing one another. And 4thly, To add Light and Force to the Inftructions and Admonitions of Confcience, and to enlarge our views of his Attributes, more obfcurely reprefented by his Works! Jehovab has added his Word, which he hath magnified ebove all bis Name. But to proceed, the

3d, Ingredient of Wifdom is likewfe applicable to the Almighty, for he hath appointed to every thing its Time and Seafon, and made them beautiful therein : All his Ways are Judgment, calculated in every of their Circumftances with the deepeft Penetration ! (Deut. xxxii. 4.) And

4thly, He hath guarded againft all adverse Occurrences, by his eternal and unalterable Purposes; his Almighty power and sovereign Providence, which preside over all Events: So that the Wrath of Man shall be constrain'd to praise him. He will in the Issue get himself Glory from all his Creatures, either in an objective, Active, or palive Way. His Mercy or Justice will have a Tribute of Honour from from all the intelligent Creation, either in their Salvation or Damnation ! But I proceed to the

2d. Propos'd, which was to fpeak of the Kinds of divine Wildom: Now the Wildom of God is twofold, viz. Ellential and Perfonal, the perfonal Wildom of God is our Lord JESUS CHRIST, he is call'd the Wildom of God, by way of Appropriation, on Account of his mediatorial Office: Because herein the divine Wildom has been most marvelously manifested, In bim, as Mediator for his Peoples Benefit, are bid all the Treasures of Wildom and Knowledge, Col. ii. 3. The effential Wildom of God is what is Common to all the Persons of the facred Trinity, and is the Subject of our present Discourse. I pais on therefore to the

3d. Propos'd, which was to mention the Properties or Qualities of divine Witdom. And

Ift. It is Infinite as our Text afferts, O the Depth of the Wildom and Knowledge of God, how unlearchable are his Judgments, and his Ways past finding out ! It must of necessity be Infinite, because it is himself.

2dly. Original Wildom, of this the Royal Prophet fpeaks in bold and noble Strains, Ifa. xl. 12, 13. Who bath meafured the Waters in the Hollow of his Hand, and meted out the Heavens with a Span, and comprehended the Duft of the Earth in a Measure, and weighed the Mountains in Scales, and the Hills in a Ballance? Who bath directed the Spirit of the Lord, or being his Counfellor bath taught kim? He is the great Fountain from which all created Beings derive their Streams; yea he is wildom it felf in the Abstract, which his Simplicity proves! And

3dly. He is universal Wisdom, John XXI. 17. Lord thou knowest all Things, thou knowest that I Love thee. And

4thly

4thly. He is unerring and infallible Wifdom; this then is the Meffage which we have heard of him, and declare unto you that God is Light, and in him is no Darknefs at all. 5thly. He is immutable Wifdom, and hence he is call'd 5thly. He is immutable Wifdom, and hence he is call'd the Father of Lights, with whom there is no Variablenc(s nor Shadow of turning.

6thly. He is incommunicable or unparallel'd Wifdom, and hence he is call'd the only Wife God, Rom. xvi. 27. He is likewife faid to be wonderfull in Council, and excellent in Working, Ifa. xxviii. 29. There is indeed fome faint Shadow of the divine Wifdom in Creatures, but the effential Wifdom of God cannot be communicated. The Wifdom of all Creatures put together, is but as a fingle Drop compar'd with the immenfe Ocean, of Wifdom in God. But the

4th. Propos'd comes now to be confidered, which was to speak of the Difplays of God's FVifdom in his FVorks. And

Ift. The Wifdem of God appears with much Beauty, in the Works of Creation: How noble is the Harmony that fublifts among the numerous Parts of this vaft Machine, notwith-ftanding of the difcordant Elements of which they are form'd? How amiable and amazing is the Order of Sub-fervicncy among its Parts, together with their general Tendency to promote the Good of the whole Frame? Hof. ii. 21, 22. I will hear, faith the Lord, I will hear the Heavens, and they fkall hear the Earth. And the Earth fkall hear the Corn, and the Wine, and the Oil, and they fkall hear ferred. The regular and fteady Motion of the heavenly Bodies, together with their Situation and Influence upon the Earth; as well as the Support, Conveyance, and diffolving of the Clouds in Rain and Dews fo neceffarily to refresh and render Fruitfull the parch'd Surface of this lower World; manifest the Depth of divine Wifdom, and juftly challange our our Admiration. Job. xxxviii. 31, 32, 33, 44. Canst thou bind the fweet influences of Pleiades, or loofe the Bands of Orion? Canft thou bring forth Mazzaroth in his Seafon, or canft thou guide Arcturus with his Sons? Knoweft thou the Ordinances of Heaven? Canst thou set the Dominion thereof in the Earth? Canst thou lift up thy Voice to the Clouds, that abundance of Waters may cover thee? How curious is the Structure of that little World the Body of Man, in respect of the Form, Number, and Situation of its Parts, both for Beauty and Service ? Of this the Planift admiring fays, I am fearfully and wonderfully made, marvelous are thy Works, and that my Soul knoweth right well. " The " Heathen Annatomist (lays Mr. Willard) read a God in " it, and was, transported to fing his Praise." Is it not admirable that among that vaft Variety of Parts, which compofe the World, that not one is Defective, not one Superfluous, or Redundant, even the fmaileft Infect loudly proclaims the Wildom of it's Former ? For what lefs than infinite Wifdom cou'd comprize all the Springs and Organs of Life, Senfe, and Motion in fo fmall a Compass ? How justly may we Use the Prophet Jeremiah's, and the Plalmist's Language? He bath made the Earth by his Power, he hath eftablish'd the World by his Wisdom, and strech'd out the Heavens by his Diferction. Lord how manifold are thy Works, in Wildom hast thou made them all. And 2dly. Is not the Wisdom of God display'd in the Work of Redemption most gloriously, even to the just Astonishment of Men and Angels? Hence the Apostle calls it the manifold Wisdom of God, Eph. iii. 10. (polupocilos Sophia) 'This the Angels defire to look into ! Divine Wisdom has found out a Way to fatisfy divine Justice, which was wrong'd by the Creatures revolt from God, thro' the Sufferings of a Mediator in their Room; a Way to magnify the Law, and make make it honourable by the perfect Obedience of the Son of God in the Tranfgreffors Place : Hereby both the Precept and Penalty of the Law are fully answered, and a Door opened for the Manifestation of rich, pure and glorious Grace, in the Remission and Salvation of fallen Mankind, without infringing upon the Rights of Juffice, Truth and Holinefs : Surely fuch a Devife as this, would have nonplus'd all the Creation. What lefs than infinite Wisdom could bring the greatest Glory to God, and the greateft Good to Mankind out of the greateft Evil, viz. Sin ? Both which are directly contrary to the Nature of it ! And this indeed is the true State of the Cafe; for as it is certain that Believers are now upon a more fure Foundation, respecting their Happiness, than our first Parents were before the Fall; because their Stock is now in the Hands of the Mediator, which was before in their own, fo-we cannot fee how the Grace and Mercy of God could have had fuch marvelous and bright Difplays, had not Sin been in the World ! 'Thus out of the Eater divine Wildom hath brought forth Meat, and out of the Strong, Sweetnefs. It might be here likewife obferved, that the deferring of the Metilias coming in the Flesh for a long Space of Time, is no inconfiderable Difcovery of divine Wildom: For hereby Room was given for the Tryal and Exercise of the Faith and Patience of God's People, in depending on his Word, and waiting for the Accomplithment thereof; for thus was 'Jehovah glorify'd, Heb. xi. 13. Thefe all died in Faith, not having received the Promifes, but having feen them afar off, and were perfivaded of them, and embraced them, and confeffed that they were Strangers and Pilgrims on the Earth. And indeed the Time of our Lords coming was most feafonable; for then the Darkness of Impiety most dreadfully prevail'd, and real Religion languish'd, and had almoff most totally expir'd. It was proper therefore that then the Day spring from on High should visit a benighted World, and the Sun of Righteousness arise upon them to turn away Ungodliness from Jacob!

3dly. The Wifdom of God is also wonderfully difplay d in his Works of Prividence ! in Relation to the World in general, and to his Church and People in particular.

The infenfible Parts of the Creation are conducted by divine Providence to an End which they know not. The Sun observes his stated Periods of rising and setting, and runs his wonted Round to enlighten and animate this lower Globe, and the Stars with exact Order atten'd their feveral Motions, many irrational Animals act with a Difcretion, like that of intelligent Beings, Jer. viii. 7. The Stork in the Heaven knoweth her appointed Times, and the Turtle, and the Crane, and the Swallow observe the Time of their coming. The Ant by prudent industry, lays up her Winter Store before it's Approach !

What elfe than a wife and watchful Providence keeps the whole Syftem of Things in its proper Situation, fo that the Elements do not break Loofe and deftroy each other? And what but this bounds the Wrath of favage Men, and makes it turn to the divine Praife? But more particularly in Relation to the Church of God, how marveloufly has the Wifdom of God appear'd in his Providence?

In the Time of the Patriarchs, while Men liv'd a long Space, God was pleafed to inftruct his People by immediate Revelation and Tradition; but when the Lives of Men were much contracted, and there was Danger, on that Account of the Corruption of Tradition, it pleafed God to communicate his Mind and Will to his People by Writing; which is a Method lefs liable to the aforefaid Inconvenience! Inconvenience. Moreover in the written Word, the Almighty inftructed his Church gradually in the Knowledge of the Gofpel, first more obscurely by Types and Shadows; and afterwards more plainly by a clearer Revelation: Thus the Almighty treated them like Children, as they were able to bear it !

And doubtless the harder and more costly Services required, under the Jewish Oeconomy, tended to make Men long for, and more eagerly embrace an easier Dispensation !

But the Wifdom of God in his Providence towards his Church, has appear'd in nothing more eminently than in baffling the Contrivances and Attempts of her Enemies, and in turning them to her Advantage! A noble Inftance of this we read of in the Book of Efter, when Haman had cruelly devis'd the utter Ruin of the fewifb Church and Nation, and had brought his malicious Plot almost to the fatal Period of Execution ! How admirably was it frustrated, and the Tables turn'd in his own overthrow? While poor Mardecai, the Mark of his ambitious Rage, was honour'd and protected, and the Church eftablish'd ! The Incident that led to this furprizing Revolution of Affairs, was truly aftonishing, viz. The King's Reftlefsness one Night, and reading in the Book of the Chronicles of Mordecai's Services to the Kingdom !

And indeed in all Ages it has pleas'd the all-wife God to make Perfecution of Service to his Church, fo that there is good Ground for that antient and common Proverb, that The Blood of the Martyrs, is the feed of the Church: But in Particular the Perfecution at Jerufalem is a memorable Inftance of this Kind, for the Chriftians being thereby difpers'd, were Means of fpreading the Gofpel far and wide ! And did not Ifrael's Opprefilon in Egypt, prepare the Way for their happy Deliverance, by making them more more defirous after it, and more ready to embrace the Call of God, in abandoning their Captivity ?

And that I may fay many Things in one, was not Satan and his Inftruments overfhot, in their own Bow, in refpect of the Crucifiction of Chrift? What they defign'd for Evil, has not God's Wildom turn'd to the greateft Good? By Death, Life is brought to Believers, by the bittereft Pain, the fweeteft Pleafure, and by the bafeft Ignominy, the kigkeft Honour!

An immemorial Inftance of the Wifdom of God, in his Providence in compaffing a noble End, by contrary Means, we have refpecting Jofepb his being fold to the Iflomalites, and imprifon'd in Egypt, were Occafions introductory to his exalted Dominion over that Nation ; and this the Occafion of his Father's Family coming and refiding there, and fo of the fulfilment of the Prophefies, refpecting Ifraels abode in Egypt, and Deliverance out of it, in after Time. The Wheels of Providence are full of Eyes. It may be truly faid of them, that (Non ceco impetu volvunter rote.) the Wheels of Providence are not govern'd by blind Chance. But the Time will not ferve to relate any more Inftances. I therefore proceed to the Improvement of this Subject And

If. The Confideration of the divine Wifdom should excite us to Modesty in our Meditations upon the Difficulties which we sometimes meet with in God's Word and Works! Tho' the Mysteries of Faith do not contradict human Reason, yet they in some Instances transferend its Reach! And there be sometimes obscure Texts in the Providence of God too difficult for us to solve. The Almigbty walks sometimes in the great Deep, and bis Footsleps are not known, be makes Darkness bis Pavilion, and bides the Face of bis Throne! In this Case let us confider, that the Foolighness of God is wiser than Men, and cry out with the D d Apostle in our Text, O the Depth of the Riches of the Wifdom and Knowledge of God, how unfearchable are his fudgments, and his Ways past finding out? Let us beware of calling the divine Wisdom to the Bar of our Reason, with the Socinians, I Cor. iii. 18. If any Man among you seemeth to be wise in this World, let him become a Fool that he may be wise. Not a Fool really, with Enthusiasts, who reject all use of Reason in Religion, but a Fool in his own Eyes, i. e. Let him be humble under a Sense of his Folly and Weakness, and reject all Dependance upon his own Understanding. And 2dly. This Subject learns us the Reafonablenefs of Contentment in every change of Circumftance, feeing the Infinitely wife God knows beft what is beft for us. If we were left to our own Choice, we fhould certainly ruin ourfelves, with what calm Confidence fhould we then commit our Way to God, that he may bring it to pafs. And 3dly. The Wisdom of God offers Food for our Faith, and Comfort to our Souls under the darkeft Appearances of divine Providence respecting the Church. We are sure that he is the Ruler, and that he rules in Wisdom, nothing happens besides his Purpose, or without his Providence. He can make the most contrary Things promote his Kingdoms Good, as was observed before, and he has promised that he will do so. (Rom. viii. 28.) And elsewhere he has faid, that no Weapon form'd against Zion, shall prosper. Then let us resign our Wisdom and Wills to God, let us believingly commit the Affairs of God's Kingdom into the Mediators Hands, and expect the fulfilment of his Word.

4thly. Is God's Wifdom difplay'd in his Word and Works? Then let us meditate on them, with more frequency and Care, and afcribe to God the Glory of that Wifdom Wisdom which appears in them, in the Sentiments' of our Minds, by the Speeches of our Lips, and the Actions of our Lives. It is a just Observation of the Pfalmist, That the Works of the Lord are great, fought out of all those that have Pleasure therein.

5thly. Is God Infinite in Wifdom? Then 1st. Let us ask Wildom of him who giveth to all Men liberally and upbraideth not, and it skall be given us. Jam. i. 5. And 2dly. Let us according to our Measure imitate the divine VVifdom.

Ift. By fixing upon an End, in the Enjoyment of which we may be compleatly happy, viz. God's Glory and the Enjoyment of him. And 2dly. By the Choice of proper Means tending to that End, fuch as Faith, Repentance and Holinefs, as God is Holy, fo those that expect to enjoy him, must be like him. 3dly. By improving the present Seasons, in the use of the aforesaid Means. This is the Command of God, 2 Cor. vi. 1, 2. VVe then as VVorkers together with him, beseech you also that ye receive not the Grace of God in vain. (For he faith, I have heard thee in a Time accepted, and in the Day of Salvation have I fuccoured thee : Behold, now is the accepted Time; behold now is the Day of Salvation.) To this we should be excited likewise, by confidering

To this we fhould be excited likewife, by confidering the Shortnefs and Uncertainty of our Time and its Opportunities, together with the vaft Moment that depends upon the Improvement thereof. And 4thly. We should guard against every Appearance of Evil, that tends to obstruct us in the Purfuit of our chief End. The very contrary to the aforefaid Particulars, constitutes the Folly of the ungodly World. They either fix upon some Enjoyment here as their chief End, or if D d 2 they The Wisdom of God improv'd.

they pretend a higher End, take contrary Measures to attain it. They neglect the present Seasons of Mercy, with the Fool they have a Price in their Hand, but no Heart to it. They likewise rush into Places of Temptation, and so are easily ensured, and sell their Salvation for a Thing of Nought.

SERMON XI.

GENESIS, xvii. 1.

And when Abram was Ninety Years old and Nine, the Lord appeared to Abram, and faid unto him, I am the Almighty God; walk before me, and be thou perfect.

N the Words of our Text, we have a Summary of the Gracious Covenant, God was pleas'd to make with Abram of old, containing these two Things following, which deferve our Notice, viz.

If. What God's Covenant People may expect him to be to them, in these Words, I am the Almighty God. (Elshadai) "This is the Name of God, (fays Mr. Henery in his Annota-"tions) that is mostly us'd throughout the Book of Job, at "least thirty Times in the Discourses of that Book, in which "Jehovah is us'd but once." This Name (as Mr. Poole in his Synopsis, and other learned Men observe) fignifies the Strength & Sufficiency of God, "It speaks (fays Henery) the "Almighty Power of God, either as an Avenger, or as a Bene-"factor, but it should be especially taken in the Latter Sense." as Drussus and others observe. In which it fignifies God's Self-Sufficiency, and All-Sufficiency. He is able to perform all that he hath faid, respecting his People, he hath enough in. himself, and of himself, for himself and for them; he hath all Things, and needeth nothing to compleat his own. Perfection and Bleffedness, and is able to confer on us a Happiness. pinefs, as large as our Defires, and as lafting as our Souls. And therefore this Word, feems to be better rendred in the old English Version, than in the prefent: For there it is thus express'd. I am God all sufficient. But 2dly. The Words of our Text inform us, what God expects or requires his People to be to bim. And this is exprefs'd in two Particulars, viz. Walking before him, and in being perfect. Walk before me. This Word by a Metaphor intends Men's Lives and Actions, (Pf. i. 1.) Becaute there is fome Analogy or Refemblance between them, and a natural Way. Before me, i. e. Under a continual Sense of my Prefence and Cognizance, as a Servant before his Lord. And be thou perfect. Simmachus renders the Word perfect, blamelefs, but according to the most of Interpreters, it fignifies, Sincerity or Freedom from Deceit and Guile; and in this Senie it is afcrib'd to Abram, Noah, David and Yol. (Gen. vi. 9. Pf. xviii. 23. Job i. 1.) That is perfect in the Apostle Paul's Judgment, which hath all its Parts, tho' it be not perfect in Degrees. 2 Tim. iii. 17. That the Man of God, may be perfect thoroughly furnished to all goodWorks. And fuch as are more advanc'd in Knowledge and Holines than others, are call'd perfect comparatively. Phil. iii. 15. Let us therefore as many as be perfect, be thus minded. God Almighty therefore does not covenant with Abram, for an entire Perfection of Degrees, as the Papifts dream, who are herein follow'd by the whole Tribe of Enthuliafts; but he requires a Perfection of Parts, or Sincerity. viz. That he fhould endeavour to conform his Practice, to all Parts of the divine Law, without Guile or referve. " I'know no Religi-" on (faid excellent Mr. Mathew Henery) but Sincerity."

In difcourfing upon this Text I shall speak upon the three following Heads, viz.

I. The Sufficiency of God.

II. Walking before him.

III. Sincerity.

And then apply the whole. The

Ift. General Head of Difcourte is God's Sufficiency, or All Sufficiency, which may be thus describ'd, viz. That it is a Perfection of the divine Nature whereby Johovah hath enough in himfelf, for himfelf, and for his People in every rc-spect. This refults from his Infinity in particular, as well as from his other Attributes in general, because he existed not by the Will of another, therefore he is independent and in-finite in his Effence and in all his Attributes and Being, fo he must be confequently perfect and allfufficient. As his Simplicity affures us, that he can admit nothing of another Kind, to perfect his Being, fo his Eternity informs us, that he was happy in himfelf, when there was none befides him. And feeing all the Excellencies of Creatures are deriv'd from him, he must posses the same eminently in himfelf, otherwife he could not confer them upon others. Hence is that Beautiful Paffage of the Pfalmift, P/. xxxvi. 10. With thee is the Fountain of Life, and in thy Light shall we fee Light. TheophilaEt gloffeth pertinently upon this Place of Scripture in the following Manner. "As the Sun (fays he) " is always beheld full, and never leffened as the Moon, fo "God always exifts perfect, full of Wifdom, Power, Immor-" tallity and all other good Things." And the Scriptures alfert elsewhere, that God is perfect, Mat. v. 48. Perfect in Wildom, Power, Beneficence, and that he needs Council or Help of none. Job. xxii. 2, 3 Rom. xi. 34, 35.

But that the aforefaid Defcription of God's Sufficiency may be the better understood, let the following Particulars be confider'd. 1st. That the general Nature of this Attribute is Fullnefs, or enough of Excellency and Good. This is a Perfection oppos'd to Emptiness and Defect, and is attended with the following Properties. viz.

Ift. It is an underiv'd Fullness Rom. xi. 35, 36. Who hath first given to him, and it shall be recompensed to him again, for of him, and through him, and to him are all Things.

2dly. It is an independent Fullnes: He hath no Dependance upon Creatures, neither can he receive any Good or Excellency from them, becaufe they have deriv'd their All from him. Now a Circulation of Caufes and Effects is in the nature of Things impossible. Our Goodness extends not to him, neither is it any Gain to the Almighty that we are rightcous, fayeth Job. Who hath made thee to differ from another, fayeth the Apostle Paul? And what basis thou that thou dids not receive? It was a noble faying of the Pagan Lucretius, respecting the divine Nature.

Ipfa fuis valens opibus non indiga Nostri. Which may be thus Englished.

Jebovah's Wealth, does fully him fuffice,

Nor needs he, of his Creatures, a supply.

3 dly. It is a compleat and perfect Fullnefs, and that in three respects, viz. In regard of the Kinds, Degrees and Duration of all possible Excellency and Good. And 1st. the Fulnefs of God is Perfect in respect of the Kinds of Excellency, for the Almighty hath in him, not only all those Excellencies, the Shadow of which is in created Beings, such as Wisdom, Power, Holinefs, Justice, Goodness, Truth. But he hath also such Excellency's in his Nature as there are no Footsteps or resemblance of in Creatures, e. g. Simplicity, Immutability, Infinity, Incomprehensibility, and Self-existence. Which are therefore term'd by some Divines incommunicable Attributes ! And 2dly. The Fullnefs of God is compleat and perfect in Degree, because Infinite. The Excellencies of the nobleft Creatures are limited and finite; but those of Jebovab are without Bounds. The Almighty Possesses all the Excellencies of created Beings in a more sublime and exalted Degree, than can possibly be attain'd by them, because of their finite Natures. But

3dly. The Fullnefs of God is compleat and perfect in refpect of Duration, the Excellencies of Creatures are Qualities diffinct from, and added to their Beings, and may be therefore feperated and extinguished, while their Beings are preferved, as appears by the doleful Apostacy of the Angels and our first Parents. If their Beings themselves, because deriv'd and dependant, may be destroy'd, how much more the good Properties that cleave thereto? But the Fullness of God is the very fame with his Being, and therefore infeparable and eternal ! He and he only is, Wifdem, Justice, Godnefs, and Truth. But to proceed

4thly. The Fullnefs of God is Invariable, equally uncapable of Addition or Diminution, he can receive nothing from without, becaufe he is already Infinite, and to that nothing can be added. And from whom fhould he receive any Addition, it must be from Creatures if at all; but they can give him nothing but what is his own, nothing but what they received from him, Acts xvii. 25. Neither is be worskiped with Men's Hands, as the' be needed any Thing, Jeeing be giveth to all Life, and Breath, and all Things! And as the Fullness of God cannot be increased, fo neither can it be impair'd by the fordid Violence of Creatures! For as our Goodness does not extend to God to benefit him, fo neither can our Impieties do him any real Injury, Job xxxv. 6, 7, 8, If they finness, what doess they against him? Or if thy Transferessions be multiply'd, E e. what dost thou unto him? If thou be Rightcous what givest theu him? Or what receiveth he of thine Hand? Thy Wickedness may hurt a Man, as thou art, and thy Rightcouss may profit the Son of Man!

5thly. The Fullnefs of God is Overflowing and Immenfe: He has more than enough for all created Beings, the Riches and Affluence thereof, not only exceeds all their Neceflities, but even their Thoughts and Defires ! Eph. iii. 20. Now unto him who is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we afk or think. Pfal. xxxvi. 8. They fhall be abundantly fatisfy'd with the Fatnefs of thy Houfe, and thou flalt make them drink of the River of thy Pleafures. 6thly. The Fullnefs of God is Everflowing and Inexhauftable: The Cifterns of created Good may be drawn dry;

6thly. The Fullnefs of God is Everflowing and Inexhaustable: The Cifterns of created Good may be drawn dry; but God is a Fountain that cannot be exhausted : He is the Alpha, and Omega, the Beginning and the Ending from Everlasting to Everlasting, God. When Millions have drank of this Fountain the Streams are never the Lefs.

But the fpecial Nature of Gods Sufficiency appears in these two Particulars following, viz. 1ft. In that febovab hath enough in himself for himself, or his own Happines; In this respect he is call'd Self-Sufficient. That God is Happy, appears from the Character of Bleffed frequently afcrib'd to him in Scripture. What is Happines but the Enjoyment of a fufficient Degree of Good, fuited to the Nature of the Being that enjoys it ? Now it is certain the Almighty hath this, for he neither needeth, defireth, or can receive more than he has. Dependant Creatures need a foreign Support to fuscain their borrow'd Beings; but he is independent and hath Life of himself, (Job. v. 26) And therefore needs them not, neither doth he defire more Happines then he hath; for than he would be imperfect and so no God. Before the Worlds Foundations were laid he

he had Complaifance in his own Glory and Perfection; neither did he make Creatures to increase his own Happinefs, but of meer good Pleafure: And as for Creatures acknowledging of his Excellency with Honour, it adds no more thereto than commending the Sun adds to its Luftre, or praifing a Fountain would increafe its Streams, neither can the Almighty poffibly receive any more Happinefs than he hath becaufe of his Infinity. To confirm and illuftrate what has been now obferv'd let the following Places of Scripture be confidered, Pf. 1. 9, 13. I will take no Bullock out of thy Houfe, nor He-Goats out of thy Fold : For every Beaft of the Foreft is mine, and the Cattle upon a thousand Hills. If I were Hungry I would not tell thee, for the World is mine and the Fullnefs thereof. And 2dly. The Almighty hath enough for all his Creatures to make them compleatly Happy: I am the Almighty God. Mr. Pool in his Synoplis observes " The Original " Word is deriv'd of a Root that fignifies a Breaft, becaufe " he nourifhes all, for the fame Reafon the Heathens re-" prefented their Diana, Ifis and Ceres after the fame " Manner." The Ability of God to make all his Creatures Happy, is justly term'd by Divines, his All-Sufficiency, and this in Relation to good People is fet forth by feveral fignificant Emblems or Similitudes. Hence he is call'd a Sun (Pfa. lxxxiv. 12.) As the Sun diffipates the Gloom of Night by his enlightning and warming Rays, and thereby fheds a Gladnefs over the Face of Things; thus the Almighty refresheth his Peoples Hearts. The Lord is likewife call'd his Peoples Shield, Pla. lxxxiv. They are expos'd in this tumultuous Scene to a thick Succession of Dangers and Conflicts; but the Almighty protects them as by a Shield, He covers their Head in the Day of Battle. He that dwelleth in the fecret Place of the most High, shall E e 2. abide under the Shadow of the Almighty. The Almighty is call'd his Peoples Rock, Strength and Deliverer. He bestows all Manner of spiritual and temporal Good upon them, (Epbel. i. 3.) He abundantly recompences all their Services and Sufferings for him; and hence he is call'd an exceeding great Reward, Gen. xv. i. Phil. iv. 19. My God Jhall Jupply all your Need, according to his Riches in Glory by JESUS CHRIST. Particularly

Ift. There is enough in God to supply his Peoples Wants here : Enough 1ft for Protection, Zech. ii. 5. For I, faith the Lord, will be a Well of Fire unto her, round about, and will be the Glory in the mid/t of her. Zech. ix. 12. Turn ye to the firong Hold, ye Prifoners of Hope. Pfa. lxiii. 7. Becaufe theu haft been my Help therefore in the Shadow of thy Wings will I rejoyce: Hence the Lord bids his People, not to fear for I am with thee, be not difmay'd for I am thy God: I will firengthen thee, yea I will help thee, yea I will uphold thee with the right Hand of my Righteoufnefs,----Fear not thou Worm Jacob, and ye Men of Higel, I will help thee fayeth the Lord, Ifa. xli. 10------IA. And does not 'Jehovah promife, that no Evil fhall come nigh their dwelling, Pfa. xei. And was it not in Confidence of this Almighty Protection that the triumphant Pfalmift fays, Pfal. xlvi. and elfewhere, That the' Mountains were tofs'd into the midft of the Sea, and ten Thoufand rofe up againft him, he would not be afraid. But 2dly. There is enough in God for Provision, Pfa. xxiii. The Lord is my Shepherd I fhall not want. Hence the Almighty graciously promifes to make his Peoples Bread and Water fore.

3dly. Enough for Honour, Pfa. iii. 3. But thou O Lord art a fixed for me, my Glory and the lifter up of mine Head. God is the Fountain and Original of all true Honour.

4thly,

4thly. Enough for Pleafures, for his loving Kindnefs, is as Marrow and Fatnefs that yields a rational and fubftantial Delight, yea he is far better than Life itfelf, Job xxii. 26. For then fhalt theu have thy Delight in the Almighty, and fhalt lift up thy Face unto God.

5thly. Énough for Guidance, Pfa. xxxii. 8. I will infiruct thee and teach thee in the Way which thou shalt go, I will guide thee with mine Eye. Is not Jehovah Wisdom itfelf, and wonderful in Council, as well as excellent in Working? (Ifa. xxviii. 29.)

6thly. Enough for Sanstification, for with him is the Refidue of the Spirit. Enough for Society, I John i. 3. That which we have feen and heard, declare we unto you, that ye alfo may have Fellowsship with us : And truly our Fellowsship is with the Father, and with his Son JESUS CHRIST. Enough for Example, Ephe. v. I. Be ye therefore Followers of God as dear Children. Enough for Reward, Gen. xv. I. Fear not Abram, I am thy Shield, and exceeding great Reward. But

2dly. There is enough in God to fatisfy the Defires of his People here and hereafter, Jer. 31. 14. And I will Satiate the Soul of the Priefts with Fatnefs, and my People fkall be fatisfied with my Goodnefs, fayeth the Lord. Pfa. xvii. ult. As for me I will behold thy Face in Rightcoufnefs, I fhall be fatisfied when I awake with thy Likenefs. Jehovah makes over himfelf in Covenant to his People as Allfufficient, thus he did to Abram in our Text. Hence it is faid, Pfal. xxxiv. That the young Lyons may fuffer Hunger, yet thefe that fear the Lord fkall not lack any Good. Hof. xiv. 5, 6, 7. I will be as the Dew unto Hirael, be fkall grow as the Lilly, and cafi forth his Root as Lebanon. His Branches fkall fpread, and his Beauty fkall be as the Olive Tree, and kis fmell as Lebanon. They that dwell under under bis Shadow, shall revive as the Corn, and grow as the Vine. The Scent thereof shall be as the Wine of Lebanon. The People of Israel in the Wilderneis had neither Bread nor Water, Provision nor Protection, yet having an all sufficient God they wanted none of those Things, Deut. xxxiii. 26,----28. There is none like the God of Jeshurun who rideth upon the Heaven in thy Help, and in his Excellency on the Sky: The eternal God is thy Refuge and Underneath are the Everlasting Arms.-----Itrael then shall dwell in fafety alone, the Fountain of Jacob shall be upon a Land of Corn and Wine, also his Heavens shall drop down Dew. Happy art thou O Israel, who is like unto thee O People saverd by the Lord, the Shield of thy Help, and who is the Sword of thy Excellency. But I proceed to the

2d. General Head, which was to difcourfe upon the Nature of walking before God, which may be thus deferib'd, viz. That it is a friendly Converfation with God: Now this is expressed by different Phrases in Scripture, fometimes it is call'd a walking before God, as in the Text, to fignify the Sense that we should always have of God's Presence upon our Minds. Sometimes a walking after God to import our Need of imitating his Example, and of accommodating ourselves to his various Dealings with us, whether Comfortable or Afflictive, (Deut. xiii. 4.) Some times it is call'd a walking with God, thus it is faid of Enoch, that he walked with God; this Phrase especially intends that sometimes it is called a Walking in the Name of God, (Mica. iv. 5.) to fignify that in all our religious Practice, we should have the divine Prescription for our Rule, and the divine Glory for our Mark. Sometimes a Walking in the Spirit, (Gal. v. 16.) importing the Sense we should always have of our Need of the Guidance and Affistance of the Holy Ghoft to the

the Performance of acceptable Service, as well as our intire-Dependance thereupon. But more particularly

Walking before or with God, fuppofes and implies thefe Things following, viz,

If. Reconciliation to God by accepting the Mediator through Faith : For how shall two walk together except they be agreed?

2dly. It fuppofes fpiritual Life, infus'd by R egeneration, for a dead Man cannot walk.

3dly. It fuppofes the Exercife of Life or Grace, by the quickning Operations of the Holy Spirit. A Man cannot walk that is afleep. I will run the Ways of thy Commandments faid the Pfalmift, when thou haft enlarged my Heart.

4thly. It fuppofes a Way in which, and this is twofold viz. either of God's Commands, or of his Providence, we muft obey the Former and accommodate our felves to the Latter, i. e. When the Almighty frowns by Afflictions, we muft mourn, and when he finiles by Comforts communicated we muft rejoyce. And 5thly. It fuppofes an End to which, and this ought to be ever the fame with what Jehovab intends, viz. The Manifeftation of his Glory; and in Subordination thereto our own and our Neighbours Happinefs. Whether in cating or drinking or whatfoever we do, we fhould do it all to the Glory of God. But 2dly. Walking before or with God implies these following Particulars, viz.

Ift. Faith, he that walks with God, as well as comes to him, muft believe that he is. In walking with God, Faith is neceffary in three Refpects. Ift. As an Eye to behold the great Prophet of the Church, the Guide of our Way, without whose Command we must not move a Foot, in imitation of the Ifraelites in the Defart who stopp'd when the Pilla Pillar of a Cloud and of Fire did not go before them. 2dly. As a Conduit to convey Provision and Refrethment in our Journey, without which we must needs travel flowly and heavily. 3dly. As a Hand to help us to lay hold of, and lean upon the dear Redeemer in our Walking. Hence it is with Admiration observ'd concerning the Church, Cant. viii. 5. Who is this that cometh out of the Wilderness leaning upon the Beloved. Except we rely upon the Strength of God, we cannot walk with him. But 2dly. Walking before God, implies Fear, our Minds thould be continually poffeffed with an awful Reverence of God's Majefty, as remembring the infinite Diftance between him and us, in point of Dignity. Likewife we thould be ever afraid of offending God, and humbly jealous of our own Hearts. Hence we are bid to ferve God acceptably with Reverence & Godly Fear. Heb. xii. 28, 29. And hence is that divine Expoftulation. Mal. i. 6. If I be a Mafter where is my Fear? And

3dly. It implies Love to God, and Familiarity with him thereby. Such as behold by Faith the Amiablenets of the divine Majefty, and tafte his Love, love him again with a lupream and transferdent respect! As Fear ballances Love to Love fweetens Fear. "Fear without Love would be a "painful Paffich- (as Dr. Bates juftly observes) and Love "without Fear would degenerate into an effeminate Fondness." Now that Familiarity which fubfifts between God and Believers by Love, contains in it these Things following, 1ft... mutal Vihits, as God visits Lis People by his Grace, to they visit him with Repentance, Prayers and Tears. (Jam. iv. 2.) Mutual Embraces, (Cant. i. 2, 3.) A mutual Communication of Secrets. God opens fecret Things to them. Hence the Secret of the Lord is faid to be with those that fear him, (Pf. XXV. 14.) And the People of God on the other Hand, connect come to him, as a Father, and fob after him Abba Father, and open to him all their Hearts. (Pf. xlii, 4.) A mutual Defire of Union and Cobabitation. Hence CHRIST accofts his Bride in the following Strains. Come with me from Lebanon my Sifter my Spoufe, look from the Top of Amana, from the Top of Shenir and Hermon from the Lyons Dens and from the Mountains of Lcopards. And the Spoule on the other Hand fays, Come LORD JESUS come quickly; I defire to be diffolv'd and to be with CHRIST which is far better. 5thly. A friendly Confultation for Advice and Direction. Hence the dear Redeemer is call'd bis Peoples Counfellor, becaufe be leads them by bis Council, (Ifa. ix. 6.) But 4thly. Walking before or with God implies Pains and Labour, natural Walking, to which this alludes, is not without them, especially if it be for a confiderable Space. And hence we are bid to strive to enter in at the strait Gate, and work out our Salvation with fear and trembling. 5thly. It implies Progress, those that walk in a natural 5thly. It implies Progrefs, those that walk in a natural Road make Progrefs, and thus those that walk with God grow more humble, more weaned from this World, and more refign'd to God's Will, and it is doubtles in general their chief Defire, and endeavour to grow in Grace, and when they find not thus, it is their principal Grief.

6thly It implies Perfeverance, for walking is not a fingle Act, but a Courfe and Series of them, a continuance in our religious Diligence, until we come to the End of our Race, it is those only who perfevere to the End, that fhall be faved. We fhould run fo as to obtain. But I proceed to the

3d. General Head of Difcourfe, viz. Sincerity, which may be thus defcrib'd, viz. That it is a divine Vertue, whereby we really are, what we feem to be. Here an appearance F f of of Goodness is supposed, and these Things following are intended, which constitute Sincerity, viz.

1st. That a Perfon labours to avoid all mixture of Corruption and evil Intention; this is by our Lord call'd a fingle Eye, and when Perfons have this, then their whole Bodies are full of Light, i. e. they are in a gracious and comfortable State.

2dly. When Perfons habitually labour not only outwardly, but chiefly inwardly, to be Holy contrary to the Practice of the Pharifees, who cleanfed the cutfide of the Cup and Platter while the Infide was neglected. And 3dly. When Men endeavour to be Holy, not only before Men, but chiefly before God, Colof. iii. 22. Not with Eye Service as Men Pleafers, but with finglenefs of Heart fearing God.

4thly. When Men do not habitually neglect known Duty, and expect not their Reward from Men, but from God, thus it is faid of Zachariah and Elizabeth, That they walk'd in all the Commandments of God blamelefs. It is likewife recorded of Mofes, (Heb. xi. 27.) That by Faith he forfook Egypt, not fearing the Wrath of the King, for he endur'd, as feeing him who is invifible.

Now Sincerity is twofold, viz. Moral or Spiritual. Moral is that which fprings from Nature, polifhed by a religious Education, together with reftraining Grace; and principally aims at our own Intereft. Such an Integrity had the Pagan Abimelech, and altho' this be not faving, yet it is the Way to obtain Mercy, and is of great Ufe in civil Society. It were to be wifh'd that more meant as they fpoke than do: But fpiritual Sincerity follows after Converfion, & aims chiefly at the Glory of God, above all. And it is either Imperfect, or Perfect. The Former is when, for the moft Part Uprightnefs hath the Afcendant, tho' attended with Struggle and Combat.

Combat. The Latter is when we are entirely free from all corrupt Intention, which is the Priviledge of the Coun-try, and not of the Way, when that which is Perfect is come, then that which is in Part shall be done away.

But it will not be improper to add to what hath been faid, the following Marks of Sincerity, viz. 1ft. If we do not cover and hide our Sins, but confess them and forfake them. 2dly. If we avoid all appearance of Evil, both as to Principle and Practice. 3dly. If in Profperity, as well as in Adverfity, we cleave inviolably to the Truths and Du-ties of Religion. 4thly. If in the Abfence as well as Presence of Spectators, we endeavour to be Holy. 5thly. If we have the Light of God's Word, and are willing to have our States and Actions tried th reby. 6thly. If we are fenfible of, and bewail the Remains of Hypocrity that are in us, as the poor Man that cried Lord, I believe, help my Unbelief. But I proceed to the Application of this Difcourfe. And

1st. What has been faid concerning God's Sufficiency, ferves to inform us, how great the Portion of every Believer is. It exceeds in Worth and Dignity, Millions of Worlds. The Lord himfelf is the Portion of their Inheritance and of their Cup! Their Lines have fallen to them in pleafant Plar ces, they have a goodly Heritage! In having God they have more than all befides him, yea infinitely more. "If the "greatest Princes should bring all their Treasures, (fays "Bishop Hopkins) the poorest Christian can produce a Por-" tion, that will begg ar them all." Justly then may the Church glory in him, Lam. iii. 24. The Lord is my Por-tion fayeth my Soul, therefore will I hope in him! This is my Beloved, and this is my Friend! O Daughters of Jerulalem. 2dly. The All-Sufficiency of God, may convince us of the In-fufficiency and Vanity of all Creatures, Eclef. i. I.

Ff2 Vanity. The divine Sufficiency apply'd.

Vanity of Vanities faith the Preacher, Vanity of Vanities all is Vanity! If God only be abfolutely Perfect and All-Sufficient, then every Creature is of it felf imperfect, and vain, becaufe of itself it has no Perfection, by which it can fuffice itself or others, Jer. ii. 13. They are all broken Cifterns that can hold no Water! And if the Creature had any Sufficiency, it could be of no Service, unlets apply'd and excited by the first mover : If the Cafe be fo, why should we doat upon them, or confide in them? Or why should we fear them, or immoderately bewail the loss of them! And 3dly. We may hence learn the Folly of fuch, who forfake God for the Creature. Jer. ii. 13. My People have committed two Evils, they have for faken the Fountain of living Waters, and heren out to themfelves Cifferns, broken Cifferns, that can hold no Water ! Surely fuch as purfue lying Vanities, for fake their own Mercies! And this they must expect, as their Reward, to be difappointed in their Expectations, to be fnar'd in the Work of their own Hands, and at laft to lye down in Sorrow! But

4thly. The All-Sufficiency of God minifters ftrong Confolation, to all that are fincere, and walk with God. Now whether we be indeed fuch, we may know by comparing our felves diligently and impartially with what has been before obferv'd, on thefe Heads. What tho' we cannot fuffice ourfelves, and what tho' all the World can't fuffice us, this is no great Wonder: For the Soul of Man is endowed with an infatiable Defire: Well, but there is an All-Sufficient God, who can fuffice both himfelf and us! And this is, or fhould be, all our Salvation, and all our Defire. The Confideration of God's All-Sufficiency may be a tweet Support to us in all Manner of Diftrefles, whether of Mind, Body or Eflate. Whether of Spiritual or Temporal Enemics, God is our Sun, our Shield and Buckler, who fuffices himfelf, himfelf, and therefore can much more fatisfy us, who need not fo great Perfection. This Almighty God hath made many and gracious Promifes, that he will be every where and evermore prefent with his People, and efpecially in the Mount of Difficulty ! Of whom then, or of what fhould we be afraid ? What is the Want that All-Sufficiency cannot fupply, what is the Strait, that All-Sufficiency cannot furmount ? David took encouragement from this Attribute, when he was in fore Diffrefs at Ziglag, when the Town was fack'd, his Wives taken Captive, and himfelf like to be ftoned to Death (1 Sam. xxx. 6.) And it was this that encouraged Abram againft all human Probability, to expect the Fulfilment of the divine Promife, concerning a numerous Pofterity. (Heb. xi. 19.) And 5thly. The aforefaid Subject, ferves to reprove all thofe, who practically deny the All-Sufficiency of God; which is done 1ft. By the Prophane, who having abandoned the Almighty, ferve divers Lufts and Pleatures (Mal. 3. 14.) 2dly. Secret Hypocrites, who tho' they abound in outward Acts of Obedience, yet will not give to God their whole Hearts, and that for this Reafon, because there be fome Things which they look upon as neceffary and profitable which they don't expect from God, and them they are refolv'd to have from Creatures either Right or Wrong. (Hcf. ii. 4, 5.) And 3dly. Even the Regenerate themfelves are liable to this Evil, of denying practically, the All-Sufficiency of God. Now this is done in the following Inflances.

If. When we use unlawful or deceitful Measures to attain what we think we can't get from God by lawful ones. An Example of this Kind we have in 'Jacob, respecting the Birth-Right. And 2dly. When we use unlawful Methods to escape imminent Dangers. Thus David seign'd himself mad before King Achilk Achish, and Abram and Isaac denied their Wives for fearthey should be flain on their Account. And

3dly. When we inordinately love Creatures, and imagine fomething to be in them which is not in God, on this Account Covetousness is call'd Idolatry. (Epb. v. 5.)

4thly. When we vainly confide in Creatures, and promile ourfelves fomething from them, which we fuppofe the Almighty either cannot or will not confer. (Pf. |x|i, 9, 10.)

5thly. When we murmur at our prefent Condition, and defire it to be otherwife than God has alotted it! This Difcontent was the Occasion both of the fall of the Angels and our first Parents.

6thly. When we diftruft God's Power, Promifes, or Providence, with Moses, Num. xi. 13, 14. Whence should I bave Flesh to give unto all this People? With David 1 Sam exvii. 1. Who faid in his Heart, that he should one Day perish by the Hand of Saul. With Sarah, Gen. xviii. 12. Who when she was told that the should have a Child in old Age, laughed through distrust, which was displeasing to God, because it reflected upon his All-Sufficiency v. 13, 14. And the Lord said unto Abram, wherefore did Sarah laugh, is any Thing too hard for the Lord? With Gideon, who tho' he had the express Command of God to war with the Midianites, and a promise of Victory over them, yet hesitating fays, Judg. vi. 15. O Lord wherewith shall I fave them, for my Family is poor in Manassen and therefore he asked a Sign And

7thly. When we decline great Services, being thereto call'd by God, on account of pretended Unfitnefs,---With Mofes; Ex. iii. 11. And Mofes faid unto God, who am I that I flould go unto Pharaoh?---And bring forth the Children of Ifrael out of Egypt. And with Jeremiak, who being call'd to publick Service, for God, excus'd himfelf thus, lebsld I cannet fpeak

Speak for I am a Child. Now the aforefaid practical Denial of Gods All-Sufficiency involves in it Idolatry, and fome degree of Apoftacy; for thereby we turn from him to them, and expect from them, what we fuppofe is not in him; as this Evil obftructs the Courfe of God's Favour to us, fo it exposes us to the dreadful Judgments of God. Hence it is faid, that JESUS could do no mighty Works among a certain People, because of their Unbelief. And hence we read (2 Kings vii. 17.) of a Lord who would not believe Elifha's Prophefies of Plenty in Samaria, and was troden to Death in the Preis! And was not Mofes and Aaron upon this Account depriv'd of the Posseficient of Canaan? (Num. xx. 12.)

count depriv'd of the Poffeffion of Canaan? (Num. xx. 12.) Now from the Confideration of God's All-Sufficiency, we should be exhorted to the following Duties, viz. 1ft. To glorify God on this Account, with all our Souls, ift. To glorify God on this Account, with all our Souls, feeing that this is the Foundation of all his Glory and Majefty. If we fhould glorify God, becaufe of every of his Attributes, how much more on the Account, of this which comprifes them all. And

2 2 clly. To enter into Covenant with him, by accepting of CHRIST, the Angel of the Covenant by a living Faith, Who is the Way to his Father, in whom we have Boldnets of accefs with Confidence by the Faith of him. In him all the Promifes are Yea and Amen. And thus the All-Sufficiency of God will be ours, and without this it will profit us nothing; but on the contrary be engag'd against us. This Duty of Covenanting with God, our Text and Context points to. I am the Almighty God, walk before me and be thou perfect; and I will make my Covenant between me and thee. And 3dly. We should be exhorted to Contentedness with our Lot, and to Beneficence towards others, in Imitation of the All-Sufficiency of God, in which our chief Excellency confists. 4thly. 4thly. We fhould love the All-Sufficient God above all, purfue after him with the ftrongeft Defire, and reft in him with the fweeteft Complacency! feeing he is enough for us, and infinitely more than fo in all refpects! Pl. xviii. 1, 2, 3. I will love thee O Lord my Srength, my Rock, my Fortrefs and my Deliverer, my Buckler and the Horn of my Salvation.

5thly. We fhould put our entire Confidence ia him, becaufe he alone is All in All, Light to the Mind, Goodnefs to the Will, Order to the Affections, Gladnets to the Heart, and Joy to the whole Soul, and Beauty and Immortality to the Body.

6thly. We fhould hope in this All-Sufficient God in all Adverfity, whether perfonal or publick, what tho' Clouds and Darknefs hang over the Horizon of the vifible Church, and the Hand of Pride fcatters her Affemblies, and ftains her Glory, yet we muft not faint or fear, feeing fhe has an All-Sufficient Protector. Surely fhe is built upon a ftable Rock, against which the Gates of Hell shall not prevail. God in his own Time will make Edom defolate, and Jerusalem a praife in the Earth. And 7thly, While we compare our Emptinefs with the Almighty's Fullnefs we fhould be humbled in the Duft, and iay with Elipbaz, 'Jcb iv. 17, 19. Shall Mortal Man be more just than God, shall a Man be more pure than his Maker, behold he put no Trust in his Servants, and his Angels he charged with Folly, how much lefs on them, who dwell in Houses of Clay, whose Foundation is in the Dust, who are crushed before the Moth ! It is a noble faying of Gregory "That our Righ-"teoùsnefs brought to the Tryal of Justice, is Unrighteousnefs, "and that (fays he) which shine in the Opinion of the Worker, "is loathfome in the Sight of the Judge." And should we not obey diligently and worship reverently that All-Sufficient God, God, who will be to us an exceeding great Reward Gen. xv. 1. and efpecially Let us be entreated to walk with God, or before him, as our Text directs; to which we should be mov'd by confidering, 1st. The Dignity of * this Practice, what can be more Honourable than to be the Friend of the King of Kings, and daily to converse with him. If the Face of Moles fo thin'd with Beauty and Majefty after he had been fome Time on the Mount with God, that the Ifraelites could not behold him, how much more the Soul that walks continually with God? 2dly. As this is the most Honourable, so it is the most Pleafant Way of Walking: Hereby the Soul is fatisfied with a fuitable and All-fufficient Good, and pleafed with the noble profpect of enduring felicity ! Here the Good is agreable to the Nature of the Soul, and equal to its vaft Defires and most distant Hopes! 3dly. This is the most profitable Way of Walking, for hereby an easy access is ob-tain'd to the King's Ear, which is the most important Priviledge, for furely he will not deny his Friends requefts! 4thly. This is likewife the most fafe Way. For he that dwells in the Secret of the most High, shall abide under the Shaddow of the Almighty! From God, who is the best of Friends, we may expect not only Pity and Help in Adverfity, but a fure Defence ! For as he is Love itfelf, fo his All-fufficiency has all Creatures at it's Beck and Controle. And 5thly. It is a plain Way, Ifa. xxxv. 8. all Vertue and Goodnefs! Without this neither our Perfons or Services can find acceptance! From this, under God, fprings our Peace, foy and Security, and every other Bleffing. Now may the All-fufficient God enable us to walk before him, and to be Sincere, that fo we may be approv'd of by him here, and admitted into his Kingdom hereafter, thro' the exceeding Riches of divine Grace in JESUS CHRIST onr Lord, to whom with the Father and Bleffed Spirit, be eternal Glory afcrib'd by Men and Angels. Amen, Amen.

SERMON XII.

JEREMIAH xxxii. 17.

Ab Lord God, behold, thou hast made the Heavens and the Earth by thy great Power, and stretched out Arm, and there is nothing too hard for thee.

E have in these Words, the beginning of the Prophet Jeremiab's Prayer, the Occasion of which was the Discoveries which Jebovab had made to him of his Purpose, to pull down the Nation, by putting it under the Jurifdiction of the Babylonifb King. The pious Prophet was imprifoned for declaring this Truth, agreeable to the divine Direction, the City was in the mean Time befieged by Nebucadnezar's Army: A difinal Cloud cover'd the whole Face of Affairs! The poor Prophet being a faithful Interceffor for that People, was exceedingly diftreffed to behold the impending Stroak, the approaching Ruin of his beloved Nation, he therefore knowing God to be infinite in Power and Mercy, takes his Flight to him in the aforefaid gloomy and perplex'd State of Things, and puts up an interceffory Supplication for them; which begins with a Recognition of God's infinite Power, made manifeft in his Formation of the Heaven and Earth: Thefe vaft Bodies being produced by a Word, and in a Moment, are inconteftible Demonstrations of an Almighty Caufe or Efficient. God himfelf us'd this Inftance, Chap. xxvii. 5. G g 2.

to confirm his Peoples Faith in his Ability, to do what he pleafed. It is probable that the Prophet makes Mention of God's Omnipotence in the Inftances before related, and farther expounds upon it by faying, That nothing was too hard for him, (in the beginning of his Prayer) with a Three-fold Defign, 1ft. To affect his own Heart with an awful Senfe of the divine Majefty. And 2dly. To fupport his Faith in expecting the Mercies he prayed for. And 3dly. As an Argument to excite, as it were, Omnipotence to exert it felf in the Deliverance of Ifrael from the threatn'd De-ftruction. God is a prefent Help in Trouble, yea and a pow-erful one, nothing is two hard for him, that does not imply fome Weaknefs or Contradiction. It is therefore our wifeft Courfe, in Imitation of the Prophet Jeremiab's Example, to make fpeedy and affectionate Supplication to him in all diffreffing Intergents, either respecting our felves or the Church of God ! The Particle Ab ! in the beginning of our Text, denotes the Depth and Vehemence of the Prophets mournful Paffion ! And indeed our very Bowels fhould bleed for poor Zions Tragedies, and our Lips move in the Prophets Strains; for Jerufalems fake I will not hold my Peace, and for Zion's fake I will not be Silent, until the Righteoufnefs thereof go forth as Brightnefs, and the Salvation thereof as a Lamp that burneth. But to re-turn: The Text I have read, confidered abstractly, prefents to our Meditations the Power of God. in discourfing upon which I chall confider its Nature Vinde Protection upon which I shall confider its Nature, Kinds, Properties and Effects, and then apply it. And

Ift. God's Power may be thus defcrib'd, viz. "That "it is his effential Property whereby he can do all Things." Thus excellent Mr. Vincent explains it. Or in other Words thus, That it is that divineVertue, whereby Jehovah does what he Wills, and has ability to do what he Wills not. And hence it it appears, that the Power of God is twofold, viz. Abfolute and Ordinate. The abfolute Power of God, is that whereby he can do all Things that are possible, even such Things as never came to pass, of this mention is made, Matt. iii. 9. God is able of these Stones to raife up Children unto Abram : This, according to our Conception, preceeds the Will of God, and coinceeds with the All-sufficiency of his Essence. Ephes. iii. 20. Rom. xi. 23. And they also if they bide not still in unbelief, shall be graffed in, for God is able to graff them in again.

2dly. The ordinate Power of God, is that whereby 'febovab effects what he Pleafes; and therefore follows his Will, Pfa. cxxxv. 6. Whatfoever the Lord pleafed that did he in Heaven and Earth, in the Seas and all deep Places. God's ordinate Power relates to his Efficiency, or to the Effects which he has, does or fhall produce. It is not really different from the former, but the former confider'd as limitted by the divine Decree, which certainly fixes the Boundaries between what is meerly poffible, and what is Future. Hence it is faid that our Lord could not do many Miracles, in his native Country, becaufe of their Unbelief, and that the Almighty could not deftroy Sodom till Lot was out of it. The Power of God was bounded or limitted by his Purpofe, which he could not counteract. Neither is it any Imperfection in the Almighty, that he cannot contradict his own Nature ; but on the Contrary, it is the higheft Perfection!

Nor are we to fuppofe, that Power belongs to God as diffinguished from Act; for then he would be at one Time idle, and at another employ'd in Labour, and fo fuffer a Change. No! the Almighty is a most pure Act. 'The aforefaid Diffinction is only afcrib'd to God on the Account of Creatures, because they undergo an Operation of God in Time Time, which before they did not undergo, e. g. when Men are warm'd by the Sun now, who were before cold, the Change is not in the Sun, but in them.

It should likewife be confidered, that the aforesaid Diftinction of God's Power into abfolute and ordinate, is only in respect of our Conception; for in God himself, it is most Simple, and therefore but one, because it is his Essence. But I proceed to confider the Properties of God's Power,

But I proceed to confider the Properties of God's Power, which was the third general Head. And

1ft. The Power of God is Infinite, and that in three respects, viz. The Agent, Objects, Effects. The Agent God is Infinite in his Being, and with this his Power coinceeds, or is the fame. The Objects are likewife innumerable, which can be produc'd by him, and therefore Infinite. in fome Senfe. And as Wendeline well observes, " God " never produces an Effect fo Excellent, but he can produce " a more Excellent." The facred Scriptures confirm the Infinity of God's Power, various Ways, 1ft. Symbolically and Figuratively, when it afcribes to him a strong Hand, a firetched out Arm; 1 Chro. xxix. 12. In thine Hand is Power and Might. Our Text aferibes to God, a stretched out Arm, and intimates, that thereby the Heaven and Earth were made. 2dly. Negatively, when it denies any Thing to be Difficult to him. Gen. xviii. 14. Is any Thing too hard for the Lord. At the Time appointed will I return unto thee, according to the Time of Life, and Sarah (hall have a Son. Agreeable hereto are the Words of our Text, and there is Nothing too hard for thee. 3dly. Effectively, when it a-fcribes the greatest Effects to God's Power, such as the Productions of the Heavens and Earth, as the Text we are confidering doth, Ab Lord God ! behold thou haft made the Heavens and the Earth by thy great Power ! And likewife when iŧ

The Properties of divine Power.

It witheffes that God can do all Things. Luk. xviii. 27. And he faid the Things that are impossible with Men, are possible with God. 4thly. Affirmatively, when it afcribes great Power to him, as in the Words of our Text, and expressly calls him the Almighty. (Rev. i. 8.) It is observed by forne, that God's Almightines, or infinite Power, is afferted no lets than Seventy Times in Scripture. Yea, no lets than Thirty one Times in one Book, viz. Job.

And does not Reafon likewife eftablifh the fame Truth? For feeing Power is a Perfection, how can it be deny'd to him who is infinitely Perfect. And torafmuch as Creatures derive all the Power they poffefs from God, as the firft Caufe, then furely he himfelf muft poffets eminently and infinitely what he communicates to others! Neither was there any before him, to limit this, or any other of his Attributes, and therefore it is Infinite. If God were not Infinite in Power, his Determinations would be precarious and trifling, like those of his Creatures: And his Promifes and Threatnings in rewarding or punifhing, would neither deferve our Truft or Fear: For then he could not fay as he does, Ifa. xlvi. 11. I have fpoken it, I will also bring it to pass, I have purposed it, I will also do it. And 2dly. The Power of God is independant, he can Work by Means, without Means, and contrary to Means. I Sam. xiv. 6. There is no referaint to the Lord, to Work by many or by few. Dan. iv. 34, 35. And all the Inhabitants of the Earth are reputed as nothing, and he doth according to his Will in the Armics of Heaven and among the Inhabitants of the Earth, and none can flay his Hand, or fay unto him, what doft thou? "The Pleasure of God, (as Mr. Flavel " observes) is the only Rule according to which divine " Power exerts itself in the World."

But the Power of God is 3 dly, Unparallel'd: Jehovah not only equals, but infinitely exceeds all created Beings in Strengh, Job xl. 9. Haft thou an Arm like God, or canft thou Thunder with a Voice like bim. Men are wont to fhew their Strength by their Arms; and hence Arms are metaphorically afcribed to God. And even those Things that are weak in us, when afcrib'd to him exceed the combin'd Force of the whole Creation. How weak is one of our Fingers, yet God is faid by his Finger to caft out Devils ! Luk. xi. 20. Yea by his Finger, to make the Heavens. Our Words, our Breath, our Frowns, are triffing! But by a Word God made a World! Pfal. xxxiii. 9. He fpake and it was done, be commanded and it flood fast! The Almighty fmites the Earth with the Rod of his Mouth, and with the Breath of his Lips he flays the Wicked, and they peristh at the Rebuke of his Countenance. Pfal. lxxx. 16. So that, as the Apostle observes, the Weakness of God is stronger than Man. i Cor i.

4thly The Power of God is irrefiftible and fupream, the whole Poffe of Men and Angels, were there Millions more than there be, if their Strength was united cannot withftand Omnipotence! fob xxiii. 13. But be is in one Mind and who can turn bim, and what his Soul defiretb even that be doetb. The Almighty challenges the whole Creation to obftruct his Providence, or defeat his Councils! Ifa. xliii. 13. I will work and who fhall let it. Ifa. xiv. 27. For the Lord of Hofts bath purpofed, and who fhall difanul it, and his Hand is firetched out, and who fhall turn it back? All Human Power is deriv'd from the Power of God, and is therefore dependant on it, and limitted by it. It was God that gave Nebuchadnezzar that proud and potent Prince his Kingdom and his Power (Dan. ii. 37.) It is the Power of God that reftrains the Wrath of Men and Rage of of Devils, and keeps them within proper Limits, otherwife they would deftroy all before them. Pf. lxxvi. 10. And the remainder of Wrath fhalt thou reftrain. Rev. iii. 10. Satan fhall caft fome of you into Prifon and ye fhall have Tribulation Ten Days. The Devil if he had his full Scope, would have caft them fome where elfe, viz. into the Grave or Hell; and if they muft go to Prifon, he would have it Ten Years, yea their whole Lives. The Angels whether Good or Bad, are powerful Beings, and hence call'd Principalities and Powers; one of them is able to vanquifh all the Strength of Flefh and Blood; yet are they fubject to the Controle of Omnipotence. And of Omnipotence. And 5thly. The Power of God is incomprehenfible, it not only exceeds human Power, and human Probability, but fur-paffes the Words and Thoughts of Men. The Power of God reaches the very Heart, which he turns as Streams in the South to aniwer his own eternal Purpofes, i. e. fuddenly. The Lord ftills the Noife of the Sea, the Noife of the Waves, and theri Tumult of the People Pf. lxv. 7. How foon did Jehovah turn the Heart of Angry Efau, into kind Refpect? When all human Help fails, and there is none flut up or left, then does the Lord exert his Omni-potence, In the Mount of the Lord it fhall be feen ! Gen. xxii. 14. i.e. In extreme Diftrefs when all human Probability of Relief expires, then the Power of God appears! And who is able to paint in human Language, the Infinitenefs of the Strength of God, or form Ideas in his Mind equal to it; not one ? (Ephef. iii. 20.) God is able to do exceeding abun-dantly above what we are able to ask or think. The fee-ble Flight of our moft exalted Thought falls infinitely fhort of the vaft extent of the divine Power. Hence is that fa-mous Paffage in Ifaiah's Prophefy (lv. 8, 9.) As far as the mous Paffage in Ifaiab's Prophety (lv. 8, 9.) As far as the Heavens are above the Earth, fo are my Thoughts above your Thoughts, and my Ways higher than your Ways. 'The H h

Lord often exceeds his Creatures Hopes, both in Temporals and Spirituals. I had not Thought to fee thy Face faid Jacob to Joseph, and lo God hath shew'd me thy Seed. Gen. xlviii. 11. The Debtor only defir'd Patience, and the Creditor forgave the Debt. (Mat. xviii. 26, 27.) The Prodigal defir'd but the State of a Servant, but lo he is treated as a Son, with the greatest Respect! His ungrateful Carriage is not for much as once mentioned, the fatted Calf is kill'd for his Entertainment, his Ears are delighted with mufical Symphonies, while Shoes are brought for his Feet, a Ring for his Finger, and the best Robe for his Back. But 6thly. The Power of God, is a juft and rightful Power. Power and Right in Creatures, are often feparated, they do that which they have no Right or Authority to do; but in God they are one and the fame, what he can do, he has a Right to do, and what he has a Right to do, he can do. This Right is founded upon the Tranfcendant Eminence, and infinitely fuperior excellency of his Godhead; as well as upon his creating, preferving, providing and Redeeming Goodnefs. On thefe Accounts he hath a right to Rule over the Work of his Hands according to his fovereign Pleafure; and to difpenfe his Gifts upon whom, when, and in what manner he pleafes: For he is our Potter, and we but Clay in his Hands, which he may make to Honour or Difhonour, as feems good in his Eyes. And 7thly. The Power of God is Eternal, Rom. i. 20. For the invifible Things of him, from the Creation of the World are clearly feen, being underflood by the Things that are made, even his eternal Power and Godhead. Albeit God from Eternity, did not produce Effects without himfelf, nevertheless he posses'd Power from Eternity, by which, when he pleased he created the World; and by this he could have created the World from Eternity, if the World could have have exifted from Eternity ! And as God's Power was from Eternity, fo it will continue to it. Hence it is faid IJa. xl. 28. That the Creator of the Ends of the Earth fainteth not, neither is weary, and that his Arm is not shortned. If a lix. 1. This the Church uses as an Argument, in petitioning for Deliverance. If li. 9, 10. Awake, awake, put on Strength O Arm of the Lord, awake as in the Antient Days, in the Generations of old, art thou not be that cut Rahab in Pieces, and wounded the Dragon? But I haften to the 4th General Head, which was to difcourfe upon the Effects of divine Power. And 1ft. The Power of God is confpicuous in the Creation of the World, what Almightinefs was neceffary to produce the vaft Expanse over our Heads, and this Maffy ponderous and prodigious Globe we tread upon, and that by a Word and in a Moment, out of no pre-exifting Matter? And afterwards out of the rude and indigested Chaos, to form the various Ranks of Beings, which both the Heavens and Earth contain, and to Beautify them with such Endowments as proclaim their Creators Glory ! The very nobleft Creature within the wide compass of the Universe, cannot produce the stallest Particle, of Matter out of Nothing; much less endow the various Species of Being, with those Capacities in which they excel each other ; No ! To the Production of these Things, infinite Strength must concur. Thus the Things that are made are a plain and fensible Demonstration of the eternal Power, and Godhead of their Former.

2dly. The Almightinefs of God is no lefs vifible in the Works of Providence, viz. in fupporting the ftately Fabrick of the Univerfe, and in directing all the Beings it contains, in their various Motions, fo as to anfwer his own eternal Purpotes. Many furprizing and improbable Events and Revolutions are brought to pafs, which nothing but divine H h 2 Power Power could Effect. By the Course of Providence we often fee that Scripture verify'd, that the Battle is not to the Strong nor the Race to the Swift.

The Almighty Power of God is marveloufly apparent in the Prefervation of the Chriftian Church, who comparatively are fmall in Number, and for the moft Part weak, in respect of Power and Policy, amidft numerous, politick, potent and malicious Oppofers: And that for fo long a Tract of Time, against all the malignant Efforts of Hell and Earth ! How does the Glory of divine Power appear in preferving a few Sheep, amidft vaft herds of cruel Wolves, in preferv-ing the burning Bufh from being confumed with the devouring Flames, with which it is encompafs'd. And 3dly. The infinite Power of God is likewife difester'd in Works of divine Grace.

Ift. The exceeding Greatness of God's Power and mighty working of it must be exerted to form Faith in any Heart, (Ephef. i. 19.) Nothing but Almighty Strength can over-come the strong Man arm'd, and pluck Sinners out of his And Snare.

2dly. The fame Power is neceffary to preferve Grace, after it is form'd, from Being quite deftroy'd by the un-wearied Affaults of Enemies, both inward and outward. Hence God's People are faid to be preferv'd by the Power of God, thro' Faith unto Salvation, 1 Pet. i. 5. 'The Pre-fervation of divine Grace, as Bifhop Hopkins observes, " Is " like the Prefervation of a spark of Fire upon the Ocean, " amidst turbulent Waves, and boysterous Blass."

The Almighty Power of God was made manifeft, and his Arm reveal'd, in the early Propagation of the Gofpel, thro' a great Part of the World, and that in a little Time, by il-literate Men! That a System of Doctrines, contrary to Men's corrupt Inclinations, and not recommended by the Arts of Perfuafion, Perfuation, or Inflence of civil Power, or any View of Honour or Advantage in this World, fhould be cordially embrac'd by Multitudes in the politeft Nations, and adher'd to, in defiance of all Kinds of Ignominy and Suffering even to Death, cannot be reafonably accounted for, otherwife than by afcribing it to Almighty Power !

Neither does it in the least derogate from the Greateness of God's Power, that he cannot do such Things as are imperfect and contradictory. Here observe,

1st. God cannot Lye or Sin in any respect, (Heb. vi. 18.) or change his Mind; these Things are not the Object of Power, but the Effects of Weaknefs; and therefore it's God's Glory to be incapable of them ! Nor 2dly. Can the Almigh-ty do those Things that imply a Contradiction, or are im-possible in the Nature of Things. God cannot make a Contradiction true, for this would overthrow the very Nature of Things, and fo deftroy his own Wifdom therein Aparent! He cannot make a Creature equal to himfelf, for then it would not be a Creature : God indeed can do what is impossible to Nature. i. e. he can exceed its stated Bounds and Limits, as appears by the miraculous Works he has wrought: But he cannot do what is impossible in Nature. Now that is impossible in Nature which involves a Contradiction, either on the Part of God, when the Work implies an Imperfection, in a most per-fect Worker, or on the Part of Things, when they over-throw themselves. Now both this Kind of Contradiction is impoffible to God, becaufe it would infer that God fhould deny himfelf (2 Tim. ii. 13) or that he should fay, that he is not God. A Contradiction feeing it cannot be, a Being cannot be a Work of Power, or the Object of Power. But I proceed to the Improvement of this Subject. And rft.

If. The Power of God speaks Terror to all impenitent Transgressors! What do these by their Prefumptious Ini-quities, but as it were enter the Lift with Jehovah, and bid Defiance to Omnipotence! This Eliphaz, the Temanite, expresses in beautiful Language, Job. xv. 25, 26. For he stretcheth out his Hand against God, and strengthneth him-felf against the Almighty. He runneth upon him, even on his Neck, upon the thick Boss of his Bucklers. But shall Briars and Thorns contend with the devouring Flames? How unequal is the Combat? Do we provoke the Lord to Jealouss? Are we Stronger then he? Hast thom an Arm like God? Or canst thou thunder with a Voice like him? Who when he touches the Mountains they Smoke year Who when he touches the Mountains they Smoke, yea the Hills tremble at his Prefence! At his Reproof the Pillars of Heaven shake, the Perpetual Hills do bow, and the everlasting Mountains are scattered! Who is able to Screne your guilty Souls from the wrathful Strokes of the Arm of Omnipotence? Truly in vain is Salvation hoped for from the Hills, and from the multitude of Mountains. God is Wife in Heart, and Mighty in Strength : Who has bardened himfelf against him, and hath prospered? 'Job. ix. 4. When they shall say, Peace and Safety, suddain Dc-struction cometh upon them, as travail upon a Woman with Ilruction comets upon them, as travail upon a Woman with Child, and they fkall not Efcape, 1. 'Thei' v. 3. How will ye be able to bear the Weight of Jebovah's angry Arm, the Reach of which ye cannot avoid. Is it not a fearful Thing to fall into the Hand of the living God? Can thine Heart Endure, or thy Hands be Strong in the Day that God deals with you? Surely he will magnify his Power in your Deftruction, Rom. ix. 22. What if God, willing to shew his Wrath, and to make his Power known, endur'd with much Long-fuffering, the Vessels of Wrath fitted to Destruction? Now consider this, ye that forget God, least be be tear you in Pieces, and there be none to deliver. Pfa, 1. 22. God will meat you as a Lyon, or a Bear bereav'd of her Whelps, and will rend the Caul from your Heart! He will break you with Breach upon Breach, and run upon you like a Giant, he will cry, yea roar, he shall prevail against his Enemics! But bis Enemies ! But 2dly. The Power of God speaks Comfort to all penitent Believers in all their Troubles, of whatsoever Nature they be. Are you encompass'd with many Enemies and Dan-gers, well God's Power is your Sanctuary, which is able to Protect you against the most formidable Foes, if God is for you, subo shall be against you? The Name of the Lord is a strong Tower, the Righteous run to it, and are fafe ! What tho' your Enemies be many and Mighty, one God is an overmatch for them all, Men and Devils can go no farther then the Length of their Chain : They can have no Power against us, except it be given them from above, as our Lord observed to proud Pilate, when he boassted that he had Power to crucify or release him, (John xix, 10.) The Power of God can soon put a Hook in their Jaws, and lead them by a Way they came not. When our Heart and our Strength fails, God is the Strength of our Heart and our Portion forever. How reviving is that Word of God by the Prophet, Ifa. xli. 10. Fear thou not for I am with thee, be not difmay'd for I am thy God; I will strengthen thee, yea I will help thee, yea I will uphold thee, by the right Hand of my Righteoufnels. Tho' we be redu-ced exceeding Low and have none on Earth to help us, God alone can deliver us, Ifa. lix. 16. He wondered that thwa sour sour we have of my Righteoufnels. Tho' we be redu-ced exceeding Low and have none on Earth to help us, God alone can deliver us, Ifa. lix. 16. He wondered that there a sour sour sour share for the source of sour sources of the source of the sour God alone can deliver us, Ifa. lix. 16. He wondered that there was no Interceffor, therefore his Hand brought Salva-tion unto him, and his Righteousness suffained him. The King of Zion can command Deliverance for Jacob, and turn his Captivity fuddenly as Streams in the South ! Tho God's God's People, as to outward Appearance, be in a hopelefs Cafe, as it were buried in their Graves: Divine Power can foon caufe a Refurrection! Ezek. xxxvii. 12. For the Eyes of the Lord run to and fro thro' the Earth to show himfelf Strong in behalf of them, whose Heart is Perfect towards him, 2 Chron. xvi. 9. God keeps his Vineyard, Night and Day, leaft any hurt it, (Ifa. xxvii. 3.) Those Things may revive us, both in respect of our own, and the Churches Troubles! Are we almost difcourag'd because of the Power of our inward Enemies? Let us remember that God's Grace is sufficient for us, and that his Strength is made perfect in Weakness, (2 Cor. xii. 9.) Turn ye therefore to your Strong Hold ye Prisoners of Hope; for as Calvin obferves, "There is Defence enough in one God!" But er of our inward Enemies? Let us remember that God's Grace is fufficient for us, and that his Strength is made per-fect in Weaknefs, (2 Cor. xii. 9.) Turn ye therefore to your Strong Hold ye Prifoners of Hope; for as Calvin ob-ferves, "There is Defence enough in one God !" But 3dly. The Confideration of God's Power fhould invite us to truft in God, in every Difficulty, even when hu-man Succours fail, we fhould glorify God with Abram, by bopeing against Hope, i.e. against the prefent Appearances of Things, when we have the Word of a God to hope upon Truft in the Lord forever for in Stabe of Things, when we have the Word of a God to hope upon. Truft in the Lord forever, for in Jebo-vab is everlafting Strength. Ifa. xxvi. 4. At what Time foever we are afraid, let us determine with the Plalmift, to truft in God, it grievs the Almighty when his People queftion his Omnipotence, as appears from the Inftance of Moles (Num. xi. 21, 22, 23) And as we fhould beware of queftioning God's Power, in a Way of Duty which is a prac-tical Denial of it. So we fhould with equal Care avoid pre-fuming upon it in a neglect thereof: For this is alfo a Deni-al of it, becaufe for all thefe Things God will be enquir'd of the Houfe of Urgel. of the House of Ifrael.

4th. Has God a rightful Power over us, then let us fubmit ourfelves to his Government, and devote ourfelves to his Glory and Service, and that freely, unrefervedly, fledfaftly faftly and faithfully. We are his, on all Accounts, his Workmanfhip, the Clay his Fingers have from'd, the Price of his Son's Blood; the Monuments of his providential Care, Kindnefs, and Forbearance; we are his Feople by Profeffion, and outward Dedication, and fhall we break thro' all thefe Ties, to rebel againft him, and ruin our own Souls, God forbid! Befides if we will not fubmit to his equitable Government, we muft expect to feel his Almighty Vengeance: For as Agustine obferves, "God is of immense Pow-"er, and therefore, there is no Place in which one can hide "bimsfelf, nor Time when one can fly, nor Power by which be "can result." Therefore let us refign ourfelves and our All to our rightful Lord, intending his Glory in all our Actions, of every kind, that whether living or dying, we may be the Lords, Rom. xiv. 7. Let us beware of the vileft Sacriledge, and render to God the Things that are Gods.

5thly. Let us acknowledge readily the abfolute Power and Sovereignty of God over us. Particularly that God cannot be our Debtor, on any other Account, except by his own gracious Promife, for our Goodnefs extends not to him, we are his Poffeffion and Property; and therefore whatfoever he purpofes concerning us, or does to us, he does us no Wrong, for he is our Potter, and we the Clay he has form'd. This Confideration fhould make us more patient in Adverfity and more thankful for Profperity. And in Adverfity and more thankful for Profperity. And 6thly. Let us glorify God on Account of his Power and Kingdom, which ruleth over all. Let us inwardly admire the vaft extent of his Right, and Strength, the largenefs of his Kingdom, and the Power of its Administration ! And let us extol it openly! Rev. xv. 3. And they fung the Song of Mofes the Servant of God, the Song of the Lamb, faying, great and marvelous are thy Works, OLord God Almighty, just and true are thy Ways, thou King of Saints ! And I i finally let us imitate the independant Power of God, by fubmitting to God only in Matters of Confcience. Let us fland fast in the Liberty wherewith Christ by his Blood, has made us free. Gal. v. 1. Only being careful that we don't abuse it, or use it with offence. Let us be strong in the Lord, and in the Power of his Might, that we may be able to do all Things, thro' Christ strong the strong us. O let us dwell in the Secret of the most High, that we may be constantly kept under the Shadow of the Almighty; and be preserved by his Power, thro' Faith unto Salvation, which may God grant for CHRIST fake, Amen, Amen.

LEVITICUS xix. 2.

Speak unto all the Congregation of the Children of Ifrael and fay unto them, ye shall be Holy: For I the Lord your God am Holy.

MOSES is enjoyned by Jebovah in the first Verse of this Chapter, and also in that out of which our Text is taken, to deliver the fummary of divine Laws to all the Congregation of the Children of Ifrael. Moses must make known God's Statutes, and proclaim them thro' the Camp, that so every one might hear and know his Duty, in order to practice the same. And hence we may learn, that the Devotion which springs from Ignorance, that that Religion which commends it, cannot be of God; because it is directly contrary to the Method which God has taken with his reasonable Creatures, refpecting the Affairs of Religion, in all the Ages of the Church, both under the Jewish and Gospel Dispensations ! Now the Words of our Text contain two Things observable, viz. A Command, and a Reason enforcing it. And

1ft. There is a Command, ye fkall be Holy, "The Word "Holy, fays Pool in his Synopfis upon the Place, and other "learned Men, properly fignifies to feparate, i. e. from a "Common to a Religious Ufe" And hence the Temple and Tabernacle and many Things in both, were call'd Holy: I i 2 and And likewife the whole People of Ifrael, and many other Things, which it is needlefs to mention : The Word here fignifies, " not only a Sepation from all the Defilements " before mentioned; " as Mr. Pool observes, both in his Synopfis, and Annotations; but also an inward Aversion to all Impurity and Sin, together with a habitual Devotednefs to all moral Purity. Ifrael's being diffinguished from all other People, by peculiar Laws, was to teach them the neceffity of a real Separation from the World and the Flefh, and of an entire Devotedness to God ; and this is likewise the Law of Chrift, 1 Pct. i. 15. 16. But as he who hath cal-led you is Holy, fo be ye Holy in all manner of Conversation; because it is written, be ye Holy, for I am Holy. We are the Followers of the Holy JESUS, and therefore muft, according to our Capacity, be confectated to God's Honour, and conform'd to his Nature and Will, ye fhall be Hely; the Words are not a Prophely or Promife, but a Precept, importing as much as this, be ye Holy. 1 Pet. i. 15. Or ye must be Holy. It is as if God had faid, ye must take Care and Pains, to have the Habits or Principles of Holinefs, implanted in your Hearts, and to exercise and express the fame. in all your Speech and Practice ! But

2dly. We have the Reafon enforcing this Command, and that is twofold, viz. The Nature of God and his Relation to them, for I the Lord your God am Holy. And 1ft. God in his Nature is Holy, yea Holinefs itfelf, the Fountain, Idea, and Patern of all Holinefs. (Ifa. lxiii. 15. Ezek. xx. 12.) It is therefore every Way reafonable, that we fhould feek Holinefs of him, and conform ourfelves to his Example, feeing it is in itfelf Reafonable and Noble, and without it we can have no Complacence in him here, or Enjoyment of him hereafter. (Heb. xii, 14.) But

2dly. The Almighty in this Text, incites the People of Ifrael to Holinefs on Accout of the covenant Relation which fubfifted between them : For I the Lord your God am Holy, as if God had faid, I have chosen you before others, and given myself to you to be your God by Way of special Interest, and covenant Property; and ye have chosen me, and devoted yourfelves to me as your Guide, your God, your Governor, your Portion, and your All ! And therefore you are bound by the Ties of Gratitude, and by covenant Engagements, to obey my Precepts, and conform your felves to my Nature in Holinefs !. The Subject that offers it felf to our prefent Meditations,

The Subject that offers it felf to our prefent Meditations, from the Text, which I have been labouring to explain, is that venerable Attribute of the divine Nature, viz. Holinefs: This is very frequently afcribed to God in the facred Scriptures, thus he is call'd the Holy one, Ifa. xl. 25. Likewife the Holy one of Ifrael, above 30 Times, Ifa. xl. 20. He is call'd the Holy one of Jacob, Ifa. xxix. 23. The most Holy, or Holy of Holies, Dan. ix. 24. He is call'd thrice Holy, Ifa. vi. 3.---Rev. iv. 8. Or the Character of Holinefs is three Times repeated. Holinefs is afcrib'd to all the Perfons of the Trinity, the Father is call'd the Holy one of Ifrael: The Son is call'd the most Holy, Dan. ix 24. The Spirit is call'd the Spirt of Holinefs, and the Holy Spirit, Rom. i. 4. And indeed right Reafon affures us, that God is Holy: For 1ft. If we were not Holy, how could he be the Author of that Holinefs, which is in his People? (John i. 19.)

2dly. Without Holinefs he could not carry himfelf decently, or as it is fit and proper to himfelf; and fo by Confequence, he could not behave himfelf fuitable to hisCreatures, nor govern them Holily and Well. If a King do not duly regard himfelf in his Royal Authority, he can never duly govern his Subjects. And 3dly. Without Holinefs he could not be perfect in any Attribute : For as Mr. Scudder observes, "Holinefs is the " Beauty of all God's Attributes, without which his Wildom " would be Subtlety ; his Justice, Cruelty ; his Sovereignty, " Tyrany, his Mercy foolifh Pity."

In confidering this divine Perfection, I would

I. Enquire concerning its Nature.

II. Shew its Properties. III. Reprefent it's Manifestations or Difeoveries.

And laftly proceed to fome practical Ufes.

Ift. Then feeing the Holiness of God, as it is in him, is fo Sublime and Transcendent, that it is inacceffible to our weak and finite Minds; it will be neceffary, first to behold it in its Emblem, or Effects, and from that to proceed to the producing Caufe, or Prototype. Now the Image or Effect of the Holinefs of God, is that Holinefs, which Jehovah is pleas'd to form in intelligent Beings or Creatures. Holinei's therefore in its general Nature, may be thus defcrib'd, viz. That it is the moral Goodness of a reafonable Being. To understand which, let it be observ'd, that Goodness is two-fold, viz. Physical and Moral, Physical Goodness is likewise two-fold, viz. either of Being or Use; a Thing may be call'd Good phyfically or naturally either when its being is defireable, or when it ierves to answer the End defign'd for it. In both these Resects, all the inanimate and irrational Parts of the Creation are call'd Good by God himfelf, the beft Judge of Things. Gen. i. ult. And God faw every Thing that he had made and behold it was very Good ! But meral Goodness, is that which is adorn'd, with such Manners, as become a God ! and this is peculiar to reafonable Creatures. Now the Holineis of Creatures is threethree-fold, viz. Relative, Fedral, and Real, 1st. Relative, is that whereby Times and Places, and other Things are call'd holy, because they relate to a Holy God, and are appropriated by him, being feparated from a Common, and de-dicated to a Religious Ufe by his Authority, which they have a Tendency to promote. In this Senfe the Sabbath, the Temple, and many Things in it, were call'd Holy. 2dly Federal Holiness, is that whereby Persons are separated from the World, to be God's peculiar People, in order to the Study of Holinefs, when they profess this, and by their Pro-feflion are in the Judgment of a reasonable Charity, look'd upon as Saints or Holy Perfons. Deut. vii. 6. For thou art a Holy People unto the Lord thy God, the Lord thy God kath chosen thee to be a special People unto himself, above all People that are on the Face of the Earth. Num. xv. 40. That ye may remember, and do all my Commandments and be Holy unto your God. In this refpect the Whole Nation of Ifrael, were of old Holy to God (Ex. xix. 6.) They are therefore call'd a Holy Nation. (1 Pet. ii. 9. Num. xvi. 3.) And Scores of Times the whole Nation of Ifrael are call'd God's People in Scripture. Ex. iii. 10. That thou mayst bring forth my People the Children of Israel out of Egypt. In this Respect the Children of believing Parents are Holy. (I Cor.vii. 14.) But 3dly. Real Holines, confists in the Exercise and Growth of good Habits or pious Dispositions infus'd, and is therefore twofold, viz. Habitual and actual. Habitual, confifts in the inward Purity of the Will and Affections, whereby we are inclin'd to live to God; or it confifts, in the Infusion of a Constellation, or Train of Graces, into the Soul, which turns its inward and general Bent into a fpiritual and Heavenly Channel! By this the Soul of Man, is in fome Sort conform'd to the Nature of God; Actual Holinefs confifts in the Exercife of the aforefaid divine Habitabits, especially in our Speech and Practice, whereby, thro' God's gracious Concurrence, they are increas'd. Hereby the Life is conform'd to God's Will and Law : From what has been observ'd, it appears, therefore that Holinefs contains the four following Ingredients, or Particulars. viz. 1ft. A Separation from a common or profane Use, in which Senfe, Paul the Apostle, is faid to be separated to the Gospel of God. Rom. i. 1. And the Lord Jesus as Mediator, is faid to be sanctified. John x. 36. And 2dly. A Dedication to a divine or religious Use, whereby we deliberately, unrefervedly, and resolutely devote ourselves and our all to the Divine Glory and Service. (Rom. xii. 1. 2 Cor. viii. 5.) First they gave their own felves to the Lord.----And 3dly. It contains a Representation, of the Divine Holinefs, the Heart refembling the Purity of the divine Nature, and the Life the Purity of the Divine Law. And 4thly. Holinefs includes a Detessation of, and Flight from all Impurity. Ps. xevii. 10. Ye that love the Lord hate Evil.

From the aforefaid Image, or Emblem of Holinefs in Creatures, we may gather this Defeription, of the Holinefs of God! viz. That it is his Moral Excellency, whereby be is feparated from every thing common or prophane, hereby be is inclind to feek himfelf, and his Glory above all. (Pro. xvi. 4. Ephef. i. 11.) and is conform'd exactly to that Holinefs which is exprefs'd in the Moral Law in his Thoughts, Words and Deeds. And hence he often in his Word invites Men to an Imitation of his Holinefs. (1 Pet. i. 15, 16.) As God's Power is oppos'd to all natural Weaknets, and his Wifdom to Folly, fo his Holinefs is oppos'd to all moral Blemifkes, or Imperfections, which we call Sin. Hab. i. 13.

Holinefs is a Disposition, to feek the most excellent End, in the highest Degree, and to refer all to it. The best Good, certainly deferves to be the last End ! Now Jehovah being being himfelf, the beft Good, infinitely fuperior in Ex-cellency, to all Creatures, he must therefore confequently be his own last End! Hence is that of the Prophet. If a. xlii. 8. I am the Lord, that is my Name, and my Glory will I not give to another, nor my Praife to Graven Images. And it appears farther to be reasonable, that God should seek himself as his own last End, because he is Self-existent, & from no other This Devotedness therefore of the Almighty to feek his own Glory, as bis chief End, appears to be a very confiderable Branch of the Holinels of God. But for Creatures, who are but an inferior Good, and borrow their Beings from another to make themfelves, or any thing that concerns them nother to make themfelves, or any thing that concerns them as fuch, their laft End, is a great Inftance of Impiety: The very nature of Sin feems to confift in this, viz. A Deviation or wandering in our Views, Defigns or Affecti-ons from God's Glory, to fome other End, as Chief and Su-pream. Seeing that all Things are from God, as a creat-ing or producing Caufe, and thro' him alfo as a fupporting Caufe, therefore all ought to be directed to him, as a final Caufe. (Rom. xi. 36.) The Holinefs of God feems to be the Harmony of his Attributes, as they are oppos'd to Sin ! and therefore it's call'd the Beauty of the Lord ! Pf.xxvii. 4. One Thing have I defir'd of the Lord, that will I feek after, that I may dwell in the Houfe of the Lord, to behold the Beau-ty of the Lord.---Holinefs feems to put a Luftre upon the ty of the Lord .--- Holinefs feems to put a Luftre upon the other Perfections of the divine Nature, without which, they would be inglorious becaule, impure! Now the Holinefs of God, is either effential or declarative. The effential Holinefs of God is nothing elfe but the transfeendant and incomprehensible Eminence of the divine Nature or Being, or his Purity and Glory. And hence he is faid to be glorious in Holinefs. (Ex. xv. 11.) The declarative Holinefs of God confifts in the Difplays of the Former in God's K. k. Word The Properties of God's Holinefs.

Word and Works, they are diffinguish'd only in our manner of Conception, and not in God. And thus I am led to difcourse upon the

2d. Propos'd, which was to flew the Properties of God's Holinefs. Now the effential Holinefs of God, has the following Properties, viz.

Ift. It is original Holinefs, it is the Source of all those Stremes of Holinefs which appear in Creatures : It is the Substance and Prototype, their's but the Shadow and Copy borrow'd from it ! Jebovab has receiv'd it from none, but created Beings derive all theirs from this, Rom. xi. 35 -----Who hath furst given to him ? 2dly. It is fimple Holinefs, i. e. It is the very Being of 2dly. It is fimple Holinefs, i. e. It is the very Being of God, and not any Thing added to it : Hence God is faid to fivear by his Holinefs, Pfal. lxxxix 35. Whereas Holinefs in Creatures is not their Nature, or Being, but fome Difpofition or Quality added to it, and therefore feparable from it; and hence they are only call'd Holy, but not Holinefs : This laft Term fpeaks an Abftract, fimple and uncompounded Being ! And 3dly. It is eternal Holinefs, and this it muft needs be, feeing it is the fame with his Effence; which has been before prov'd to be eternal, in a preceeding Sermon. As it is impoffible in the Nature of Things, that ever God fhould begin to be, fo it is equally impoffible that ever he fhould be without Holinefs, which is his Beauty and Glory, for then he would be no God; but a Being of a contrary Character. Now as the Holinefs of God had no Beginning, fo by Confequence it can have no End ! Whereas on the Contrary the Beings of all Creatures, beginning with Time, or commencing in it, are Temporary; and their Holinefs, which could not exift before their Beings, muft be of the like Kind : As it had a Beginning fo it may have an End.

4thly. Immutable Holinefs: It is liable to no Change or Alteration, for the Reafon aforefaid, viz. Becaufe it is himfelf: And hence it is faid, Rev. xv. 4. That God only is Holy, i. e. He is holy to as none elfe befides him is; the Moral Excellencies of Creatures are liable to manifold Change, yea they may be entirely Loft; witnefs the Apoftacy of the Angels, and the fatal Fall of our first Parents. Hereby the Crown has fallen from our Heads, and we have come Short of the Glory of God !

5thly. Transcendent Holinefs, above all Degrees: It being absolutely Perfect, can receive no increase: The Holinefs of all created Beings amaffed together, would be but as a Drop compar'd with the Infinite Ocean of Purity in God: But the Holiness of all Creatures is certainly Gradual on Earth, and possibly so in Heaven; for if the Saints and Angels increase in Knowledge, why may they not in Love, and other good Dispositions! Hence God is faid to Charge his Angels with Folly, and that the Heavens are not clean in his Sight; by which, (by a Metonimy,) we may understand the Inhabitants of Heaven, whose Holiness when compar'd with God, may be call'd Impurity!

6thly, It is Infinite Holinefs, it is without all Bounds, and is therefore term'd Light and Love it felf. (1 Job. i. 5. and iv. 8.)

Whereas the Angels, who feem to be the Purest of created Spirits, vail their Faces in the immediate Presence of God, as being asham'd of their comparative Deformity; while they behold that radiant Beauty and burnish'd Glory which appears with surprizing Blaze and venerable Majesty in the Holines of God ! But 2dly. The declarative Holines of God has the following 2dly. The declarative Holinefs of God has the following Properties, viz. It is 1st. Perfect, without the least Defect : Hence we are bid to be the Sons of God without Rebuke, K k 2 Phil. Phil. ii. 15. It is fincere without Deceit; for God is not a Man, that he fhould Lie, or the Son of Man that he fhould Repent.

2dly. It is Exemplary: And hence we are bid to immitate him, to be Holy as be is Holy; to be Merciful as be is Merciful: This demonstrates its superior Eminence; for the common Maxim is just, that that which is the First and Best in every Kind, is the Rule and Measure of the Rest! (Primum et Optimum in unoquoque genere, est regula, & mensura ceterorum.)

3dly. Universal: As God's Holiness is diffus'd thro' all his Attributes within himself, fo it appears in his Word, and all his Works without, and that free from the least Intermission or Variation; the Truth of which will appear under the next general Head of Discourse, viz. The

3d. Propos'd, which was to reprefent the Manifestations or Ditcoveries of God's Holines: And here we may juftly observe, with the Psalmist in General, That God is Holy in all bis Works, (Psal. cxlv. 17.) But it is peculiarly Apparent in those following, viz.

Ift. In his eternal Decrees refpecting his People: God has therein from everlafting, purpos'd and fecured upon a ftrong and impregnable Foundation, the Holinefs of the Elect, and hence it is faid, Ephef. i. 4. That he hath chofen us in him, before the Foundation of the World, that we should be Holy and without Blame before him ! 2 Thef. ii. 13, Becaufe God hath, from the beginning, chosen you to Salvation, thro' SanEtification of the Spirit ! And 2dly. The Holinefs of God, appears in the Creation of Man, in making him after his own Image in Righteoufnefs and Holinefs, (Ephef. iv. 25.) Tho' Man has fince found out many Inventions to his Shame and Lois; yet, as Solomon observes, he was made at first upright! A perfect and universal verfal Rectitude crown'd the human Nature in its primitive State, together with a freedom of Will and Power to perfevere therein ! God's Fore-knowledge and Purpofe did not bereave Man of his Liberty of acting, or lay him under a natural Neceflity of finning; for if fo, then God would be the Author of Sin; which is blafphemous to Imagine ! And was it not the Defign of God in making the irrational and inanimate Parts of the Creation, that thereby intelligent Beings might be excited to admire and adore the Perfections of their Former, and conform to him?

him? 3dly. The Holinefs of God appears in his Works of Pro-vidence, efpecially in his prefcribing to intelligent Creatures a Law to direct them in his Service, and in enforceing that Law by proper Sanctions of the most defirable Rewards and formidable Punifhments ! Hereby reprefenting before them the unspeakable Advantages of his fincere Service, as well as on the Contrary, the dreadful Confequences of a Neglect thereof! And has not Almighty God by his Pro-vidence, in fome fignal Instances, manifested his holy Dif-pleafure against Sin, by executing upon Transferesfors, the Threatnings annex'd to the Violation of his Law? As the Pfalmist observes, Pfal. ix. 16. The Lord is known by the Judgments which he executeth : The Wicked is (nared in the Work of his own Hands ! It is true, Judgment is not always Work of his own Hands ! It is true, Judgment is not always fpeedily executed, and therefore the Hearts of the Sons of Men are fully fet in them to do Evil! And the Reafon is, becaufe the prefent State of Things, is a Time of Probation, and not of Recompence; which fhews the Neceffity of a future Judgment, when a righteous God fhall render Vengeance and Recompence! However both Scripture and Hiftory inform us, of fome dreadful Difplays of divine Severity, against obstinate Transgreffors, that the World

World may know there is a God who detefts their Impieties ! And 4thly. Has not the Holinefs of God had a most furprizing Difplay in the Work of Redemption? Rather then Sin should pais unpunish'd, did not the Almighty Father punish it in his own Son? His only begotten and eternally beloved Son ! Did not his Sword awake against the Man that was his Companion? The darling of his Soul! And did he not afflict him with all the Waves of his intollerable Vengeance, which was due for the Sins of the elect World? Our dearest Lord trod the Wine Prets of his Fathers Wrath alone !-----The Chastisfement of our Peace was laid upon him, that thro' his Stripes we might be healed. Our Redeemer under the Agonies of Difertion for our Sins, referrs to the Holiness of God therein made manifest, Pfal. xxii. 3. But theu art Holy O thou that Inhabitess the Praises of Israel ! And

5thly. God's Holinefs appears in his Works of divine Grace, whereby he prepares his People here, for the Enjoyment of Himfelf hereafter. Hence effectual Calling, is term'd a Holy Calling. 2 Tim. i. 9. And we are faid to be called, not unto Uncleanefs, but unto Holinefs. 1 Thef. iv. 7. And what is Regeneration, and Sanctification, but the renewing of the Image of God's Holinefs in Man? And what is Glorification,? Does it not in a degree confift in the perfecting of the aforefaid Image in the Redeem'd? Then that which is in part shall be done away, Then shall cur Lord prefent to bimfelf, a Church boly and glorious, without Spot and Blemisch. Eph. v. 27. Again

2dly. God discovers his Holines in his Word, every Page of which proclaims his Purity, and hence it is call'd Holy; by his Truth contain'd therein, we are fantified or made Holy. (John xvii. 17.) The Words of the Lord are pure Words, as Silver tried in a Furnace of Earth, purified seven Times. Pl. The Difplays of God's Holine's. 263

Pl. xii. 6. The Law of God is holy, and the Commandment juft and Good. Rom. vii. 12. And no Wonder, for it is the Image of the divine Purity, a Transcript of the divine Naturc, as far asit is imitable; hence it is likned to a Glass. Jam. i. In this we behold God and ourselves, For by the Law is the Knowledge of Sin. The Law of God, fays the Pfalmist, is perfect, converting the Soul. Pf. xix. 7. The Gospel is Holy, and hence it is call'd, a holy Covenant. (Luke i. 72.) The great Design of it, is to promote Holines, by laying Men under more endearing and ingenuous Engagements thereto. And

; dly. God does not only difcover his Holinefs in his Works and Word; but also in his Worship; hence the Ordinances of Worship, viz. 'The Sacraments are call'd Holy, because they tend to promote Holinefs, and likewife the Time and Place of Worfkip, are call'd Holy. God is faid to hallow the Sabbaoth (Ex. XX. 11.) The Temple of old was call'd Holy, and Holiness is faid to become God's Houle forever. (Pl. xciii. v.) On this Account it is faid to be the Place, where God's Honour dwells. (P/. xxvi. 8.) The Ministers, and Attendants of Worship, are call'd Holy. Aaron was to wear on the Front of his Mitre, a Plate of Gold, with this Motto engraven on it, viz. Holinefs to the Lord. Ex. xxviii. 36. The Angels, those Attendants of Worship, are call'd boly. Luke ix. 26. And is not Holinefs the great Defign, and Tendency of Religious Worship? And Hence is that Word of God to Moses and Aaron, Ex. x. 3. I will be santified in them, that come night me. But it is Time to proceed to some practical Uses. And

If. If God be Holy, as has been prov'd, then we may hence learn, that he cannot be the Author of Sin, which is fo contrary to his Nature, or of any Doctrines that tend to promote it. Now the following Doctrines of the Papifts, Antinomians, Antinomians, and Enthufiasts are of this Sort, and therefore should be rejected with Abhorrence, viz.

1ft. The Doctrine of Indulgencies, or Pardons for Sin. This was oppos'd by Swinglius in Helvetia, and by Luther in Germany, in the Year 1516. and being defended by Pope Leo, became the Occafion of the Reformation.

2dly. The Popifh Diffinction of Sins into Venial and Mortal. The Former they fay do not deferve eternal Punifhment, contrary to Scripture, (Rom. vi. 23.)

To those I might add their gainful Doctrine of Purgatory. And likewise their holding with the Pharisees of old, that the Law respects only outward Acts: Whereas the inward Principle from which those flow, is more corrapt than any Act that proceeds from it. As the aforestaid Doctrines are most absurd- in themselves: For how can it be supposed with any Appearance of Reason, that any can forgive Sins, but that God against whom they are committed? I say as they are absurd in themselves, so they have a manifest Tendency to promote impiety, and therefore are not of God.

To the Former Catalogue, may be added fome Antinomian Doctrines, which are not lefs unreafonable and perilous, viz. Juftification from Eternity, or from the Time of Chrift's Death. That the Law is no Rule of Life to Believers, that there is no need of Repentance under the Gofpel; that Faith confifts in fuch an Affurance, as is fucceeded by no Doubts. That there is no preparative (of order) that goes before Faith. Those Doctrines open a Door to all Impiety. They directly tend to make Chrift a Minister of Sin, and his Gotpel an Infrument of Iniquity; an 1 therefore cannot be from God. It is an Inftance of the vileft Ingratitude, to draw from the Doctrine of free Forgivenes, an Argument againft Repentance!

And indeed the Arminian Doctrine of Universal Redemtion. tion, has an awful Tendency to make Men fecure in Sin. Of the like Nature is the Doctrine of all Enthufiafts, in oppofing the stated Performance of Religious Duty. This, whatever falfe Guifes is put upon it, tends to wear off the Sense of God and divine Things, and to prepare Men tor Delusions in Principle and Iniquity in Practice. And 2dly. From what has been faid, in the Explicatory Part of this Difcourfe, we fhould be induc'd to examine ourfelves, in order to know whether we be truly Holy or not? Which we may know by an impartial comparing of ourfelves, with what has been already deliver'd on this Subject, to which I fhall add the following Characters of true Holinefs, which duly confider'd may affift the Examination of ourfelves. And

ift. True Holinefs is Sincere, it Eyes God more than Man, and aims at his Glory above all, in the general Courfe of Action. And herein it is like the Holinefs of God himfelf, inafmuch as it aims at the fame End with him. (Mat. vi. 1, -6. 1 Cor. x. 31.)

2dly. It is internal chiefly, as it begins in the Mind and Heart, fo it takes more Care of that, than the Outfide. (Pf. li. 6.) directly contrary to this were the Pharifees of old in their Practice. (Mat. xxiii. 23.)

3dly. It is Evangelical, proceeding chiefly from that Faith in CHRIST, which is of the Operation of God, and worketh by Love. As God's People receive Strength from CHRIST to perform Acts of Holinefs, by a believing Dependance on him, fo they are conftrained or influenced by Love to him, to labour to be Holy. And their Attainments and Labours in Religion, are attended with a humble Senfe of their own Imperfection. Not as the' I had already attain'd, faid holy Paul, or were already perfect, but I prefs forward. And

4thly.

4th. True Holinefs is Universal, and that both in regard of the Subject in which it is plac'd, and the Object about which it is exercis'd. The whole Soul in all its Powers, is in fome Meafure renew'd, the Mind is enlightned, the Will bow'd, the Affections in their general Bent, and in the higheft degree are turn'd towards God. And both Soul and Body feparated from the habitually governing Love of the World, and willingly devoted to God, together with all we poffefs, not referving to ourfelves any Thing with Ananias, and Saphira, and the young Pharifee. (Rom. xii. 12. 1 The/. v. 23.) Some derive the Word Holy (bagios) from a Letter and a Word which fignify to be void of Earth. Now as the Subjest is univerfally alter'd, in respect of the whole Number of its Parts, fo is the Object universal alfo. True Holinefs includes in it, an Averfion not only to this or that impurity, with the Pharifees, but to all with every Appearance thereof. (Tit. xi. 12. Jud. 23.) And likewife an Inclination to, and endeavour after every good Work. Job. xiii. 18.

5thly True Holinefs is continual, it endures to the End, fuch as have it, aim at, and labour for Growth in Goodnefs, and when they find not fatisfactory Signs thereof, are griev'd !

Now all fuch who upon Examination find in themfelves, the preceeding Characters of Holinefs, may take Comfort to their Souls, whatever Circumftances of Difcouragement they may be in, from within or from without. And that for the following Reafons. 1ft. Becaufe it is not the Meafure, but Truth of Grace that evidences our Sanctification. 2dly. Becaufe our imperfect Holinefs, is accepted thro' Chrift, in whom we are compleat. He is made of God to us Wifdom, Righteoufnefs, Sanctification and Redemption. 3dly. He that has begun a good Work in us, has promifed to carxy it on, to the Day of the Lord JESUS. God is Holy and the the Fountain of all Holinefs. God has promis'd to take away the Stony Heart, and give us a Heart of Flesh, to give us a new Heart and a new Spirit, and that he will caufe us to walk in his Statutes. Ezek. xxxvi. 25, 27. 4thly. What tho' we at Times are afflicted with our Corruptions, it is no more than the Saints of God have been before us! Woe is me, faith Itaiah, for I am a Man of polluted Lips. Ifa. vi. 5. Yea this is the Language of the Church. If. lxiv. 6. But we are all as an unclean Thing and all our Righteousnesses, are as filthy Rags, and we all do fade as a Leaf, and our Iniquities, like the Wind bave taken us away. ThePialmist complains of the same Difease, and yetHopes. Pf. lxv. 3. Iniquities prevail against me, as for our Transgressions, thou shalt purge them away. And thus did the Apostle Paul. Rom. vii. 24. Who fiall deliver me from this Body of Sin and Death? But God will blct out cur Iniquities, as a thick Cloud, and will remember our Sins no more, If. xl. 22. CHRIST hath given himself for his Church, that he might fanchify it, by the washing of Water thro' the Word. Epb. v. 25, 26. And let us comfort ourfelves with this, in all our Troubles, that he who now fanctify's us, will by and by glorify us, (Rom. viii. 30.)

But on the contrary all fuch as want the aforefaid Characters, are in a doleful Cafe! In the Gall of Bitternefs and Bond of Iniquity. Such, to continuing, can have no Communion with a Holy God here, nor enjoy him hereafter. (1 Job. i. 6.---Heb. xi. 14.) And efpecially how difmal is the Cafe, how impious the Courfe, of thofe who murmur at Arictnefs in Religion, and deride Holinefs. What do there in Effect, but rife up in Arms againft God himfelf, while they practically deny his Holinefs. The Language of their Practice is, that they would caufe the Holy One of Ifrael to ceafe from among them. They would, if they could, deftroy the divine Being; but by their impotent Malice, they will but L l 2 fecure and heighten their own Ruin. But I proceed to a Ufe of Exhortation. From the Confideration of Gods Holinefs, we fhould be exhorted, 1ft. To glorify God on the Ac-count of this divine Attribute after the Example of the Ho-ly Angels. Ifa. vi. 3.---2dly. Let us feek the Principles of Sanctification from God, in the earneft Ufe of all appoint-ed Means, paticularly by Meditation on its Excellency, and Neceffity, by Prayer, reading and hearing the Word of God, and converfing with pious People. And 3dly. Let us exercife those Principles, in all Holinets of Conversation. Now we should be excited to Holinets, by the following Motives. 1st. God is Holy, yea Holinefs itfelf, and Wills our Sanctification. 2dly. Holinefs is his principal and univerfal Perfection, and therefore by the Study of Holinefs we refemble God in his chief Excellency. 3dly. He who is Holy, is the Lord, or Jehovah, and fo able to compenfate the Labours we use to be like him. 4thly. He is our God, and fo has given himfelf to us, and we ourfelves to him in Covenant, and therefore we are bound to be Holy, both by Gratitude for his undeferved Love, & by our own Promife. 5thly. Holinefs is exceeding excellent, it exalts and eno-bles our reafonable Nature, by conforming it to the Divine, 6thly. It is as neceffary as excellent, in a twofold refpect viz. Both of Command, and Mean. As God enjoyns it by his fovereign Authority fo it appears to be of abfolute Ne-ceffity, from the very Nature of Things. For without Conformity to God, we can have no complacence in him, and fo no Communion with him, either in this or a future World. And without Communion with God, there can be no Enjoyment of God. See Heb. xii. 14. 7thly. It is pleafant. Solomon juftly observ'd, That Wisdoms Ways are Ways of Pleafantnefs, and all her Paths Peace. Hereby Fellowship with God is attain'd, which is the most fweet Entertainment : and

and our Hope of Glory confirm'd, which is the moft fupporting Protpect. 8thly. Profitable. (Jer. ii. 31) Sure-ly in ferving God there is great Reward. Farther what is ly in ferving God there is great Reward. Farther what is the great Defign of our eternal Election, next to the Glory of God, but that we fhould be Holy. Eph. i. And is not this the Scope of our Saviours Death, and of the Office of the Holy Spirit? Did not our Lord die to purchase to him-leff a peculiar People zealous of good Works? And to what Purpofe, is our effectual Calling, but that we should be holy in all manner of Conversation? As a holy Conversation is pleasing to God, (Prov. xi. 20.) fo it hath a noble Tendency, to promote his Kingdom among Men : Whereas the contrary promote his Kingdom among Men : Whereas the contrary difhonours God's Name, grieves the Hearts of the Godly, and hardens the Hearts of the Wicked. Is not the Defign of all the Parts of God's Word, whteher Doctrinal, Hiftorical, Perceptive, Promifory, Minatory, as well of the various Difpenfations of Providence we meet with to promote Holinefs? And are not all these lost to us, if this be not obtain'd, Afflicti-ons and Comforts are lost? Yea and the Ordinances, are alfo loft to us. Our Profession and Prayers, yea and the Eyes of God, Men and Angels that are upon us, oblige us to be Holy. In this Way we may expect that God will be our Sun and Shield, and will give us Grace and Glory. Amen.

SERMON XIV.

DEUTERONOMY, xxxii. 4.

He is the Rock, his Work is Perfect: For all his Ways are Judgment: A God of Truth, and without Iniquity, Ju/t and Right is he.

MOSES introduces his Song in this Chapter with the most folemn and commanding Magnificence, and yet with the fostest Charms of Language! He summones the Attention of the inanimate Creation partly to reprove the Stupidity of Ifrael, and partly to bear Witness to the Truth of what he was about to deliver to them in the following Song, either for their Instruction or Warning, as well as to witness to the Justice and Equity of the divine Proceedings against that unhappy Nation ! Give Ear O Heavens and I will fpeak, and bear O Earth the Words of my Mouth !

In the 2d Verse the devout Penman of this Song, wishes that the Instructions contain'd in it, may be refreshing to and effectual upon his beloved Nation, as the Rain and Dew upon the Earth, my Dostrine shall drop as the Rain, my Speech shall distil as the Dew.-----These Words may be confidered as a Prayer of Moses, as if he had faid, O ! That it might do so; thus Bishop Patrick understands the Words. In the next Verse he fignifies his Intention to make known the Glory of God, and therefore excites them to as for the Greatness to him; which Intention he performs in the Words of The Text explain'd.

of our Text, wherein we have a Reprefentation of the divine Glory and Greatnefs apparent in the Perfection of his Works, and equity of his Government, in a Variety of Particulars, viz. 1ft. He is call'd a Rock, to fignify the Stability of his Nature, the Firmnefs of his Councils, the immutability of his Promifes, and Almightinefs of his Power! In all which Refpects he is a fecure Shelter and unfhaken Foundation for our Refort and Confidence.

2dly. His Work is Perfect, " His Work of Creation was " fo, all that he made in its original Conflitution was very " Good; his Works of Redemption and Providence shall be " be fowhen the Mystery of God is finished." God's Works " are true, and cannot be blam'd, faith Ainsworth upon the " Place, God never recalls his Councils, but perfects them. " God's Work is call'd Perfect, because he has fulfill'd what " be promis'd to the Fathers."

3 dly. All bis Ways are Judgment, i. c. fayeth Henery, "the Ends of bis Ways are all Righteous, and he is Wife in "the Choice of the Means in order to those Ends," By God's Ways, we are to understand all Gods Providential Adminiftrations towards intelligent Creatures, and by Judgment, Prudence, and Justice, (Hof. xiv. 9.)

4thly. He is a God of Truth, i. e. as Mr. Pool observes in his Synops, "Faithful in his Promises; whole Word we "may depend upon, for he cannot Lie."

"may depend upon, for he cannot Lie." 5thly. Without Iniquity, he is perfectly Free from all moral Blemish and Defect. "He deceives none that confides in him, and wrongs none that apply for Justice, and is hard upon none that cast themselves upon his Mercy."

6thly. Just and Right is he : God is Holy and Equal in his Distributions; as he is just in himself, so he is just in all his Dealings with Mankind, none can with Reason accuse him of Infincerity, Unrighteousses, or Levity.

Now

Now that Attribute or Perfection of God which is principally represented in our Text, by a beautiful variety of Expressions, is his Justice; this therefore is the Subject of our present Meditations. That God is just, the Scripture proves many Ways, particularly 1st. Metaphorically and Figuratively, when he is therein call'd a consuming, Fire, an angry Lyon, a Man of War. (Deut. iv. 24. Ifa. xxxviii. 13.)

2dly. Affectively, by attributing to him Zeal, Anger, Jealousy, Fury. (Num. xi. 10. Exo. xx. 5. xxxii. 10.) The aforetaid Affections suppose Justice in Creatures, and tho' they be Passions in them, they are in God but an Act of immutable Justice.

3dly. Effectively, by fhewing that he renders to every one according to his Works. (1 Sam. xxvi. 23.)

4thly. Negatively, by removing from him all Injuffice, and Iniquity, all refpect of Persons; and in a Word all the Causes and Effects of Injustice. (Job. viii. 3.) Doth God pervert Judgment, or doth the Almighty pervert Justice? (Dan. ix. 14. Rom. iii. 4.). 5thly. Possible of Justice and extelling his Justice

5thly. Poffitively, by affirming and extolling his Justice by calling him a Revenger, Holy, Right. (Jer, xii. 1.) Pf. xi. 7. For the Righteous Lord loveth Righteous Info. tenance doth behold the Upright. To these we may add the Words of our Text, then which nothing can be more Full and Express, He is a Rock, his Work is Perfect, for all his Ways are Judgment : A God of Truth, and without Iniquity, Just and Right is he: And also that of the Pfalmist, Pfal. cxix. 137. Righteous art thou O Lord, and upright are thy Judgments.

And does not Reafon comfirm the fame Truth? For ift. If God be not Juft, whence is there any Juftice? Either there would be no Juftice at all, or if there was any any it would not proceed from God! Or if it did, it must proceed from one who had none; each of which Particulars is abfurd. Befides 2dly. Inafmuch as the Lord is Governor of the whole Universe, he would degenerate into a Tyrant, if he was And not Juft.

3 dly. Seeing Jehovah is judge of all the Earth, how could he judge a right without being just himself? Neither can it be otherwife but that God should be just, feeing he is absolutely Perfect : All confess Justice to be an Excellency, involving no imperfection in it, and therefore it cannot be wanting to that Being, who is abfolutely and infinitely Perfect !

In difcourfing upon this divine Attribute of God's Justice, I purpose to confider its Nature, Kinds, Properties, Difplays, and in the 5th Place to Answer some Objections, and then proceed to the Improvement. And

1ft. Justice in its general Nature may be faid to be an Agreement with Right and Rule: It is oppos'd to Crookednefs and Obliquity, by which any Thing declines from its proper Rule. Crookedness in Morals is the fame with Sin; which the Apoftle John calls a Tranfgreffion of the Law. 1 John iii. 4. Or as the original Word, Anomia, may be rendered a Being without the Law, or a wandering from the Law. Justice does therefore coincide with Rectitude or Uprightness, Ecle. vii. 29. Lo this only I have found that God bath made Man Upright: ---- So that Juffice includes two Things in it especially, viz. Right, and an Agreement with that Right, 1st. I fay it includes Right or that which belongs to every one, Luk. xx. 25. Render therefore unto Cæfar the Things that are Cæfar's, and unto God the Things that are God's. Rom. i. 32. Knowing the Judgment of God that they that do fuch Things are worthy of Death .-----It Mm is is from this Right that the very Name of Ju/tice is deriv'd. And 2dly. It includes an Agreement with this Right; and in this the Form of Juffice confifts: And the Contrary to this viz. A Difagreement from Right, conflitutes the Form of Injuffice. From this general Defcription it is evident that Juffice admits of no Degrees, for a Thing either agrees with the Rule of Right or not, if the Former, it is Juft, if the Latter, it is Unjuft.

Undoubtedly the Jaflice of God, as well as of Creatures confifts in an Agreement with Right, but with this difference, that the Creatures have their Rule of Right prefcrib'd by another; whereas the divine Nature is a Rule of Right to the Almighty. But let me pais to the

2d. Propos'd, which was to fpeak of the Kinds of Justice :

And here it may be obferv'd that Juftice may be confidered under a threefold View, viz. As relating to God's Will, Word, and Deeds. And 1ft. Juftice, as it relates to the Will of God, is thus defcrib'd by Wendeline, viz. "That it is "that whereby God is juft in himfelf and without himfelf gives "to every one their own by a conflant Will." "Juffice "in Man, fayeth Mr. Leigh, is a fettled Will, to do Right "in every Thing to every Perfon." Thus God hath a fettled Will to do Right, fhall not the Judge of all the Earth do Right? This conftant Will of God, to render to every one his own, Coincides with the divine Effence, and may be call'd bis effential Juffice, and is no other but the effential Rectitude of his Nature. And that Juffice of God, which respects his Words and Deeds, may be call'd his declarative or relative Juffice; because it is a Manifestation of the Former, and respects the Transactions of God with Creatures.

But 2dly. The Justice of God, as it relates to his Words, is call'd, Truth, Faithfulness and Constancy; because it aagrees grees with the Rectitude of his Nature to fpeak fo and no otherwife. Faithfulnefs may be well call'd Juffice; becaufe it is a doing Juffice to his Word.

3dly. The fultice of God, as it refpects his Deeds, is twofold, viz. Of Dominion and furifdiction. And 1ft. God's fuffice of Dominion, or, as fome Divines term it, his difpojing juffice, is that whereby febovab, as the fole Monarch and fupream Lord of all, difpofes and governs every Thing in a juft Order; and in Particular he difpofes his own Actions, according to the Rule of Equity, requiring and prohibiting nothing but what is fit for intelligent Creatures, in right Reafon to do and forbear. In a Word this Juffice of Dominion confifts in governing reafonable Creatures, agreable to the original Rectitude of their Natures.

2dly. God's Juffice of Jurifdiction, confifts in prefcribing to reafonable Creatures their proper due, and in governing them accordingly: And this the Almighty doth by three Things, 1ft. By prefcribing Laws, which are Rules tending to direct Mankind in their Duty to God and Man, agreeable to his own Sanctity, attended with Rewards and Punifhments. Jam. iv. 12. There is one Law-giver who is able to fave and to deftroy.

2dly. By eftablishing his Laws by proper Sanctions of Rewards and Punishments promis'd and threatn'd. (Deut. xxx. 15.) Now the Sanction confists in Promises and Threatnings. And

3dly. By fulfilling the Sanction, and that both as to the Reward and Punifhment, the former is call'd Remunerative, and the latter Vindictive. And 1ft. "The Remunerative "Juftice of God, is a most ready Will to perform Gods Pro-"mifes." as Wendline observes. When God rewards the Obedience of his Creatures with a free Reward, proceeding from his own pure and abounding Goodness, not for any M m 2. Worth or Condignity in his Peoples Works, as the Papifis vainly Dream; but for the Sake of his gracious Promife, by which he makes himfelf a Debtor to them, Rom. ii. 6. 7, 8. Who will render to every Man according to his Deeds; to them who by patient Continuance in Well-doing, feek for Glory, and Honour and Immortality, eternal Life: But to them that are Contentious and do not obey the Truth, Indignation and Wrath. Luke xvii. 10. When we have done all that is commanded, we must fay, that we are unprofitable Servants, we have done that which was (but) our Duty to do. Rom. xi. 35, 36. Or who hath first given to him, and it shall be recompensed to him again? For of him, and thro' him, and to him are all Things. Altho there be no intrinsick Worth in Man's Obedience, to merit the Glory or Reward promifed, yet God having promifed it to the Creature, and having a Right and Power to confer it, it is just and right in him to perform his own Word. And certainly he would wrong his Truth if he did not. When Happines in Scripture is reprefented as a reward, it is only to encourage or excite to Obedience, by flewing the infeparable Connection between Grace wrought in us, and Glory conferr'd upon us : It cannot intend any merit in our Works; for if we ourfelves be lefs then the leaft of God's Mercies, then the best Actions put forth by us must be fo : For as Doctor Ridgly observes, " The Action cannot have more Honour ascribid to " it then the Agent." Being God's Creatures we have deriv'd all from him, and confequently can offer him no more than his own. And Being corrupt Criminals, our Services are Defective, and fo cannot merit Good at the Hand of God; nay on the Contrary, for our Tranfgreffions we merit his Wrath. And therefore in respect of us, the Reward of Happincfs is wholly Gracious; but indeed in Refpect of Chrift, who has fully answered the Demands of Law for his People

ple, by his Obedience and Suffering, and thereby according to the Covenant Transaction between his Father and him, compleatly purchas'd for them everlasting Life, it may be call'd an Act of divine Justice. Hence it is faid Rom. ii. 26. That he might be just, and the justifier of him that believes in Jesus. But

20. That be might be just, and the Justice Justice of lieves in Jefus. But 2dly, The Vindictive Justice of God, is the Almighty's Will, to execute the Threatnings of his Law upon Tranfgressors, by punishing or inflicting on them Evils of suffering equal to their Crimes: This is call'd Wrath, Hatred, Revenge and Judgment. It is likewise term'd God's visiting Iniquity, (Jer. 5. 9.) His setting his Face against a Person, (Lev. xvii. 10.) Its call'd the Fire of God's Jealoussie, and those that are exposed to it, are faid to fall into the Hands of the living God. Some Divines use the Terms of rewarding and Revenging Justice, instead of Remunerative and Vindictive.

But here I would have it obferv'd, that there is a lefs proper Senfe in which the Word Punifbment is ufed in Scripture. Thus when God corrects his People with his Rod, this is often call'd Punifbment. (Pfal. 1xxxix. 30, 33). And hence they are faid to bear the Indignation of the Lord, becaufe they have finned against him. Mic. vii. 9. Thefe Afflictions are call'd Punifbments, becaufe occasion'd by Sin, and afflictive to Senfe: But they are not inflicted by God as a Judge, with any Demand of Satisfaction, for that was made by CHRIST, for those that believe in him; and furely it is contrary to the Nature of divine Justice, to require a double Satisfaction for the fame Crimes! No! the Afflictions of God's People spring from his Fatherly Love to them, and are fent either to prevent or correct finful Diforders. By these the Almighty humbles his People, by shewing them the Defert of their Impieties; and by these he brings them them nearer to himfelf, and deadens them more to a vain World, and all it's varnish'd but empty Entertainments ! Afflictions are the Medicines which the great Physician Uses to cure his People's manifold Diforders.

But that what has been faid, concerning the Nature of divine Juffice, may be farther explain'd and illustrated, let these Things following be confidered. 1st. That Justice among Men is Two-fold, viz. Either Commutative or Diffributive. Commutative, refpects Trade and Bargains among equals, and confifts in obferving the Rules of Equity and Right therein. Diffributive, is that which is exercis'd by a Superior towards his Inferiors, and confifts in the Conformity of their Administrations to rule and law, and therefore comprizes these four Things in it, viz. 1st. A Law to which the Acts of Government should be conform'd. A Law, fays Maresius, " Est faciendorum & sugiendorum nor-" ma, sub Ratione præmii et Pænæ. i. e. It is the Rule of " Things to be done and avoided, on Confideration of a " Reward or Punifhment." All Juffice and efpecially Diffributive, has refpect to a Law; this is the Foundation on which it is Built, and Rule according to which it must be fquar'd and accommodated.

Now the Law that is the Ground and Foundation of Juftice among Men, muft have the following Characters, viz. 1ft. It muft be bottom'd upon natural Equity, upon the Nature, Relation and Reafon of Things: Otherwife it will be a crooked Rule, and fo unworthy of Obfervation. No human Authority can alter the intrinfick Goodnets and Badnefs of Things; and therefore bad Laws (in a moral Senfe) are but a recommending and enforcing Iniquity by human Authority. And 2dly. The Law muft be enasted by competent Power and Authority; becaufe Legiflation, as well as the Execution thereof, are Acts of Government, which which those that exercise should have a Right fo to do, either originally or by Delegation : The Contrary to which tends to open a Scene of Confusion and Blood. And hence it is well observed by some, that however just any Act of Government be in itself, yet it is unjust for those to meddle with it that have no Right thereto, e. g. For a Judge to condemn one Guilty of a Capital Crime to Death is Just; but for a private Person divested of Authority to do it, is Murder ! And adly The Law must be promulgated that it may

And 3dly. The Law must be promulgated that it may be known; for where there is no Law there is no Tranfgreffion, Rom. iv. 15. But the greffion, Rom. iv. 15. But the 2d. Particular that Civil Juftice, or Juftice among Men includes, is Conformity to the Law in all Administrations. When a Judge doth this, in all his Enquiries and Exami-nations respecting Cases brought before him, he does his Duty, and otherways he perverts the Ways of Judgment. It is this Kind of Juftice among Men, that is an Emblem or Shadow of the Juftice of God, and therefore I have fo long difcours'd upon it ! But to fhew the Similitude, let me add a few Words more, and enquire what is God's Declarative or Relative Justice, but his Conformity to the Law, he has given his Creatures in his Transactions with them. Here obferve. 1ft. That the Law which God gave to Man to direct him in his Service is grounded on natural Equity, or the nature and reafon of Things; which appears by the Harmony of its Precepts among themfelves, and their direct Tendency to promote the Glory of God, and make the Creature happy in his Service. The Contraries to which tend to difhonour God, debase our intelligent Nature, and destroy our Hap-pines. The moral Law is but a Transcript of the divine Nature as far as it is imitable. And hence is the Apostles just commendatory Encomium concerning it. Rom. vii. 12. Wherefore the Law is Holy, and the Commandment Holy, and Fuft juft and Good. And 2dly. That God had Authority to enact Laws, appears evidently from his creating all. As his infinite and eternal Excellency makes him worthy of abfolute Sovereignty and Deminion, fo his producing all by his Almightinefs, gives him an irrefragable Right thereto. Human Power is deriv'd, delegated and limitted, but his is Original and Abfolute. And 3dly. Almighty God having anex'd the Sanction of Rewards and Punifhments to the Law he has given his Creatures : His Truth flands engag'd to execute the fame upon fuitable Objects; which is likewife neceffary to anfwer the Defign of Government. This Execution therefore of the Sanction of the Law, or conformity thereto, in the Dealings of God with his Creatures, is his declarative Juftice, and with this even all his Acts of Sovereignty do really harmonize; which appears by confidering, 3dly. The Properties of divine Juffice, which are thefe following, viz.

1ft. Divine Justice is impartial, with him is no Respect of Perfons in Judgment. 2 Cor. v. 10. For we must all appear before the Judgment Seat of CHRIST, that every one may receive the Things done in his Body, according to that he hath done whether it be Good or Bad. Justice will nor spare for the fake of the Multitude, Greatness, or Nearness of the Guilty. Did not Sodom and Gomorha perish by Fire, & was not the whole Antidiluvian World drowned with Water? And what vast Multitudes of People may we suppose did the aforesaid Cities, together with Zeboim and Adma contain? And how much more the whole World before the Flood; and yet all were destroy'd by a fuddain and terrible Stroak of divine Justice. And when the Angels, those Spirits of excelling Dignity, finned, did not divine Justice cast them into an Abys of Woc? And does it not still confine them in Chains of Darkness, to the Judgment of the great Day? When Adam our federal Head, had transgressed the Covenant, was he not banished from that Paradise of Pleasure he before possibles'd, and kept out of it by a flaming Sword. Divine Justice scatters Kings as Snow in Salmon; and before its adverse Edge their pompous Armies flee apace! (Pf. lxviii. 12, 14.) And were not Moses and David tho' fo near and dear to God punished with awful Severity? Hence is that tolemn and Soul affecting Saying of the Prophet, Amos iii. 1, 2. Hear this Word that the Lord bath spoken against you, O Children of Israel !---You only have I known of all the Families of the Earth, therefore I will punish you, for all your Iniquities. But divine Justice is 2dly. Universal, fo that not one Sin can escape severe Punishment, either in the Sinner or Surety. Gal. iii. 10. Cursed is every one that continueth not in all Things, that are written in the Book of the Law to do them.

3dly. Divine Juffice is inexorable, no Importunities can alter its Courfe. When once a Sinners Seafon of Mercy expires, Jehovah refufes to be intreated. Ezek. xiv. 18, 20. Tho' Noah, Daniel, and Job were in it, As I live faith the Lord God, they fhall deliver neither Son or Daughter, they fhall but deliver their own Souls by their Righteoufnels. This is twice repeated in that Chapter to fhew the Infallible Certainty, and unfpeakable Importance of the Truth delivered. The Almighty cannot be corrupted or brib'd. But that which farther confirms this awful Truth, is the

4th. Propos'd. viz. The Difplays of divine Juffice; and here to be as brief as I can, I shall only mention two Inflances thereof. The First of which, was the Sufferings our LORD endur'd, when he stood in a Sinners Room and Place: How unspeakable were the Tortures he endur'd in his faered Body, every Part of which was put to exquisite Pain! Nn Deep Deep Furrows were made in his facred Back by cruel Scourges, and his beauteous Face expos'd to contemptuous Blows, yea to Shame and Spitting, by the infulting Herd, his venerable Temples were pierc'd by Thorns, his Side and Heart by a Spear, the whole Weight of his Body, hung upon a few Sinewy and fentible Parts in his Crucifixion, and his Name was treated with the greatest Ignominy and Scorn. But as Mr. Flavel justly observes, "The Soul of our Lord's "Sufferings was his Sufferings in his Soul." When he who knew no Sin, was made Sin for us. His Soul was made an Offering for Sin, his Soul became forrowful even unto Death. How unconceiveable must be the Anguish, which our LORD endur'd in his Soul, when at one Instant of Time, that whole Weight of Diftress and Pain, which was due to divine Juffice, for all the Sins of the elect World was laid upon it? And in the mean Time deferted by the Father in respect of his comfortable Presence. This press'd a Bloody Shower from all the Pores of our LORD's Body in the Garden of Gethfemane. This extorted that Heart-rending Out-cry on the Crois, Eloi, Eloi, lama Sabachthani? My God, My God, why haft thou for faken me? No wonder the Earths Foundations trembled, and the Dead awoke out of their long and filent Slumbers, and the Sun himfelf, that glorious Orb of Light and Beauty, put on a funeral Robe of Darknets and Obscurity, to testify their Surprize and Sorrow on to awful an Occafion, and to compleat the Train of Mourn-But! ers.

2dly. The vindictive Juffice of God, has a dreadful Difplay in the Torments of the Damned, who are punifh'd with everlafting Deftruction, from the Prefence of the Lord, and from the Glory of his Power. As the Damned are depriv'd of all the Honours and Comforts of the Heavenly Paradife. As they are burnt in a Lake of Fire, which is kindled by the Breath Breath of God, as by a River of Brimftone! So their intolorable Tortures by God's inflam'd Jealoufy, by their own guilty Confciences, by wicked Men and Devils, will know no Intermiffion and no End. The finoke of their Torments afcendeth up for ever and ever. But I haften to the

5th. Propos'd, which was to answer some Objections offered against the Justice of God. And

Ift. It is objected by the Socinians, that according to our Doctrine God, punifh'd the Innocent in the Room of the Guilty, namely our Saviour in the Place of Sinners.

Anf. Tho' our Saviour was perfonally innocent, yet he was with his own Confent, and by his Fathers Imputation, guilty. And hence he is faid to be made Sin for us, he willingly became the Sinners Surety, and fo affumed their Guilt, in order to fatisfy for it, and fave them from Ruin, and to a willing Perfon who had a Right to difpose of his own Life, effectially feeing fo valuable an End was answered by it, as the Salvation of Sinners, no Injury was done, by his Father in puting him to Death.

2dly. It is Objected that God fometimes punishes the Sins of the Parents in their Children. Ex. xx. 5.

Anf. God never punifhes the Sins of the Parents in innocent Children. As to the Sin of Adam he being the federal Head, or covenant Reprefentative of his whole Offspring, they finned in him. Hof. vi. 7. But they like Adam (as the Words fhould be rendred) have tranfgreffed the Covenant. Rom. v. 12. Wherefore as by one Man Sin entred into the World, and Death by Sin, and fo Death paffed upon all Men, for that all have finned (i. e. in Adam) And as to the Sins of private Parents, they are not punifh'd in Children, unlefs they be propenfe to them, or imitate them.

3 dly. It is objected that God is a Refpecter of Perfons in the Affair of Predefination, by differing unequal Things Nn z to to those that were in an equal State, choosing one, and rejecting another, without any Reason but his own Pleasure.

Anf. To respect Persons, is when in Matters of Judgment, equal Things according to Law and Right are due to feveral Perfons, and yet we dispense unequal: But this is not the Case with the Almighty. Who hath given to him, fayeth the Apoftle, and it shall be repay'd, for of him are all Things. Rom. xi. 36. As to God's Grace, he owes it to no Creature as fuch. He is Lord of his own Treasures, and may do with his own what he pleases. Rom. ix. 18, 21. And therefore such as Favour the Objection, do but reply against God, as the Aposile there observes. Predestination is but an immanent Act of God, which produces nothing without himself, and confequently difpenfes neither Good nor Evil, tho' it be the Pattern according to which his Providence difpenses all Things in Time. But if we confider God's Providence, which dispenses Salvation and Damnation, that does not confer unequal Things upon those that are equal. But it confers unequal Things upon those that are unequal, viz. Believers and Unbelievers. For CHRIST's Sake Salvation to the Former, and for Sins Sake, Damnation to the Latter. If a Prince of a Number of Rebels, who all according to Law deferve Death, purposes and passes an Act of Pardon upon fome to show his Clemency, and lets the Law take place upon others to shew his Justice, where is the Wrong ? And that is the Cafe, for God in his Purpofes look'd upon Men as fallen, and meriting his Displeasure, he might have left the whole Race to perish for their Sins with the Devils, who after their Fall had never an offer of Mercy. And because Jehovah has chosen some, when he might have condemned all, shall our Eye be Evil becaufe God is Good?

4thly. It is objected that God fuffers the Wicked to profper, and the Pious to be afflicted and opprefled.

Anf.

Anf. This World is a Time of Probation, and not of Recompence. The Scales will turn at the Conclusion of this short Scene, this transient Drama! Besides the Miseries of God's People are necessary Physick to cure their Maladics, to which End they are fanctified by the Spirit of God. Rom. viii. 29. They are also at Times sweeten'd with the Love of CHRIST, and shall foon expire, and then an everlasting Sabbatism shall commence. Whereas on the contrary, the abus'd Prosperity of the Wicked, tends but to secure and encrease their Destruction. But it is Time to proceed to the Improvement. And

If. This Subject fpeaks Terror, to all Ungodly and Chriftlefs Sinners of every Kind. How deplorable is their Cafe, Who must drink of the Wine of the Wrath of the Almigh-ty, which is pour'd out without mixture into the Cup of his Indignation? O! Let the Secure and Impenitent Tranfgreffor, think on the following Particulars, 1ft. That God upon the Account of his Juffice and Judgments, is call'd the Great and dreadful God, Dan. ix. 4. likewife mighty and terrible. Deut. vii. 22. With God, fayeth Job, is terrible Majefly, Job.xxxvii. 22. 2dly. That the Wages of every Sin is Death, and that you have been guilty of a prodigious Multitude, attended with awful Agravations: Sins against Light & Love, against Law and Gospel, Mercy, and Judgments, your Iniquities for Number rival the Stars, & for Agravation are red as Crimfon. And 3dly. That the Juffice of God will not, cannot pais by one of them, except ye repent; but will furely Proportion Pains equal to all their Number and Heinoufnefs. For as has been obferv'd, it is impartial, univerfal, inexorable. And now feeing every Imagination of the Thoughts of your Hearts have been fince your Birth till now, only evil continually, and all your Words and Actions evil. For a corrupt Tree cannot bring forth good Fruit, neither can be that is in the Flefh pleafe God. How dreadful must that Wrath be which is proportion'd to them all? Surely

The Justice of God apply'd.

Surely it is 1ft. Incomprehensible Wrath; the most fearful Imagination cannot fully represent it by its most gloomy I-deas, Pfa. xc. 11. Who knoweth the Power of thine Anger, even according to thy Fear, fo is thy Wrath. 2dly. It's un-avoidable Wrath. If we take the morning Wings and flee to the utmost Ends of the Earth, lo there God's allfeeing Eye will differen us, and his righteous Arm arrest us. If we af-ford the Top of Corpol on defeend into the Derte of the O fend the Top of Carmel, or descend into the Deeps of the Ocean, or feek to conceal ourfelves with the Curtains of obscurity, darknefs and retirement ! Even then our Perfons and Purpofes will be open to the all penetrating Eye of God ! For the Darknefs is as the Light to him, and the Night fkines as the Darknefs is as the Light to him, and the Night fkines as the Day! Sinners ye cannot efcape by Pelicy, for God is Infinite in Wifdom; nor by Power, for he is Infinite in Strength, as Job observes, ix. 4. He is Wife in Heart and Mighty in Strength, who hath hardened himself against God and prosper-ed? Nor can ye escape by Flight, for Jehovak is Omnipresent. 3dly. It is eternal Wrath, (Mat. xxv. ult.) It will con-tinue as long as God endures, never, never, never fhall it know a Period! O this gives it a dreadful and heart rend-ing Accent! And 4thly. It is intollerable Wrath. If the Redeemer, who was perfonally Innocent and fupported by the Godhead, cry'd fo doloroufly under this Wrath : How can your Hands be firong or your Hearts endure, when a Jealous God deals with you, and pours out the Vials of his unmix'd Wrath upon you, who are full of real and crimfon Guilt, and fhall have none to fuccour you! And do you think that that just God, who spared not his own beloved Son, when he but flood in Sinners Place, but finote him dead by the Sword of his Juffice, and made all the Waves of his Almighty Vengeance beat upon him, and roll over him, will fpare you who are cover'd all over with real and Scarlet Guilt? No! Friends, he not deceived, God is not meck'd mock'd, that which a Man fows that shall be also reap; be that fores to the Flesh, Jkall of the Flesh reap Corruption ! The Intollerableness of the divine Wrath, Anger and Hatred, as well as its terriblenefs, is reprefented in Scripture by a variety of bold and dreadful Images of thought! Ishall mention a few of them, and in the Name of the great God, charge the ungodly to think upon them. Deut. xxxii. 22, 23. For a Fire is kindled in my Anger, and skall burn to the lowest Hell, and shall confume the Earth with her increase, and let on Fire the Foundations of the Mountains. I will heap Mischiefs upon them, I will spend my Arrows upon them. Job. ix. 5, 6, 7. Which removeth the Mountains and they know it not, which overturneth them in his Anger. Which faketh the Earth out of her Place, and the Pillars thereof Tremble. Which commandeth the Sun and it rifeth not, and fealeth up the Stars. Pfa. xi. 6. Upon the Wicked he Skall rain Snares, Fire and Brimftone, and a horrible Tempest, this shall be the Portion of their Cup. Elfewhere Jebovah threatens to wound the hairy Scalp of the Wicked, and to tear them in Pieces when there shall be none to deliver them. That he will tear and go away (Hof. v. 14.) That he will be to them as a Lyon and as a Leopard, and meet them as a Bear bereav'd of ber Whelps, devour them like a Lyon, and rent the Caul of their Heart, Hof. xiii 8. And with what Magnificence and Grandeur of Diction, does the Prophet Nahum speak upon this solemn Subject? Nahum 1. 2,----7. God is Jealous, and the Lord Revengeth; the Lord revengeth, and is Furious. The Lord will take Vengeance on his Adversaries; and he referveth Wrath for his Enemies .--- And will not at all acquit the Wicked, the Lord hath his Way in the Whirkwind, and in the Storm, and the Clouds are the Dust of his Feet. He rebuketh the Sea and maketh it Dry, and dryeth up all the Rivers. Bathan languisheth, and Carmel and the Flower of Lebanon banon languisheth. The Mountains quake at him, and the Hills melt, and the Earth is burnt at his Prefence; yea the World and all that dwell therein. Who can stand before his Indignation, and who can abide in the Fierceness of his Anger? His Fury is pour'd out like Fire, and the Rocks are thrown down by him !

Now as the Confideration of God's Juffice and Wrath, Minifters Terror to all the ungodly in General, fo effectively and particularly to thefe following. viz. 1ft. Epicures, who indulge a fenfual Security, and put the Evil Day far from indulge a fenfual Security, and put the Evil Day far from them. Surely fuch treafure up to themfelves Wrath, againft the Day of Wrath, and the Revelation of the Righteous Judgment of God! Surely the Day of the Lord will be to them, as the Prophet expressed in Contracts with Wrath and fierce Anger ! (Ifa. xiii. 9.) And 2dly. All unjust Persons who are guilty of Fraud in Contracts and Dealings with Men, or respecting of Persons in Judgment (Jer. xxii. 13). Woe to him that buildeth his House by Unrighteous/iness, and his. Chambers by Wrong.----Pfal lxxxii. 2, 5. 3dly. All Hypo-crites, fuch as are unjust to God and their own Souls, they cover their inward Injustice with an outward they of Piety. crites, fuch as are unjust to God and their own Souls, they cover their inward Injustice with an outward shew of Piety, fuch are an Abomination to God, and may expect to be cut assumed by the Sword of divine Justice. (Mat. 24. ult.) 4thly. All Murmerers, who call in Question the Justice of God in his Judgments, and kick with the Heel against the most High, under Frowns of Providence. For this the whole Congregation of Israel fell in the Wilderness, and never faw Cannaan, two excepted. (Num. xiv. 27,---30.) Now the Use that I would advise poor graceless Sinners of every Age and Order, to make of the Justice of God, is to be excited by it to fly to Chrift for Security and Defence. to be excited by it to fly to Chrift for Security and Defence. He is a biding Place from the Wind, and a Covert from the Storm, (1/a, 23.) He was made Sin for us, that we might be made made the Righteoufnefs of God in him. In him God the Father has declared his Righteoufnefs, (Rom. iii. 25.) And him he is willing to make Righteoufnefs to fuch as accept of him. (1. Cor. i. 30.) Well feeing divine Juftice muft be fatisfy'd for the Wrong done by our Offences, either by us or a furety in our Place, or elfe we muft perifh eternally: Then feeing we ourfelves cannot fatisfy, becaufe we are poor, imperfect and finite Creatures, let us haften to Chrift and receive him by Faith, as the Gofpel offers him, that fo we may be juftified by Faith, and fecurely reft on and rejoice in that JESUS, who has fulfiled the Righteoufnefs of the Law for his People. (Rom. viii. 3.) But 2dly. This Subject fpeaks Comfort to all Believers in every of their Troubles: For from this they may fee that they are afflicted lefs then their Iniquities deferve, that a Fathers Love is the Spring of them, who chaftens them, leaft they fhould be condemned with the World: And particularly we may draw Comfort from this Subject, under Calumnies and Wrongs, when we think that we have a Witnefs in Heaven, a juft Judge there, who will uphold us in a good Caufe, and reward us according to our Righteoufnefs, and make it fooner or later to fhine forth as the Light, and cur Judgment as the Noon Day, Pfal. xxxvii. 6. yea in Troubles of Confcience God's Juffice yields Support, when we confider that it was once fatisfy'd by our Lord, and that it is contrary to its Nature to require a double Satisfaction. Hence is the Apoftles Query, Rom. viii. 34, Who is he that condemneth, it is CHRIST that dyed. But there are thefe following Duties, which from the

But there are thefe following Duties, which from the Confideration of divine Juffice, we fhould be exhorted to perform, viz.

Ift. That we beware of depending upon our own Righteoufnefs, upon the one Hand with the Pharifee, (Luk. xviii, 11.) And of the Neglect of Duty on the other with the Slugard, whofe Hands refufe to labour; for without Holinefs no Man fkall fee the Lord. Heb. xii. 14. 2dly. Let us walk with humble Reverence and Child-like fear before the Righteous God, as with a confuming Fire, avoiding every Appearance of Evil, and continually in all our religious Service, eyeing JESUS the Mediator and Interceffor, who is only able to cover their Defects, and render them acceptable to his Father by his abundant Righteoufnefs. In whom alone we are compleat and fafe from every impending Storm : For when in him, the flaming Sword of divine Juffice, which before kept us out of Paradife, guards and affifts our Entrance into it! And 3dly. Let us glorify God on the Account of his Juffice of every Kind, whether Effential or Declarative, Governing, Judicatory, Legiflative, Remunerative, or Vindictive; for transcendent Beauty shines therein. Let us say with the Pfalmist, Pf. lxxxix. 24. Justice and Judgment are the Habitation of thy Throne. And with Paul, Rom. xi. 33. O the Depth of the Riches of the Wisdom and Knowledge of God, his Judgments are unscarchable, and his Ways pass finding out ! Such is the Strictness of divine Justice in all his Proceedings, that it is compar'd to Mountains and to the Abys, Pf. xxxvi. 6. Thy Righteoussies is as the great Mountains thy Judgments are a great Deep. And let us join with the Inhabitants of Heaven in celebrating the Justice of God, Rev. xix 1. 2. And after these Things I heard a great Voice of much People, in Heaven, faying Haleluja, Salvation, and Glory, and Honour, and Power unto the Lord our God, for true and Righteous are bis Judgments.

In fine, Let us labour to imitate the Juffice and Righteoufnefs of God, by feeking the Righteoufnefs of CHRIST to our Juffification, in the manner before expressed. Also by feeking The Justice of God apply'd. 291 feeking the Inherent Righteoufness which it pleafed God at first to implant in our Natures by Creation (Eclef. vii. 29.) which we have loft by Sin. I fay let us fervently and frequently cry to God by humble Supplications, in the Name of CHRIST, that he would be pleafed to implant or infufe into our Souls, by Regeneration, the Habits or Principles of that Righteoufness : And having the same implanted, let us exercife them in our whole Practice, 1st. Towards God, by rendering to him his Due, viz. our felves, and all that Honour, Love, Truft and Service which he requires in his Word. And 2dly. Towards our Neighbour, In all Matters of Government, Judgment and Commerce, ruling without Opprefilion, judging without refpect of Perions, and dealing without Fraud, Falthood or Imposition. And 3dly. To-wards ourfelves, in a right Improvement of the Seafons of Mercy, thereby fecuring our Salvation. And alfo in not lufferring ourfelves to be wronged in our temporal Intereft. A great Part of the Image of God and Beauty of Religion, confifts in Juffice; and as the Bleffing of God refts upon fuch here, fo they shall receive from the just Judge of Heaven and Earth, a Crown of Righteousness hereafter, which shall never fade away. That this may be the Happy Lot of us all, may God grant for CHRIST Sake. Amen.

SERMON

SERMON XV.

HOSEA. iii. 5. And fkall fear the Lord, and his Goodness, in the latter Days.

FTER the Prophet had in the Preceeding Verfes, represented the bad Characters of the People of I/rael, under the Similitude of an adulterous Wife, as well as the low Condition, they fhould be reduc'd to on this Account, by their Captivity and other Inftances of God's controverly with them : He in the Words of our Text, prophefies of a bleffed Reformation; that should be wrought upon them in the latter Days.

By the latter Days we are to understand the Days of the Meffiab, or the Time of the Gospel Dispensation, and probably the latter Part of this Time : Then we are told, that the Jews fhould reverence God, becaufe of his Goodnefs. We must admire and adore the Goodness of God, as Moles did when this Name was proclaimed. (Ex. xxxiv. 6.) " And " fear the Guilt of unkind Returns." The Confideration of God's Goodnefs, fhould make us afraid of offending him, which fo grofly violates the Laws of Gratitude. And hence the Pfalmift observes, that there is Forgiveness with God, that be may be fear'd. Pf. cxxx. 4. This Prophety had its Accomplifhment in the early Times of the Golpel, when thro' the Bleffing of God, upon the Ministry of the Apostles,  $O_{0}_{2}$ great great Numbers both of Jews and Gentiles were brought to believe in JESUS. And hereby to fear God, becaufe of his Goodnefs, more efpecially apparent in the Redemption of Mankind, by the Sufferings and Obedience of the Son of God the fpiritual David! But fome do probably (at leaft) expect a farther Accomplifhment of this Prophefy, in Time coming, agreeable to the Words of the Apoftle, When the Fullnefs of the Gentiles is brought in, then all Ifrael shall be faved.

In difcourfing upon this Text, I shall

I. Speak upon the Goodness of God, And

II. Upon the Fear of God. And then proceed to the Improvement.

That God is truly and fupreamly Good, the facred Scriptures Teftify various Ways, viz. 1ft. Effectively, when it afferts that all the Works of God are good. Gen. i. 31. And God faw every Thing that he had made and behold it was very good.

2dly. Figuratively, when it commemorates and commends the Riches of his Goodnefs. (Rom. ii. 4.)

3 dly. Negatively, When it denies that there is any Evil in him. Pf. xcii. 15. He is my Rock and there is no Unrighteousness in him. (Deut. xxxii. 4.)

teoufness in him. (Deut. xxxii. 4.) 4thly. Affirmatively, by expression and upright is the Lord, therefore will be teach Sinners in the Way.

And Reafon likewife confirms the fame Truth, by afferting 1ft. That God is a Being, and therefore Good: For Being and Good are concertible Terms among Philofophers : Yea that he is the first and chief Being, and therefore the first and chief Good. And 2dly. By afferting thatGod is perfect; and therefore defirable and communicative, in which the Sum of Goodnefs confists. Besides asGod is theAuthor of all thatGood that is in Creatures

Creatures, (for none of them has his Goodnefs of himfelf.) So he contains all the Kinds of Good in him, viz. Pleafant, profitable, honeft. In respect of pleasant Good, the Pfalmift bids us tafte and fee that he is good, Pf. xxxiv. And he tells us that in his Prefence is fullnels of Joy, and at his Right Hand Pleafures for ever more, PJ. xvi. 11. In refpect of pro-fitable Good, he diffuses his Kindness among his Creatures, and in possessing him we possess all besides him, and more than all! In respect of bonest Good, God is by his Sanctity the original Rule and Pattern, of all that Holinefs that is in Creatures. Hence fayeth Augustine " God only is im-" mutably Good, he only is the Good, of all Good, he " only is the Caufe of all Goodnefs, to all that are Good. " There would be no communicable good Things (faid he) " if there was not an incommunicable Good." And therefore God is Good in three Respects, viz. 1ft. By his Estence, that is originally, the Foundation of Goodners, whereas Creatures are only good by Participation, as Streams running from the Fountain. 2dly. God is good by Efficiency, inatinuch as he only can communicate Good independently, whereas Creatures only fo far as they are affifted by his Power, and excited by his Influence. 3dly. God is good by Exiftence, inafinuch as he only is a Good neceffarily exifting, whereas all Creatures are but contingently good, and exift by the meer Will and Pleafure of God. This Truth the Gentile Philofophers acknowledged. "There is no good Mind without "God, fayeth Seneca." "Vertue is not in us by Nature, " but by divine Providence, fayeth Plato." The Jews were likewife of the fame Sentiment. Hence Philo, one is good meaning God, who was wont to be call'd by them " one " without Addition."

In difcourfing upon this Attribute of divine Goodnefs, I thall enquire into its Nature, Kinds and Properties, and confider fider the Force of fome Objections against it, and then proceed to the Improvement, after fome brief Hints premis'd, respecting the other general Head of Discourse, viz. The Fear of God, And 1st. Good according to Ariflotles Definition, is that which all defire. But it is more accurately defin'd by others, thus, viz. " That it is that which for the Perfection of its Na-" ture deferves to be defired. and is communicative of itfelf." So that three Things are included in it viz. 1st. An effential Excellency or Perfection, for which it merits Defire and purfuit. 2dly. A Faculty of communicating this Perfectition to others, on this Account its call'd profitable. And 3dly. The Relation of both the Former to the Appetite or Defire, on which Account it is call'd defireable. And hence fome learned Men observe that Good is threefold, viz. Metaphysical, Physical, Ethical. Or in more plain Terms, it may be call'd a Good of Being, Ufe and Manners. And Ift. Metaphyfical Good, or the Good of Being, is that Perfection; which is communicated to every Being by its Caufe, or it is that Excellency which every Being obtains, as it is a Being : For which it may be defir'd. This has no Evil oppos'd to it, and only ferves to fhew the Pre-eminence of Exiftence, to Non-Existence, or Being to no Being. 2dly. Physical Good, or the Good of Ufe, is that Perfection or Excellency, by which any being defign'd for another's Ufe, is fitted for it, whether the Ufe be General or Particular ! Every Creature in its original Conftitution was fitted for this twofold Use, it not only ferv'd to compleat and adorn the whole System of Things, but also for Food, or Medicine, or some of the Uses of human Life: And in this Sense all Things at their Creation were call'd Good; and to this Kind of Good is oppos'd, whatfoever is Unfit, Unprofitable, or Hurtful. 3d. Ethical or moral Good, or the Good of Manners, confifts in in the Rectitude of a reafonable Creature, or in its *Conformi*ty to Rule and Law; and to this Vice and Sin is oppos'd : And hence we call a holy Man, a good Man : and on the Contrary one who goes on in a Course of Sinning a Bad-Man.

Having offer'd these few Hints concerning the General Nature of Good, I proceed to obferve more particularly concerning the divine Goodnefs, that it is no other then his Perfection, by which he can communicate himfelf, and for which he deferves and ought to be defir'd, and therefore it includes these three following Particulars in it, namely ift. His infinite Perfection, which appears to us from all his Attributes, by which he is fufficient for himfelf, and his Creatures, and that to infinite Bleffednefs. (Gen. xvii. 1.) By this he is good in himself, yea Goodness itself. (P/a). xxv. 8.) And free from every Evil. (Deut. xxxii. 4.) And 2dly. A Faculty to communicate himfelf when and how he pleafes: Hence he is call'd Good and Beneficient, (Pfa. cxix. 68.) Thou art Good and doeft Good, teach me thy Statutes. 3dly. A Relation or Suitablenefs, which arifes from the two former Particulars mentioned, for which the Almighty deferves to be fought after, and defir'd by all intelligent Beings, with the utmost Intensenes and Vehemence. Pf. Ixiii. 1. 2. O God thou art my God, carly will I feek thee, my Soul thirsteth for thee.---. To fee thy Power and thy Glo-ry as I have feen thee in the Sanctuary. But I proceed to confider the

2d. Propos'd, viz. The Kinds of divine Goodnefs. And here it may be observ'd, that the Goodnefs of God is Twofold, viz. Imanent, and Transfent, or Effential and Relative. Now God's Imanent or effential Goodnefs, is no other then his pertect Effence or Being. Whereas the transfent Goodnefs of God, confifts in the Manifestation of the Former to, or in created Beings, and is Three-fold viz, Universal, Common and Special. And 1st. The Universal transient Goodness of God, is that whereby he cre-ates, supports, governs, and beautifies all Creatures, Pfa. cxlvii. 8. 9. Sing unto the Lord with Thanksgiving, wha covereth the Heaven with Clouds, who prepareth Rain for the Earth, who maketh Grass to grow upon the Mountains. He givet to the Beast his Food, and to the young Ravens which Cry. Pfa. xxxvi. 6, 7. O Lord theu preferwest Man and Beast, how excellent is thy loving Kindness O God! Therefore the Children of Men put their Trust under the Shadow of thy Wings. 2dly. God's Common Goodness confifts in conferring common Benefits upon the Children of Men without Distinction, whether they be Elect or Reprobates: And hence God is call'd the Saviour of all Men, especially of those that believe. (1 Tim. iv. 10. See also Rom. ii. 4.) And 3dly. The fpecial Goodnefs of God confits in differing taving Gifts upon the Elect. Ephef, i. 3, 4. Bleffed be the God and Father of our Lord JESUS CHRIST who hath Bleffed us with all spiritual Bleffings in heavenly Places in Chrift, according as he hath chosen us in him, before. the Foundation of the World, that we should be Holy, and without Blame before him in Love. And hence we read in Scripture of the Faith of God's Elect, and the Things-that do accompany Salvation. The 3d. Propos'd comes next to be confidered, which was to difcourfe upon the Properties of divine Goodnefs: Now the imanent, or effential Goodnefs of God, hath the following Properties, viz. 1ft. It is Great, Nebe. ix. 25. So they did Eat and became Fat, and delighted themfelves in thy great Goodnefs. Whereas the Goodnets of Creatures, is but as the Drop of a Bucket, Ha. xl. 15. 2dly. The Goodnefs of God is Unlimited and Infinite, equally uncapable of Addition, as of Diminution, transcending the utmott Verge P p off of our Speech or Thought ! Whereas the Goodness of all Creatures is finite and limited. And hence the Love of CHRIST is faid to pass Knowledge, and he is faid to be able to do abundantly above all that we ask or think. Ephes. iii, 19. 20. Pfa. lvii. 10. For thy Mercy is great unto the Heavens, and thy Truth unto the Clouds. 3dly. The imanent Goodnefs of God is without Beginning, Succefficn and End: Whereas the Goodnefs of Creatures as it hath a Beginning, fo it hath Succeffion in Duration, and either has or can have an End. 1 Chron. xvi. 34. O give thanks to the Lord, for he is Good, for his Mercy endureth forever ! 4thly. The imanent Goodnefs of God is most Simple, without any Mixture of Imperfection or Defect, it is pure Goodnefs without the leaft Alay: And hence he is faid to be Light, in which there is no Darkness at all, I Joh. i. 5. Whereas in Creatures there is no Goodnels without Imperfection, at leaft Comparative. 5thly. The Goodnels of God is In-dependant, because it is his Being, and hence he is call'd the Fountain of Life, Pfa. xxxvi. 9. Whereas the Goodness of Creatures is fomething added to their Being, and fo accidental and feparable. God is Good originally by his own Goodnefs; whereas all Creatures are good by Participation : They have but a deriv'd Dependant, and precarious Goodnefs : They themselves are like to Vanity, whose Days are as a Shadow, that paffeth away, Pf. exliv. 4. And how can their Goodnefs. which is but a quality fuperaded to their Beings, be more Stable then they on whom it depends ? But 2dly. The Transfient Goodness of God which is the Caufe of all that Goodness which exists in Creatures, may be faid to have the following Properties, viz. 1st. It is Efficient, inasimuch as every Creature receives its Goodness therefrom. Jam. i. 17. Every good Gift, and every perfect Donation, is from above, and cometh dozen from the Father of Lights, with The Goodness of God represented and recommended. 299 with, whom is no Variablenefs or Shadow of turning. 2dly. The transfient Goodnefs of God, is exemplary; as it is the Fountain from which all created Goodnefs flows, fo it is the Patern according to which it is to be regulated: And hence we are bid to be Merciful as our beavenly Father is Merciful. Jehovab reprefents his infinite Perfection as it were by Parts in his Works; as reasonable Creatures bear its Image, Gen.i. 26. So even the irrational Creation carry more obicure Footsteps, as it were, thereof! 3dly. The transfient Goodnefs of God is Final, Pro. x.vi 4 The Lord hath made all Things for himfelf, fays Solomon. Of him, and thro' him, and to him are all Things, fays the Apostle, Rom. xi. 36. All created Beings do either Labour after God, or are directed to his Glory passively. But I pass on to the 4th. General Head, which was to consider fome Objections

4th. General Head, which was to confider fome Objections against this Attribute. And 1st. It is objected, that God hath faid he will shew himself froward with the Froward Pf. xviii. 26. Anf. theScope of the Place is only to fignify that God will accommodate his Righteous judgments, to the perversePractices of obstinate Transgressors. He will proportion Pains to their Prefumptuous Impieties, and thus wherein they dealt proudly he will be above them.

2dly. It is objected, that God is not defired by all, nay that many labour to banifh the Thoughts of him out of their Minds. Anf. It is true, but the Reafon why he is not fought after by all intelligent Beings, is not any want of Goodneis in him, but the Blindnefs of Creatures, whereby they different not his Transcendent Amiableneis, or their Guilt, whereby they fear and thun him, as Criminals an avenging Judge ! A 3d, Objection is this, That God does not impart his Goodneis to all, to Rebrobates; whereas Goodneis is communicative of itlelf.

The fear of God confidered.

Anf. He does communicate his Goodnefs to all, but freely, according to his own good Pleafure, in refpect of the kind and degree of Good. He is Lord of his own Treafures, and may do with them what he pleafes, without being accountable to any. For as the Apoftle Paul obferves, Who hath first given to him, and it shall be recompensed to him again? God is fo far Good to all, that he supports, preferves and nourishes them to long as they continue, and confers upon them whatever they enjoy, and that without their demerit. But he is by his Effence Good, and therefore cannot but be averse to evil, and those that are under the Government of it : And therefore cannot have Fellowship with them, while they continue such a but it is time to confider the 2d General Head of Difcourfe, viz. the Fear of God. Which may be thus defcrib'd, viz. That it is a Reverence of God, arifing from a View of his Attributes, and a Senfe of his Love, difpofing us to honourable Sentiments of Jehovah in our Minds, as well as to exprcs the same by our Lips, and especially by the course of our Practice, to do those Things that we know are pleasing to him, and carefully to avoid the contrary. Here observe,

Ift. That there can be no true Fear of God without the Knowledge of him. And this Knowledge muft be experimental and practical, fuch as is formed in us by the Holy Spirit's fpecial Concurrence, with the ufe of proper Means. Such as proceeds from Faith in God thro' a Mediator, and has influence upon the Mind and Life! When we have a believing View of the infinite Excellency of the fupream Being by Faith, then, and not before, we are inclin'd to entertain high and becoming Thoughts of God, and to express the fame in our Speech and Behaviour. And Trave 2dly. It flould be observed, that Leve is another Principle

2dly. It fhould be obferv'd, that Love is another Principle of the true Fear of God. Our Love to God proceeds partly from from a view of his Excellency, and partly from a Senfe of his Love to us. Hence the Apoftle John obferves, that we love him, becaufe be loved us firft. Now a transferdent Love to God, fiveetly constrains us, by the ingenuous Bonds of Gratitude, to fear God becaufe of his Goodnefs, as our Text afferts. But particularly in the 3d Place it may be observ'd, that there be two ingredients in the aforefaid Reverence of God, viz. a fear to offend him by any Sin, and a care to pleafe him by every Duty; on which Account the whole Worship of God is fometimes in Scripture fignify'd by the fear of God. Hence it is faid of Job, that be feared God, and eschewed Evil.

Now the fear of God is twofold, viz. either Servile or Filial. The Servile Fear of God, is when we are afraid to offend God, chiefly becaufe of the Punishment confequent upon it. And this, when it is attended with fome Hope of Mercy, is profitable, as a preparative of Order to Converfion, but when accompany'd with Despair, it is hurtful. But a filial fear arifes from Love, and fweetly allures us to ferve God, and makes us afraid of his Anger as ingenuous Children. The Characters of this Kind of Fear, are thefe following. 1ft. It makes those that have it Conscientious in the general Courfe of their Practice, to avoid every Evil, fecret as well as open, finall as well as great, fashionable and creditable Evils, as well as those that are more scandalous! Yea to avoid the very Appearance of Evil, and to feek the Mortification of Sin in the Heart; and all this from a hatred of Sin, chiefly becaufe of its vile Nature, and contrariety to God. 2dly. It makes those that have it, painful in the Performance of good Works, and careful that they be done in a right Manner, viz. from a right Principle, Love; to a right End, God's Glory; and by a right Rule, the Word of God, as well as with fervour and affection ! Befides it it makes Perfons that have it, to long after, and labour for a Perfection of Holinefs : From purfuing which they will not be deter'd by the Fear or Hope of any Creature, or of any Evil ! 3dly. Thofe that fear God make mention of his Name and Attributes with religious Reverence, and read his Word with pious Solicitude. 4thly. The Fear of God is not a transfent Pang or fuddain fla/b of Devotion, but a fixed good Temper of Mind, a habitual Devotednefs to God and his Service, which runs thro' the general Courfe of our Affections and Actions.

I proceed to the Improvement.

Ift. From the Goodness of God, we may learn the Evil of Sin, which, in its Nature directly oppofes infinite Goodnefs; and, as far as it can, labours to dethrone the Almighty, and therefore it was call'd by the Antients Deicide. For Sin, poor Creatures are deferted by the Almighty, who is the chief Good, and that to all Eternity. (Mat. XXV. 41.) It is Sin that robs the Soul of the good Image of God, with which it was at first adorn'd, and renders it evil and indifpos'd to any good. It is Sin that inclines those that are under its Government, to prefer the imaginary Goodneis of the Creature, to the true and infinite Goodness of the Creator! It is by Sin, that we requite the chief good from whom all our good is deriv'd, with Evil! Deut. xxxii. 6. Do ye thus requite the Lord O foolifh Pcople and unwife! Is he not thy Father that hath bought thee, hath he not made thee, and established thee? By Sin Men flight the Treasures of divine Goodness, and Treasure thereby to themselves Wrath against the Day of Wrath ! (Rom. ii. 4.) Should not therefore the Confideration of divine Goodnels, induce or lead us to Repent of Sins paft, and to hate and fhun every future Evil, and to feek a remedy against it in CHRIST JESUS, in whom alone the special Goodness of God is display'd to fallen Mankind kind. Pfal. ii. 12. Kifs the Son leaft he be Angry and ye perifh from the Way.

2dly. The Confideration of God's Goodnefs, offers Matter of Support to the People of God, in all their Calamities; and arms them against Poverty, and the Fear of Death itself. For God by his Goodness will be our Portion and Inheritance. (Pf. xvi. 5. 6.) He will supply out of his inexaustible Treasures, all our Wants. Mat. vi. 33. But seek ye first the Kingdom of God, and his Righteousness, and all other Things Shall be added unto you. And the' we walk thre' the Valley of the Shadow of Death, God's Rod and Staff shall comfort us. "I am neither ashamed to live or afraid to die (faid " Ambrofe of old,) becaufe we have a good Lord. Nec " pudet vivere, nec piget mori, quia bonum habemus Domi-" num." What tho' we be environ'd by many and powerful Enemies, God, by his Goodnefs will be to us a strong Tower, a Shield and Buckler, Pf. xviii. If we are afflicted in Body or Mind, he will heal our Diseases, and forgive our Trespasses, for his Goodness Sake ! Ps. ciii. 3. Are we weak in oppo-fing Sin, or under spiritual Desertion, his Grace is sufficient for us, and his Power is made perfect in Weakness. The Lord is gracious and merciful, flow to Anger and plenteous in Mercy, he will not always chide, nor keep his Anger forever. Pf. ciii. 8, 9. See Ifa. liv. 7, 8. For a fmall Moment I have for faken thee, but with great Mercy will I gather thee, in a little Wrath I hid my Face from thee for a Moment, but with everlasting Kindness will I have Mercy on thee, faith the Lord thy Redeemer. All our Afflictions shall furely work together for our Good (Rom. viii. 28.) If we do but feek Relief in him alone, and put our Truft in him. Lam. iii. 25. The Lord is good to them that wait for him, to the Soul that feeketh him. 3dly. The Confideration of God's Goodness should invite our Love, feeing it is the proper Object of Efteem and Respect.

Refpect. If we regard fmall Rays and Drops of the Divine-Goodnefs in Creatures, how much more should we regard the Sun itfelf and love with all our Souls that infinite and unexhausted Fountain of Goodness that is in God. " Love, " faith Anfelm, the one Good, in whom are all Good. "Things, and it shall suffice thee." Now our Love to the good God fhould express itself, in longing after Union to, communion with, and the Enjoyment of God in this and the next Life, as well as in acquiefcing in his Goodnets, as in our All, and only Good, not defiring the Almighty to be in any Refpect otherwife than he is. Pf. lxxiii. 25. Whom have in I Heaven but thee, and there is none upon Earth that I desire besides thee. Our Love should likewife dispose us to devote all our good to God, and employ it for him, as well as to remove all moral Evil from his Sight, that fo he may make all his Goodness pass before us. (2 Cor. viii. 5. Ifa. i. 16. Ex. xxxiii. 19.) And feeing Jehovah is truly Good, our Love to him should be fincere, not in Speech and Carriage only, but in Heart, Love out of a pure Heart and Faith unfeigned, Love in Deed and in Truth, as the Apostle John expreffes it. For nothing but this will avail us at laft; and feeing God is the only Good, fuperlatively, independently, im-mutably and efficiently Good. Therefore we fhould neglect and contemn every other Good, fo far as it stands in Competition with him. Cant. viii. 7. Many Waters cannot quench Love, neither can the Floods drown it. If a Man would give all the Substance of his House for Love, it would be utterly contemned. And we must love the superlative Good superlatively, or in the higheft degree, with all our Soul and Strengh, above any Thing in Heaven or Earth, becaute Jehovah is the chief Good infinitely transcending every other Good. And should not we love him independently, i. c. for himfelf alone, and not for any Thing elfe chiefly, foralmuch.

afmuch as he is an independent Good, who has made all Things for himfelf. Moreover should not that good Being, be lov'd conftantly with an invariable and unfailing Affection; who is himfelf far from the Shadow of Change? And should not our Love to Jehovah be operative and effectual, not in Word and Tongue only, but in Deed and Truth ? Seeing he is a good Communicative of himfelf to his Creatures! Now in order to obtain fuch a Love to God, as has been hinted, it would be of special Service, to meditate frequently upon the Goodness of God, which fills the Earth and reaches up to Heaven, which appears with wonderful Luftre in the Works of Creation, Redemption and Provividence ? Is not the Milers Love to Gold enflamed by a frequent viewing of it? And let us dear Brethren humbly pray, and earneftly labour to be more and more firmly fix'd, in the believing Perfwafion of God's infinite Goodnefs; that fo CHRIST may dwell in our Hearts by Faith, that being rooted and grounded in Love, we may be able to comprehend with all Saints, what is the Breadth. and Length, and Depth, and Height, and to know the Love of CHRIST, which paffes Knowledge, that we may be filled with the Fullness of God. Eph. iii. 17,--19. But

4thly The Meditation of God's Goodnefs, fhould invite us to feek all good in God, who is all fufficient, a Sun and Shield to his People, yea an exceeding great Reward ! A Fountain of Life in whole Light we enjoy Light. From him every good Donation defcends, and he it is that bleffes us, with all Spiritual Bleffings in CHRIST. Therefore if we want a profitable Good, the neceffary Supports of Life, let us ask it of God, who has a Sovereign Empire and abfolute Controle, over all fecond Caufes. He bears the Heavens, and they bear the Earth, and the Earth the Corn and Wine, and the Corn and Wine bear Jezreel. Hof. ii. Surely it is in God we live, and move and are. Do we need pleafant Good, is itnot Jehovah, who thro' his Goodness, fills our Hearts with Food and Gladness? Gives us all Things richly to enjoy, and crowns us with his Goodness and tender Mercy. Pf. ciii. Do we need Honest and saving Good, Faith, Hope, Charity, Ec. Is not God the Father of Lights, from whom every good Gift is deriv'd? Let us not therefore dear Brethren, turn to empty Creatures, and make to ourfelves Cifterns that can hold no Water, and fay, who fhall fkew us any Good ? But to the living God, and from him let us labour to derive all the Good we need for Life and Godlinefs, by Faith in the Mediator, in whom all the Promifes are Yea and Amen, and likewife by earnest Prayer and humble Reverence as well as by a fweet Complacence in, or contentednefs with the Good, that God is pleafed to difpence to us, by the Courfe of his unerring Providence. In God's Goodnefs our Happiness is to be only fought : For indeed it can be only found therein. Here we may behold our objective Happiness, or that Good that makes us happy: Not a created Good as fome Philosophers of old, have vainly dream'd. No! But an uncreated, independent and infinite Good, who: as a Shield can turn away all Evil from us, and as a Sun cancommunicate all Good to us. And here we may likewife behold our Formal Happinefs, which confifts in Union to, Communion with, and the Enjoyment of this chief and infinite Good. Hence the Pfalmift pronounces that People bleffed whose God is the Lord. (Pfal. xxxiii. 12.) And how fweetly does devout Heman triumph, on this Account, Pfa. lxxii. 25. Who have I in Heaven but thee, and there is none upon Earth that I defire befides thee. The chief Good hath certainly the chief Dignity and Excellency, and therefore deferves the first Place in our Thoughts, Defires and Labours. And is not fecuring of Happiness the great Defign-60

Life, next to the Glory of God, after which there is in all a natural Defire. Now is it not evident from the very Nature of Things, that that cannot be found in any created Good? Becaufe it is grofs and limited, and fo unequal to the Nature and Defires of the Soul. Surely therefore all the Lines of Life, that do not tend to God as their Center are crooked, and befides the Mark. Let us then turn our Eyes and Hearts from Creatures to the great and good God, and feek for Reft and Happinefs in him alone; his Goodnefs can only yield the folid Satisfaction we in vain feek and expect elfewhere.

5thly. The infinite Goodness of God, affords Occasion of glorifying him after the Example of many of his most eminent Servants, particularly of David, Pfa. cvi. 1. Praise ye the Lord, O give Thanks unto the Lord, for he is good, for his Mercy endureth forever. Of Asaph, Heman, Jeduthun, who with their Sons and Brethren, by Cymbals, & Trumpets, and other Inftruments of Mulick, founded forth the Praites of the divine Goodness. 2 Chron. v. 12, 13. And it came to pass as the Trumpeters and Singers were as one, to make one Sound to be heard in praising and thanking the Lord, and when they lift up their Voice with the Trumpets and Cymbals, and praifed the Lord faying, for he is good for his Mercy endureth for ever; that then the Houfe was filled with a Cloud, even the Houfe of the Lord. And is there not Reafon why we should praife God for his Goodness, when we confider that it is a Property, whereby he efpecially communicates and commends himfelf to Creatures, a Property which most nearly touches us, & therefore should constrain us to grateful Emotions. Hence faith Augustine, " Seeing that God is Good. and hath " made all Things Good, and feeing that he who made all Things, " is infinitely better than the Things which he made, you will " not be able to fay better of him, then that he is Good." To Qq 2

To the fame effect fpeaks Bernard thus, "As there is not a "Moment in which we enjoy not God's Goodnefs; fo let there "be no Moment in which we do not remember God as pre-"fent." Is not the Prailes of God for his Goodnefs the fweeteft Employment of the Saints in Heaven or Earth? Says Augustine "I am seiz'd with Sweetness while I think "upon the good God.—If therefore we Praise any other "Thing, we therefore Praise it because it is Good; there can "be no greater, better or firmer Cause of Praising God, than "be no greater, better or firmer Cause of Praising God, than "be cause he is Good." Now in order to glorify God, it is neceffary that we know his Goodness, in its Nature, Kinds, Degrees, Effects. And likewise that we take, behold and admire the fame! that fo what we feel in our Hearts, we may express with our Lips, in the Psalmiss Language. Pfal. ciii. 2. Bles the Lord O my Soul, and forget not all his Benefits!

But in the next Place, let me intreat you, my dear Brethren, to imitate the Goodnefs of God. The Pialmift gives us a fummary of the divine Goodnefs, Pfal. cxix 68. Theu art Good and doeff Good, i. e. Good by an intrinfick and imanent Perfection, in which refpect God is lovely and lov'd by himfelf, as well as communicative of himfelf, and fo to be defired by all. Befides he does Good, he diftributes his Goodnefs among Creatures both Good and Evil, tho' in a different Manner and Degree. Now let us endeavour to imitate this noble Example. 1ft. By being Good, i. e. fit for the use to which we were created; and what was that Ufe, but to know, love and glorify our Creator here, in order to enjoy him eternally! And what does fitnefs for it confift in, but in the Image of God, after which Man was at first created, viz. The Wisdom of the Understanding, the Holinefs and Righteoufnefs of the Will, and Harmony of the Affections! (Ephef. iv, 24) Now this Image of God or or original Righteoufnefs being loft, by our Violation of the Covenant of Works, we are thereby render'd unprofitable Servants, unfit for our Ufe, and fo altogether Evil. And therefore before we can imitate God aright, we must obtain, by Regeneration, the Image of God, which we have loft by Sin . And being Regenerated we must more and more abandon Evil, and learn to do Well, by progressive Sanctification. 2dly. After we are made Good, we must endeavour to do Good, agreeable to the Defign or Ufe of our Creation. Towards God, by fearing of him, trufting in him, by Love and Obedience: Towards our Neighbour, by diffufing our Goodnefs upon all, Good and Bad, Friends and Enemies, but not in a like Degree : By this Imitation of the divine Goodnefs, we shall shew ourselves to be the genuine Children of our Father which is in Heaven : By this we shall have a certain Argument within ourfelves, of our Reftoration to the divine Image: And by this we shall refemble the bleffed God in his most perfect Property, and to be made Partakers of the divine Nature ! By this we shall glorify Jehovah's Name, and many Ways promote his Kingdom : And by this, thro the gracious Promife of God, our Comforts will be encreafed in this Life, and the Degree of our Happiness in that to come.

What was faid before concerning the Fear of God, fhould excite you my dear Brethren, to examine yourfelves impartially thereby: for thus you will know your prefent State towards God, whether it be good or bad, which ye cannot but know is of great importance, both to your Comfort and Safety.

I must befeech you, Sirs, as a Meffenger of God, and command you in his Name and by his Authority, to fear Jehovah. To this ye may be excited by the following Motives, 1ft. It is equal and Reafonable: If Reverence and Cear Fear belongs to any, furely much more to the greateft and beft of Beings! 2dly. It is Safe. He that fears God need fear none elfe! 3dly. It is proffitable: This is the Beginning of faving Wifdom, as Solomon obferves, and the Root and Spring of all Vertue and Goodnefs. To this the Promifes of God are made, and to fuch his Mercy and Goodnefs is extended by the It is present and protocold by the Cond extended ! 4thly. It is generous and grateful. His Good-nels multinduce us to fear walking unworthy cf it, if we are not loft to all Senfe of Gratitude! Now the Means that are not loft to all Senie of Gratitude! Now the Means that are helpful to the aforefaid Difpofition are thefe, 1ft. A fre-quent Meditation upon the Majefty and Goodnets of God. 2dly. Upon our Corruption and propenfity to Sin againft him. 3dly. Upon the Bafenefs of the Nature of Sin, and its dreadful Confequences! 4thly. Upon the Omnifcience, Om-niprefence, Power and Juffice of God, as an avenger of Sin. O may it pleafe Almighty God to fullfil in us all the pre-cious Promifes our Text contains, that we may fo fear the Lond and his Coodnals in the latter Days: That having ferred Lord and bis Goodnefs in the latter Days: That having ferved our Generation according to the Will of God, during the Space appointed for our Refidence in this Vale of Sorrow, we may be at laft translated to that Kingdom of Peace, of Love, of Light, of Purity, of Reft, where divine Good-nefs appears in all its native Majefty, in all its inexpreffible Beauty, without an intercepting Glafs, that fo we may be forever with the Lord. Amen, Amen.

EXODUS xxxiv. 6.

And the Lord paffed by before him, and proclaimed, the Lord, the Lord God, Merciful and Gracious, Long-fufferring.

N the preceeding Verfes we are inform'd, that the Lord commanded Mofes to hew out two Tables of Stone, like to the first, which were broken, and to come to Mount Sinai with them the next Morning. Mofes readily obey'd the divine Injunction, and had a gracious interview of God. No fooner had he reach'd the Top, the fummit of Sinai's Mount, but theLord defcended in a Cloud, and proclaimed his Name! The Cloud was doubtlefs fome -fenfible Symbol or Token of the divine Prefence ! Probably Jehovah made a Cloud his Pavilion in order to affect Moles with with an awful Reverence of his Majefty and Glory, and to let him know, that the' fomewhat of God was reveal'd to him, yet that much more was conceal'd from him ! But from the whole we may learn this profitable Leffon, viz. That it is only in the Way of Obedience that we can reasonably expect the Intimations of God's gracious Prefence ! In the Words of our Text it is more particularly obferv'd, that the Lord proclaimed his Name: Doubtlefs this Repetition is to fignify to us, the great Importance of the Thing fpoken. Now in the Proclamation two Things may be be taken Notice of, viz. the Manner and Matter of it. And Ift. As to the Manner or Time, it was while the Lord paffed by before him. The Apprehensions we have of God in this World are fhort and transient, full and fixed Views are referv'd for a future State. But 2dly. The Matter of the Proclamation contains a Reprefentation both of the Greatnefs and Goodnefs of God. And 1st. We have an Account of the Greatnefs of God in these Words, The Lord, the Lord God. As God hath his Being of himfelf, and is the Fountain of Being to all Creatures, fo he is a Strong God, the great Original of all Power. This Declaration of God's Self-Existence and Almightines, is prefix'd before the Difplay of his Goodness, to excite a Fear and Reverence of God's Majefty, and thereby to deter from an abufe of his Mercy. In the 2d Place, we have an Account of God's Goodnets, in three noble Inftances, namely, of Mercy, Grace and Long-Sufferring. As God's Greatness is mentioned to incite Fear, and prevent the abuse of his Good-ness: so is his Goodness display'd to incite Hope, which is the Spring of Action, and to allay the Terror of his Greatnefs! The first Manifestation of divine Goodnets here exprefs'd is Mercy; he is Merciful, this fpeaks his compaffionate Tendernels over poor milerable Creatures, like that of a Father to his Children. This is put first, because it is the first Wheel in all the Instances of God's good Will to fallen Man, whofe Mifery makes him an Object of Pity, 2dly. He is Gracious: This fpeaks the Fud. x. 16. Freenels of God's Goodness to his Creatures, and that it is vouchfaf'd entirely because of his own good Pleasure, and not for the Sake of any Thing in them. It is oppos'd to the Payment of a Price (Exo. xxi. 11.) as well as to Justice and Merit. (Pfal xxxv. 7, 19. 1 Sam. xix. 5.) 3dly. He is Long-fuffering, this speaks the flowness of Jebovab hovab to anger, and his deferring the Execution of deferved Vengeance upon Tranfgreffors. Thus God waits to be Gracious to us, and wants to be exalted that he may have Mercy upon us! The Almighty now perform'd what he had but a little time before promifed to Moles. Ex. xxiii. 18 And he faid, I befeech thee to fhew me thy Glory, and he faid I will make all my Goodnefs to pass before thee, and I will Proclaim the Name of the Lord before thee, and will be Gracious to whom I will be Gracious, and will fhew Mercy on whom I will fhew Mercy. By which we may fee, that God's Goodnefs is his Name and Glory! that by which he will be known by his intelligent Creatures, as Men are by their Names, and that in which he Triumphs and has Complacency! God had before made himfelf known to Moles in the Glory of his Self-Existence and Self-Sufficiency, by the Name I AM THAT I AM; and now he makes himtelf known by the Glory of his Mercy, Grace and Longfuffering.

Now that I may difcourfe diffinctly upon those three Attributes of God, which our Text contains, I shall begin with the first, which is his Mercy.

The Holy Scriptures frequently affert the Mercy of God. Thus he is call'd the Father of Mercies, (2 Cor. i. 3.) He is likewife faid to be abundant in Mercy, (1 Pet. i. 3.) Rich in Mercy, (Eph. ii. 4.) Of tender Mercy, (Pf. xxv. 6.) to have Bowels of Mercy, (Pfa. xl. 11. Luk. i. 78.) Seeing that Mercy among Men, is among the Number of Vertues and Perfections, in which Perfons of a more generous Mind and Temper generally excell; it cannot with any fhadow of Reafon be denied to God, who is not only infinitely Perfect in himfelf, but alfo the Author of all that Good, that Creatures Poffefs! If any fhould object and fay, R r That Mercy is oppos'd to Justice, and therefore cannot be ascrib'd to Gad.

Anf. I deny it, it is not oppos'd to Juffice, as the Verfe following our Text fhews, keeping Mercy for ThouJands, and yet will by no Means clear the Guilty. God never fhews Mercy contrary to Juffice, as he never exercises Juffice contrary to Mercy; yea the Almighty feldom or never executes Juffice without fome Preceeding Expense of Mercy, and therefore by pitying the miterable, the Lord doth not contradict his Juffice, but as it were exceed it. As if a Creditor gave a Debtor a Hundred Pounds, who owes a Thousand. It is in this Sense that the Apostle James obferves, That Mercy rojoyceth against Judgment, (Jam. ii. 13.) 2dly. Some do object, That Mercy cannot be ascrib'd to God, because it implies a Sense of anothers Misery. Ans. It is true, Mercy is not in God, as it is in Men, by

Anf. It is true, Mercy is not in God, as it is in Men, by Way of Quality or Paffion! For then his Simplicity and Happinefs would be deftroyed. However fuch a Knowledge of the Mifery of Creatures belongs to God, as inclines him to relive them! This Anfelm ipeaks pertinently upon in the following Manner, "Thou art Merciful O God according "to us, and according to thee.----When thou beholds our Mi-"feries we feel the Effect of Pity, but thou doft not feel the "Affection of Pity!"

In difcourfing upon this divine Attribute of Mercy it will be neceffary to fpeak upon its Nature, Kinds and Properties. And

Ift. Mercy, in respect of its Nature, may be thus defcrib'd, viz. That it is the Goodness of God, extended to the Miserable. Here good and bad Angels are excluded. The Good because they are not miterable, and the Bad because they are wholly given up to Justice, 2 Pet. ii. 4. But God spared not the Angels that finned, but cost them down to Hell.

Hell, and delivered them into Chains of Darkness to be referv'd unto Judgment. Or the Mercy of God may be thus defcrib'd, viz. That it is that Property of the Supream Being whereby he is inclin'd to fuccour his Creatures in Mifery, together with its kind Effects upon them. Here observe 1st. That the special Object of Mercy, is the Creature in Mifery, and thus it is diftinguish'd from other Attributes. Goodness confiders it's Object as Indigent, and so commu-nicates needed Benefits; but Mercy confiders its Object as Miserable, because of Sin : And therefore tho' an Innocent Creature be the Object of divine Goodnefs and Bounty, it's only a fallen and finning Creature, that is the proper Object of God's Mercy. Grace, is Mercy or Goodnels freely difpens'd, and therefore it confiders its Object, not only as Miferable, but Unworthy ! Where-as Long-fuffering confifts in the Sufpenfion of merited Vengeance, and the Communication of immerited Benefits! Thus you may fee that all these Attributes of the Deity, import the Communication of fome Good to the Creature, and are only diffinguish'd in Relation to the Objects upon which they are exercis'd ! Mifery is the Foil of Mercy, it can have no other Object; hence it is faid Jud. x. 16. That bis Soul was griev'd for the Mifery of Ifrael! Un-doubtedly the Vertue of Mercy was in God from all Eternity, but there was no Room or Occafion for its Difplays, till the Creatures fatal Fall from God and Mifery confequent upon it, provided it an Object to be exercis'd upon. Man by Sin robb'd himfelf of his Beauty and Happinefs, and expos'd himfelf to all the manifold Miferies of this and the next Life. All which are included in the Sentence of Death annex'd to the Breach of the first Covenant. As Man by Sin had loft all Right to Happiness, and on the contrary, rendered himfelf lyable to all the Threats of the divine Law; Rr 2. (c. - fo by this he likewife became altogether unprofitable, (Rom. iii. 12.) having loft all his original Power to glorify God by active Obedience, and thus he had no ground from him-felf to expect the divine favour.

2dly. Seeing the Mifery of fallen Mankind is Two-fold, viz. Of Sin and Punifhment, confequently the Operations of Mercy confift in affording fuitable Succours under these Maladies. In respect of Sin the Mercy of God fuccours in the following Instances.

1ft. In reconciling Sinners to himfelf, by the Blood of his only begotten Son 2 Cor. v. 18. For the Purchafe of which Reconciliation, the eternal Father gave his beloved Son to Shame Pain and Death. John iii. 16. And for the Application thereof, he confers Faith upon the Elect, whereby they are enabled to accept of and rely upon the bleffed JESUS as Mediator and Reconciler. And 2dly. By renewing Sinners by his Spirit, hereby the Tyranny and Dominion of Sin is broken, and the People of God enabled to overcome Sin, and triumph over it. Rom. vi. 12. Let not Sin reign in your Mortal Bodies, that ye fould obey it in the Lufts thereof. Rom. vii. 25. I thank God thro' JESUS CHRIST our Lord.

In refpect of Punishment, divine Mercy Succours in the following Manner.

1ft. By bearing with the Sinner for a Time before Judgment is inflicted. Rom. ix. 22. What if God willing to Shew his Wrath, and to make his Power known, endur'd with much long suffering, the Vessels of Wrath fitted to Destruction.

2dly. By threatning Punifhments against the Impenitent, in order to reclaim them from their Trespasses. God warns before he wounds, and fends his Servants to flay Sinners by his Word, before he flays them by his Sword.

3dly.

3dly. By pointing to a Remedy, whereby the impending Stroke of divine Judgment may be averted. Jer. xviii. 7, 8. At what Inflant I fkall fpeak concerning a Nation, and concerning a Kingdom to pluck up, and to pull down, and to deftroy it, if that Nation against whom I have pronounced turn from their Evil, I will repent of the Evil I thought to do unto them. If Sinners repent of the Evil of Sin, God will avert the Evil of Judgment, 4thly. By inviting of, and expostulating with Sinners to accept of the Remedy propos'd. Ifa. i. 13. Come now and let us reafon together, tho' your Sins be as Scarlet, they shall be as white as Snow, tho' they be red like Crimson, they shall be as Wool. Jer. ii. 5. Thus fayeth the Lord, what Iniquity kave your Fathers found in me, that they are gone far from me, and have walked after Vanity and become vain?

5thly. By receiving into Favour those that comply with the Remedy, how great soever their Trespasses have been, by forgiving their Sins, fanctifying and sweetening their Sorrows, and supporting them under them by his Spirit, Love, Power. Pfal. cili. 3. Who forgiveth all thine Iniquities, swho healeth all thy Discasses. 2 Cor. xil. 9. And he faid unto me, my Grace is sufficient for thee. 2 Cor. i. 3, 4. Blefjed be God even the Father of our Lord JESUS CHRIST, the Father of Mercies and the God of all Comfort, who comforteth us in all our Tribulation. And 6thly. Such as do not accept of the Remedy offered, after the Almighty has fufpended the Execution of Juffice, until there be no Remedy. When he begins to inflict deferved Judgment (in General,) he doth it by Degrees, firft he fends lighter Calamities, and when those do not reclaim the Sinner, he fends heavier. In the Day of God's rough Wind, He ftays his East Wind. Firft Rods are try'd, and if those do not avail, Scorpions may be expected. Jehovah Johovah does not all at once, ftir up all bis Wrath. Pfal. Ixxviii. 38. But the

2d. Propos'd was to fpeak of the Kinds of Mercy. Now the Mercy of God, may be faid to be Two-fold, viz. Either common or lpecial. Common Mercy confifts in conferring without Diffinction, upon the Children of Men, the Outward Comforts and Conveniencies of Life, and hence the Almighty is faid to caufe bis Sun to rife upon the Evil and the Good, and to fend bis rain upon the Just and the Unjust. Mat. v. 45. But the fpecial Mercy of God, confifts in conferring upon the Elect, fuch Things as do accompany Salvation, and that thro' Chrift, in the Channel of the New Covenant. Epb. i. 3. Bleffed be the God and Father of our Lord JESUS CHRIST, who hath bleffed us with all fpiritual. Bleffings, in Heavenly Places in CHRIST. But I proceed to the

3d. Propos'd, which was to difcourle upon the Properties of divine Mercy. And

Ift. It is eternal, Pfal. ciii. 17. The Mercy of God is from everlassing to everlassing. It is repeated Twenty-fix Times in one Pfalm, that his Mercy endureth forever. Pfal. exxxvi. And this may justly enhanse our Effection of it, and defire after it. Tho' God may hide his Face for a little Moment, yet with everlassing loving Kindness will he return to his People. And

2dly. God's Mercy is great, and hence God is faid to be plentious in Mercy, Plal. lxxxvi. 5. Rich in Mercy, Eph. ii. 4. And in Pfal. II: 1. We read of the Multitude of his tender Mercies, And in (2. Sam. xxiv. 14.) his Mercies are exprefly faid to be great. But methinks the greatness of God's Mercy appears especially, by confidering these two 'Things, viz. What is the Sinners Due according to strict Justice, and the Mitigation thereof, which he enjoys in this World. Surely

Surely the Wages of Sin is Death. -Rom. vi. 23. - which includes all the Miferies of this prefent Life, as well as the Pains of Hell hereafter. Now, therefore every Mitigation of those Mileries, every Comfort the Sinner enjoys is Mercy, it is what the Sinner has forfeited a Right to, it is what he deferves not.

3dly. The Mercy of God is incomparable, Jer. iii. 1. They fay if a Man put away his Wife, and fke go from him, and become another Man's, fhall he return unto her again ?---But thou hast played the Harlot with many Lovers, yet return unto me faith the Lord ! The Merciful God exceeds his Creatures both in giving and forgiving. And

1ft. In giving : Our Donations are often extorted from us, but he gives of his own accord, without any incentive, but what is in his own Bofom. (Ifa. lxv. 1.)

2dly. We give but finall Gifts, but he gives the greateft, viz. Himfelf, his Son, his Spirit, his Kingdom. Job. iii. 16.

3dly. We give to our Friends, but Jehovah confers many Donations on his Enemies. (Mat. v. 45.)

4thly. We are foon weary of giving, but fo is not God, he is unwearied in his Mercy (to the Penitent) be giveth liberally and upraideth not, Jam. i. 5. And 2dly. The Merciful God exceeds his Creatures, in forgiving.

Ift. Men are revengful to those that wrong them, but God is merciful and gracious, long fuffering, as our Text afferts. How remarkable to this Purpofe are these Words of the Prophet Hof. xi. g. I will not execute the Fiercenefs of mine Anger, I will not return to destroy Ephraim, for I am God and not Man.

adly. Men are difficultly drawn to forgive, and cannot forgive often, God but is ready to pardon Neh. ix 17. And do s multiply Pardons.

3dly. Sometimes Men forgive when it is not in their Power to revenge themfelves, but Sinners are always under God's Controle, and within the reach of his Arm. But

4th. The Mercy of God is fure, and infallible, Ifa. lv. 3. Incline your Ear, and come unto me, hear and your Soul fhall live; and I will make an everlafting Covenant with you, even the fure Mercies of David. And hence it is, that the Gifts and Calling of God are faid to be without Repentance, and that the Foundation of God flands fure. The Lord knoweth who are his. God's fpecial Mercy to his People is built upon the fure and invariable Foundation of his Purpofes and Promifes, as well as the Satisfaction and Interceffion of CHRIST.

5thly. God's Mercy is free Ephel. i. 11. In whom alfo we have obtained an Inheritance, being predestinated according to the Purpole of him, who worketh all Things after the Counfel of his own Will. Albeit the Vertue of Mercy belongs to God, in respect of his Being, yet the Dispensation of it depends entirely upon God's good Pleasure, and hence the Apostle Paul informs us, That it is not of him that willeth, nor of him that runneth, but of God that sheweth Mercy and that he hath Mercy upon whom he will have Mercy, and whom he will be hardeneth, Rom. ix.

Now becaufe when fuch Things as are really or feemingly contrary, are put together, they illustrate each other. It may not be improper before I proceed to the Improvement of this Subject to difcourte upon the Severity of God in his Judgments, which is feemingly oppos'd to his Mercy. Of this mention is made Rom. xi, 22. and in many other Places of Scripture; and of this there be many Examples upon facred Record, fuch as the Inftances of the fallen Angels, our first Parents, the old World, Pharaeh, the Egyptians, Korah, Dathan, Abiram, Achan, Ananias, and and Saphira, and many others. From which we may gather, that God's Judgments which he exercises by his Severity, are no other than fingular Punishments inflicted for fingular Offences. The meritorious Cause of them, is some agravated Iniquity, the Nature of which, is often pointed out by the Punishment inflicted, which is not common but fingular. Adonibezeck, who had cut off the Thumbs and Great-Toes of Threefcore and Ten Kings, was ferved fo himfelf. (Judges i. 6, 7.) And hence Samuel fayeth con-cerning Agag, That as his Sword made Women Childlefs, fo bis Mother should be Childless among Women. 1 Sam. xv. 33. Hence the Lord elfewhere threatens, that thefe acho fied the Blood of others, flould them selves have Blood to drink. Thus you fee that the Punifhment does often refemble the Sin that procur'd it. Now the Judgments of God, are of various Kinds, viz. Spiritual or Bodily, Private or Publick. Spiritual Judgments are such as these, viz. A Famine of the Word, Amos viii. 11, 12. Leanefs of Soul and Backslidings. Rev. ii. 5. Errors in Judgment. 2 Thef. ii. 10, 11. And for this Caufe, God shall fend them strong Delusion, that they skould believe a Lie. Corporal Judgments are War, Peftilence, Famine, Drowth & the like. Now the procuring Caufes of publick and epidemical Judgments, are fuch as thefe following, viz. Ingratitude against God, Ifa. i. 3. Con-tempt of his Word, Ifa. xlii. 24. Who gave Jacob for a Spoil, and Ifrael to the Rolbers, did not the Lord, he aganst whom we have finned, : For they would not walk in his Ways, neither were they obedient unto his Law. Another Caufe of Judgments, is flighting of the Mini/lers of God. 2 Chron. xxxvi. 16. But they macked the Moffengers of God, and defpis'd his Word, and mifus'd his Prophets, until the Wrath of the Lord arofe against his People, til there was no Remedy. Befides Pride and Idolatry are procuring Caufes, of divine Ss Judgments.

Judgments. Ifa. ii. 11. The lofty Looks of Man skall be humbled, and the Haughtinefs of Men skall be bro't down Jer. ii. 13, 14. Likewife the following Evils against our Neighbour, are Caufes of divine Judgments. viz Opprefficn of the Poor Ifa. iii. 14. The Lord will enter into Judgment with the Antients of his People, and the Princes thercof : For ye have caten up the Vincyard, the Spoil of the Poor is in your Houses zdly. Wronging the Widow and Fatherles Ifa. i. 23. They judge not the Fatherlefs, neither does the Caufe of the Widow come before them. 3dly. Cheating the Labourer of his Hire. Jer. xxii. 13. Wee unto him that buildeth his House by Unrightcousness, and his Chambers by Wrong, that ufeth his Neighbours Service without Wages, and giveth him not for his Work. The Prophet Hofea mentions a Number of Caufes together in the Fourth Chap. of his Book, 1. 3 2. verfes. Hear the Word of the Lord ye Children of Ifrael, for the Lora has a Controverly with the Inhabitants of the Land, becaufe there is no Truth, nor Mercy, nor Knowledge of God in the Land. By facearing and lying, and killing, and flealing, and commiting Adultery, they break out, and Blood toucheth Blood therefore shall the Land mourn. To the aforefaid Caufes of divine Judgments I may add, Covetoufnels and Hypocrify. Ifa. v. 8, 13. Wee unto them that joyn Houfe to Hufe .--- Therefore my People are gone into Captivity. Ha. x, 6. O Affyrian, the Rod of mine Anger----I will fend him against a Hypocritical Nation. Here it may be observ'd, that Judgments are not always fent, except the aforefaid Evils become general, and are attended with Impudence, after various Warnings (Jer. v. 1. Ija. iii. 9. Pf. xcv. 10. 11.) Now the Judgements of God are always juft, and fometimes unfearchable and wonderful: For fometimes he not only fends them on the Ungodly, but upon his own People. Yea as the Apofile Peter observes. Judgment begins đť at the House of God. The Lord threatned his People of old; that them only be had known of all the Families of the Earth, and therefore he would funish them for their Iniquities. Hence David tells us, that his Flesh trembled for fear of God, and that he was afraid of God's Judgments. I may add, that the End of God's Judgments, is the glory of God's Holines, the Conversion and Humiliation of some, and the hardening of others. Witness the Prodigal, Pharaob and others: But it's Time to proceed to the Improvement of this Subject. And

Ift. We fhould be cautious of abufing God's Mercy, let us beware that we fuck not Poifon out of that fweet Flower. To take encouragement to go on in Sin, becaufe of God's Mercy, is the vileft Inflance of Ingratitude, and juftly expopoles to an agravated Condemnation, abus'd Mercy turns into enrag'd Fury and Vengeance, Deut. xxix. 19. If he blef. himfelf faying, I skall have Peace, the' I walk after the Imagination of my Heart, to add Drunkenefs to Thirft. The Lord will not fpare him, but the Anger of the Lord and his 'fealoufy, skall finoak against that Man, and all the Curfes that are written in this Book, shall lie upon him.

2dly. The Mercy of God offers Encouragement and Support to the People of God in all their Diftreffes, whether outward or inward! Are they afflicted with outward Straits? The Merciful God who is their Shepherd, will not fuffer them to want, but make their Bread and Waters fure! He that hears and feeds the Ravens, will furely hear and help his Children! Have they backfliden from God, and are they labouring to be forrowfully fentible hereof? Then may they encourage themfelves in this, that all God's Ways are Mercy and Truth, and that the Mercy of Jehovah endureth for ever ! He will begin and end with Mercy, and fuch as are under the first Convictions of Sin, may take Encourage-S s 2

ment from the Mercy of God, which is great above the Heavens, and moft freely difpenfed upon the vileft Creatures! Mercy confiders not what one deferves, but what he needs! God is more inclin'd to Mercy than Wrath; Justice and Judgment is bis strange Work, but Mercy is bis Delight. Mic. vii. 18. " It's delightful to the Mother, fayeth Chry-" foftome, to have her Breafts drawn; so it is to God, to " have the Breafts of his Mercy drawn." The Almighty is flow to Anger, but ready to forgive, Pfal. lxxxvi. 5. Let us therefore entertain honourable Thoughts of God's Mercy, and trust in it forever, (Píal. lii. 8.) What greater En-couragement can there be to believe, than the Mercy of God. Mercy is one of the most orient Pearls of the Crown of God; he reckons it his Glory to be conferring Pardons upon penitent Tranfgreffors! And therefore he invites poor Sin-ners to come and lay hold on his Mercy, Rev. xxii. 17. Who-foever will, let bim come and take of the Water of Life freely ! Mercy woo's Sinners in the most importunate moving and condescending Strains. Ifa. lv. 1. Ho every one that thirsteth, come ye to the Waters, and he that hath no Money come ye, buy and eat ; come, buy Wine and Milk, without Come ye, buy and eat; come, buy Wine and Milk, without Money and without Price! And what Joy does the Al-mighty express when Sinners accept of the Proposals of his Mercy, when the Prodigal Son return'd from his Wandrings how much did it please the indulgent Father, who made a Feast to express his Joy on that Occasion? We should be induced to enquire into the State of our Souls, in order to know whether we have an Interest in the face of Octas and South Face with the mission has

We fhould be induced to enquire into the State of our Souls, in order to know whether we have an Intercfl in the fpecial Mercy of God or not! For it will be miferable and ruining to us in the Iffue, if we content ourfelves with common Mercies! Now we may be help'd to determine this important Point, by an Impartial comparing of ourfelves with the following Particulars, viz. 1ft. Such who The Mercy of God apply'd. 325 who have an Interest in the special Mercy of God, have been (if of adult Age when converted) made sensible of their Misery without it, and their unworthiness of it, with the Prodigal and Publican.

2dly. They have been ftir'd up to folicitous Enquiries how they might obtain an Intereft therein, Act. ii. 37. 3dly. Such have deliberately and without Referve confented to embrace CHRIST JESUS (the Fountain of Mercy) in all his Offices and Relations, and refolv'd to bear his Crofs, and obey his Laws. (Job. i. 12.)

Crofs, and obey his Laws. (Job. i. 12.) 4thly. And in Confequence hereof they find the general Byafs of their Affections going towards God and a habitual Carefulnefs to do the Things that are pleafing to him. Now those who upon Examination find themselves deftitute of the aforetaid Characters, fhould, in order to obtain Mercy, 1ft. Think feriously upon all the Kindnesses of Heaven towards them, together with their innumerable Sins against those Mercies, and the Dangers to which they are thereby expos'd. 2dly Attend with Diligence upon the preached Word; for it is by the Foolishness of preaching, that God faves those that believe. 3dly. Bewail your Sins against the Mercies of God. Let the Goodness of God lead you to Repentance. 4thly. Try to reform your Lives, Let the Wicked Man forfake bis Ways, and the Unrighteous Man bis Thoughts, and turn unto God, for be will have Mercy upon him, and to our God, for be will abundantly pardon. And 5thly. Pray earnestly and frequently to God for Mercy, in the Name of CHRIST with Fear and Hope.

And let me exhort those that have obtain'd the special Mercy of God, to walk worthy of it, 1st. Praise God for his Mercy in the Pfalmist's Language, Pfa. ciii. 1. Blefs the Lord O my Soul, and all that is within me blefs his

boly Name. Such as have been Monuments of Mercy, fhould be Trumpets of Praife.

2dly. Love God. Mercy is a powerful Excitement to this, Pfa. xviii. I. I will Love thee O Lord my Strength, Surely that Heart is harder than Marble andAdamant, which Mercy will not melt. "I would bate my own Scul (faith "Auftin) if I did not find it loving God." We fhould love God for outward Comforts, but much more for fpecial and enduring Mercies.

3dly. Let us imitate the Mercy of God in fhewing Mercy to our fellow Creatures, God is the Father of Mercy, fhew yourfelves to be his Children, by being like him. It was a juft Obfervation of Ambrofe, "That the Sum of Re-"ligion is to be rich in Works of Mercy." O let the Lamp of our Profefiion be fill'd with the Oyl of Mercy! And to this our dear Lord exhorts us, Mat. vi. 36. Be merciful as your Father alfo is merciful.

But let the Defpifers and Abulers of Mercy, who go on in a Courle of any of the Evils before mentioned, which procure the Judgments of God, be intreated to repent and reform fpeedily, otherwife ye may expect the dreadful Effects of divine Severity in fome or all of the Inftances thereof before expressed! By your ungrateful Returns for Mercies receiv'd, You treasure up Wrath against the Day of Wrath, and the Revelation of the righteous Judgment of Gcd. Tho' God be Gracicus and Merciful, flow to Wrath, yet be will by no means clear the Guilty.

SERMON XVII.

EXODUS xxxiv. 6.

And the Lord paffed by before him, and proclaimed, the Lord, the Lord God, Merciful and Gracious, Long-fufferring.

OU may remember that in the preceeding Sermon upon this Text, after the Explication of it, I difcourfed upon the Mercy of God. The next divine Attribute that comes now, according to the Order of our Text, to be confider'd, is the Grace of God. The Lord is Merciful and Gracious.

There is Nothing more frequently mentioned in Scripture, than the Grace of God. I fhall mention but a few Paffages, for if I fhould take Notice of all, I must transcribe a great part of the Bible. Ephef. i. 6. To the Praife of the Glory of his Grace, wherein he hath made us accepted in the Beloved. Pfal. cxii. 14. He is Gracious and full of Compaffion. 2 Cor. xiii. 14. The Grace of our Lord JESUS CHRIST, and the Love of God be with you all. In fpeaking upon this Subject, I purpofe,

I. To explain its Nature.

II. Shew its Kinds.

III. Mention fome Confiderations, ferving to manifest its Sovereignty and Glory.

IV,

٤.

IV. Confider what is realy and feemingly oppos'd thereto, and then proceed to fome Improvement.

I return to confider the first propos'd, which was to explain the Nature of the Grace of God. Now the Word Grace fignifies fomething that is free, as was observ'd in the preceeding Sermon, and it is taken two Ways, either for an Attribute of God, which is in God, or for the Gift of God, which is from God. In the first Sense the Grace of God fignifies his free and fovereign Benevolence, by which he peculiarly favours and doth Good to his Creatures, whence God is call'd Gracious as in our Text, i. e. Endow'd with Grace. As from his Goodness he is call'd Good, and from his Juffice Juft. The Gifts of God, which are the Effects of the Grace that is in him, are metonimicaly call'd Grace, especially such of them as are Peculiar and Special, i. e. Such as are confer'd upon fome, rather than others. Hence fome Divines observe, that the Word Grace intends either 1ft. The Grace freely Giving, (Matt. xi. 26.) Which they term (Gratiam gratis dantem,) or the free Favour of God, or the Grace freely given, (which they call Gratiam gratis datam.) And this imports any Kind of Benefit which the Almighty confers upon his Creatures, whether Good or Bad, which makes them not in the least the more acceptable to God. Or thirdly the Grace which makes acceptable, (which they term Gratiam gratum facientem) viz. All the faving Gifts of God, Faith, Hope, Charity, by which we pleafe him.

Now the Grace of God may be thus deferibed viz. That is a Property of the Deity, whereby he is inclin'd to diffense undeferved Kindnesses upon his Creatures freely, and in a fovereign Way. The Diffensations of Grace have no Dependance upon any Dignity, or Merit of Creatures upon whom Benefits are confer'd. (Rom. xi 6.) But the whole Reafon fon thereof is the good Pleafure of God's Will, (Mat. xi. 26.) which refpects all Creatures, even to the nobleft Angels. Whatever any of thefe enjoy, they have it of Grace, for who among all created Beings, has first given to God,, and it fhall be reompenfed to him again Rom. xi. 35. In the mean Time, thefe Things are more properly and peculiarly afcrib'd to Grace, which are different from Nature. Nature and Grace should not be confounded; such Things as by the kind Conftitution of God, belong to every Creature according to their different kinds, are not usually call'd Grace, because, they be undue, yet they belong to Nature. But to make this more plain, let us confider the

2d. Propos'd, which was to fpeak of the Kinds of Grace; and here it may be obferv'd, that Grace is Three-fold, viz. Univerfal, common, and faving. And

Ift. Univerfal Grace is that, whereby Jebovah difpenfes natural Things upon all his Creatures, and hence he is call'd the Savieur of all Men. 1 Tim. iv. 10. And is faid to preferve Man and Beaft. Pla. xxvi. 6. He caufes his Sun to rife upon the Fields of the Evil and the Good, and fends his Rain upon the Just and Unjust: He gives to Man Life, Health, Strength, and all the Supports he enjoys therein, all which being undeferv'd, may be call'd Grace; but according to the Ulage of Scripture and Antiquity, they feldom and lefs properly bear that Name.

2 dly. Common Grace confilts in the Communication of moral good Things upon Men promifcuoufly, whether they be good or bad, cleft or not cleft, fuch as natural Wildom and Prudence, and all the Train of moral Vertues, in which even fome Pagans have excell'd. And to thefe we may add, all outward religious Priviledges and Means of Grace; together with those transfert Effects which are fometimes produced, by them upon the Unregenerate, fuch as forme kind of Illu-T t mination. mination, and Stirrings of religious Affection. In a Word all those commonOperations of the Holy Spirit, which are not follow'd by a habitual and faving Change, must be aferib'd hereto. Of these mention is made Heb. vi. 4. 5, 6. and alfo in the Parable of the Sower, Mat. xiii. 20, 21. But be that received the Sec. I into Stony Places, the fame is be that beareth the Word, and anon with foy receiveth it, yet bath be not Root in kimfelf, but dureth for a while, for when Tribulation or Perfocution ariseth, because of the Word, by and by he is offended. But

3 dly. Saving Grace is that undue or undeferved Live of God, whereby he confers upon the Elect only, faving Benefits, of his own meer good Plequere. Here oblerve

Ift. That it is Love, or the kind Inclination or Propenfion of God's Will to communicate good to his Elect.

2dly. It is undue, undeferved Love. The Objects of this Love, confider'd as Creatures, can merit no Good at the Hand of God, feeing they have receiv'd their All from him, furely they cannot put the Almighty in their Debt, by giving him what is his own; and confider'd as Sinners, who by their voluntary Tranfgreffion, have fallen flort of his Glory, they deferve his high and dreadful Difpeafure.

3 dly. It is diffinguifing Love, manifelted to the Elect in a fovereign Way, according to the good Pleafure of Cod's Will. Ephef. i. 9. That is given to one which is denied to another, and only becaufe it is God's Pleafure. Hence is that Querry of one of CHRIST'S Difficies. Yohn xiv. 22. Lord how is that them will menifold they felf to us, and not to the World And does not our Lord himfelf, thank his eternal Father for the Difplays of his Soverei (nty in this Refpect, Mat. xi. 25, 26. I thank thee O Father, Lord of Heacen and Earth, becaufe them had there Things from the Wife and Prudent, and revealed them unto Babes, even fo Eather,

Election of pure Grace.

Father, for foit feemed good in thy Sight. It is but a few, a Remnant of the failen Race of Mankind, upon whom God is pleafed to vouchfafe, and in whom he is pleafed to glorify, his fpecial Grace Luke xiii. 24. Rom. ix. 2, 7. Etaias cryeth alfo concerning Ifrael, tho' the Islumber of the Children of Ifreel, be as the Sand of the Sca, a Remnant fhall be faved.

4thly. It is efficience Love, which confers faving Benefits, hence it is call'd the Grace of God, which Uningeth Salvation. Tit. ii. 11. And the Bieffings it vouchfafes, are term'd Things that accompany Salvation Ech. vi. 9. And hence the Palmift prays, Pf. evi. 4. Remember me G Lord, with the Favour that they heared unto thy People. O wild me with they Salvaon I that I may fee the Good of thy Clefon, that I may rejoyce in the Gladness of they Nation, that I may glory with thine Inheritance. And here it may be needflary to observe particolarly that divine Love confers freely upon the Elect, or Concerts, for them the following important Benefits, viz.

1st. Election, this is free and gracious, without Faith or Works forefeen Rom. xi. 5. Even fo then, at this prefent Time alfo, there is a Remnant according to the Election of Grace. Ephef. i. 5. Having predefinated us, unto the Adoption of Children, by JESUS CHRIST to himfelf according to the good Pleasure of his Will. If it be by Grace it is no more of Works, etherwise Grace would be no more Grace, and Works would be no more Works. Rom. xi. 6. To the fame Effect the Apostle elfewhere observes That it is not of him that willeth, nor of kim that runnich, but of Ged these flowerth Mercy, Rom. iv. 16. It is inconfistent with the Independency and Immutability of God, to suppose that any Thing without him, should alter or incline his Will.

2 dly. Redemption is likewife of Free Grace. The contrivance of this Scheme of Happineis, zs well as the fending of the bickled Son of God to effect it, by his Obedience and T t 2 Sufferings, and Sufferings were marvellous Difplays of the Fathers pure Affection to a miserable World ! I John vi. 10. Herein is Love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and fent his Son to be the Propitiation for our Sins. And to what elfe than Free Grace, can we afcribe God the Father's Acceptance, of the Suretyfhip of CHRIST in the Sinners Room and Place? Strict Juffice certainly demands perfonal Satisfaction; and does not the Love of CHRIST pafs Knowledge, in that he who is over all God bleffed for ever came into a State of the loweft Abafement, voluntarily to fave worthlefs Duft from perpetual Ruin ? How fweetly does the Apofile Paul fpeak to this Effect ? 2 Cor. viii. 9. For ye know the Grace of our Lord JE-SUS CHRIST that the' he was Rich, yet for your Sakes he became Poor, that ye thro' his Powerty might be Rich. Befides it may be here obferv'd, that Redemption by the Satisfaction of CHRIST, is frequently in Scripture reftrain'd to a certain Number, who are call'd the People of God, the Sheep of CHRIST, and tuch as were given to him by his Father Mat. i. 21. John x. 15. xvii. 9.

Albeit the Blood of the Son of God be of infinite Value, and therefore the Sati-faction made by it, may in this refpect be faid to be univerfal; yet inafinuch as it was neither the Defign of the Eather, nor the Son, that it should be fpent for all, fo as to be faved by it. It is therefore to be referred to fingular Grace. Moreover

3 dly. The Application of Redemption in all it's Branches, is of Free Grace, as may appear by the following Induction of Particulars, viz.

1ft. Effectual Calling, is faid to be according to Gea's Purpofe. Rom. viii. 29.

2dly. Faith is call'd the Gift of Cod, Ephef. ii. S. For by Grace are ye fav'd thro' Faith, and that not of your felves, it is the Gift of God. 3dly. Jufification and Adoption of free Grace.

3dly. Conversion is not of Flesh, or Blood nor of the Will of Man but of God. None of these Graces which I have mentioned, are the Fruits of Free Will: For we are not fufficient to think any Thing as of curstelves, but our fufficiency is of God. 2 Cor. iii. 5. No they are all the Fruits of the Spirit. Gal. v. 22. Who produces them not by moral Swafion like poor Creatures, but by an Almighty creating Power, taking away the Stony Heart, and giving a Heart of Flesh. (1 Cor. iii. 5, 6. Pf. li. 10. Ezek. xxxvi. 26, 27.) And 4thly. Justification, whereby an elect Sinner is freed from the Guilt of Sin, and hath a Right to eternal Happinels, is of free Grace. Rom. iii. 24. Being justified freely by bis Grace, thro' the Redemption that is in CHRIST JESUS. It is entirely without Works, Gal. ii. 16. Knowing that a Man is not justify'd by the Works of the Law, but by the Faith of JESUS CHRIST,----For by the Works of the Law shall no Flesh be justified ?

5thly. Our Adoption or Right to the important Priviledges of Children, and joint Heirship with CHRIST is also of pure Grace, Ephes. i. 4, 6, Having predessinated us unto the Adoption of Children by JESUS CHRIST to himself, according to the good Pleasure of his Will, to the Praise of the Giory of his Grace, wherein he hath made us accepted in the beloved.

6thly. Our Salvation, in regard of the Right thereto, is of Grace. And hence eternal Life is faid to be the Gift of God, thro' JESUS CHRIST our Lord, Rom. vi. 23. And elfewhere we are faid expressly to be fav'd by Grace, Epbef. ii. 8. In the mean Time it should be remembred, that good Works are the Way to the Kingdom, tho' they be not the Caufe of our reigning, as Barnard of old obferv'd. Tho' our Right to Happiness is of Grace, as was before obferv'd, yet the Almighty hath by his gracious Constitution, fo ordered dered the Matter, that good Works are necessary to the Possessient of it. (Mat. xxv. 21, 34, 35.) I proceed to the

3d. Propos'd, which was to mention fome Confiderations ferving to manifeft the Sovercignty and Glory of God's Grace. And 1ft. Methinks the Glory of divine Grace appears by confidering the Author of it, who is a Being infinitely and invariable Happy in himfelf, as well as effentially and eternally Glorious : And fo neither needs the Services of Creatures, nor can be benefited by them. Our Goodnefs extends not to him, neither is it any Gain to the Almighty that we are Righteous. To acknowledge God's Glory, adds no more to its Luftre than fpeaking well of the natural Sun adds to its Beauty.

It may be here alfo obferv'd, that Jeloush would have had Millions of Angels to celebrate his Praife and execute his Pleafure, altho' he had made his Juffice triumph in the Ruin of the whole human Race; which certainly he might have done. Or he could have form'd innumerable Creatures of a more noble Order, than any of the Creation to celebrate the Glory of his Attributes, if it had fo pleas'd his Majefly: For he is Almighty in Power, hath the refidue of the Spirit, and can raile up Children even out of the Stones to Abram. But 2dly. Let us confider the Object upon which this divine Grace is conferr'd, and we shall find

Ift. That it is Man, not Angels. Our Saviour took not on him the Nature of Angels, but the Seed of Abram; because he defign'd to fave the one, and to referve these that fell of the other, in Chains under Darkness, unto the Judgment of the great Day. What is Map but Dust and Afnes? A Worm that is crush'd before the Moth, altogether unworthy of the kind Notice of the great and glonices rious God! How amazing is the diffinguishing Grace of God in passing by Creatures of a higher Order, and fixing his Love upon Man?

2 dly. It is Sinners, upon whom divine Grace is confer'd. Man by Creation was but Duft, but by Sin he is become polluted Duft, and fo Odious and Loathfome, as well as Wretched and Miferable ! And this doleful State he has wilfully brought himfelf into, and wilfully continues in against all the Remonstrances of Confcience, against all the kind Importunities of a condefeending God and Saviour ! Man by Sin has brought this twofold Mifery upon him-felf, 1ft. That he deferves no Good. And 2dly. That he deforves all Evil! How can thefe deferve Good at the Hand of God, whole Perfons and Performances are cover'd with Deformity and Pollution? Indeed we deferve not the least common Mercy, how much less then can we merit special Benefits? Gen. xxxii. 10. I am not worthy of the least of all the Mercies, and of all the Truth which thou hast forto'd unto thy Servant ! Men in a State of Nature are unprofitable Creatures, they are neither prepar'd to receive Benefits, nor able to propare themselves, feeing they are dead in Sins and Trefpaffes. And by their multiply'd Impieties they deferve the divine Difpleafure, and provoke him to inflict it. As they are Children of Wrath by Nature, fo they weary the Almighty by continued Iniquities in Practice, (Epb./. ii. 3. 1/a. xliii. 24.) And 3dly. The Perfons to whom divine Grace is given, are Enemies to God, both in their Minds and Lives, Rom. viii. 7. The Carnal Mind is Enmity against God, for it is not Subject to the Law of God, neither indeed can be ! Now Enmity imports a high Degree of fixed and implacable Spite, O dreadful State ! This inward Enmity, unregenerate Sinners bewray by their Rebellion against God, in Practice Practice and cruel Confederacies with his declared Enemies Col. i. 21. And you that were fometime allienated, and Enemies in your Mind by wicked Works, yet now hath he reconciled.

4thly. It is generally the poorer and meaner Sort of Men, that are favour'd with divine Grace, while the Rich, Honourable, and Great are paffed by. Many who make a confiderable Figure in the World by the Keenefs of their natural and acquired Endowments, and by the Splendor of their outward Circumftances, who are entirely deftitute of fpecial Grace, while others who are Poor and defpis'd are favour'd therewith! This Subject the Apoftle Paul difcourfes largely upon, 1 Cor. i. 26,---28. Not many Mighty, not many Neble are call'd, but God kath chofen the fooligh Things of the World, to confound the Wife, and the Weak Things of the World, to confound the Things that are Mighty; and bafe Things of the World, and Things which are delpis'd, hath God chofen; yea Things that are not, to bring to nought Things that are.

5thly. Many of those to whom divine Grace is given, were before Conversion notorious Sinners, some Blasshemers, Perfecutors, and Injurious : These Things the Apostle Paul aferibes to himself, he shut up many of the Saints in Prifon, confented to their Death, Punish'd them in every Synagogue, compell'd them to Blassheme, and being exceeding mad against them, he perfecuted them to strange Cities. (Act. xxvi. 10. 11.- 1 Tim. i. 13, 15.) Some, before Conversion, have been Idolaters, as the Epbessians. Some Fornicators, Adulterers, Effeminate, Abujers, of themselves with Mankind, Thieves, Covetous, Drunkards, Revilers, Extortioners, such were some of the Corintbians, and yet they were wash'd, fanctist'd and jussified 1. Cor. vi. 9. 11. O rich and glorious Grace ! How admirable is the Grace of God, in the Inftance of Manaffeb's Conversion ? Who tho' a Conjurer a Murderer, and one who despis'd God, and bid defiance to Heaven in Prosperity, yet when in Adversity he humbled himself and made Supplication to Jehovah, was graciously heard and accepted. (2 Chron. xxxiii. 9, 12, 13.) I shall only add the famous Instance of Mary Magdalen, who was a notorious Sinner. This poor Woman loved much, because much was forgiven her; her Heart was so melted with a Sense of divine Goodness, that she could wash our Lords Feet with her Tears! (Luke vii.)

3dly. The Glory of divine Grace appears not only from it's Author and Object, but also from the Seafon in which it is vouchfaf'd. The Almighty beftows Benefits upon his People, at fuch Seafons, when they are most fuitable. In the Mount of Difficulty and Distress, the Lord is seen, yea he is a very present Help in Trouble. When Sinners have wearied themfelves in the greatness of their Way, and thro' a Series of Difappointments are brought to the last Extremity, the bleffed God manifests his Grace and Mercy! And thus when gracious Perfons are encircled with manifold Miferies, outward and inward, and their forrowful Hearts are ready to fink into Defpondency, with a long continu'd oppreflive Weight of Woe, from which they can hardly fee any way of Deliverance; they are defolate and afflicted, their Hearts almost overwhelm'd, then Jehovah sends Deliverance ! (Pfa. xxv. 16, 17.) And they are as those that dreamed. When the compaffionate Jehovah returns to his People, after their finful Wandrings from him. O! It makes them admire the pure and glorious Riches of divine Grace! And truly the Lord teaches his People more and more of this Doctrine, namely, the freeness of his Grace, while they are in the World. And 4thly.

338 The Sovereignty and Glory of Free Grace.

4thly The freenefs of divine Grace appears likewife from the Manner in which divine Benefits are confer'd e.g. we contribute nothing to the Change wrought upon us by Conversion. The natural Byafs of our Wllls is against it, and this Reluctance and Opposition remains, until it be overcome by the Almighty Power of God, who is hence faid to make his People a willing People in the Day of his Power. Pfal. ciii. That Alteration of Dispositions which is imply'd in Conversion, is not defir'd by the Sinner before it; tho' unregenerate Sinners defire to be deliver'd from Mitery, yet they do not defire to be deliver'd from Sin the Cause of it! For that is as their right Eye, and right Arm ! Well then feeing those Benefits whereby the Soul is fanctified are undeferv'd, undefir'd, yea oppos'd by the unconverted, furely then they must be freely vouchfaf'd. But

5thly, The Riches of divine Grace appear from the Nature of the Benefits confer'd; which are attended with thefe two following Properties, viz. Freedom from the greatest Evils, and a Right to, and Possession of, the greatest Good. Sinners while in a State of Unregeneracy are immers'd in, and expos'd to the greatest Evils, both moral and penal. They are under the Dominion of Sin, and all over tainted by it; and by Realon thereof they are expos'd to the Curfe and Wrath of God, in this and the next World. They are in a Dungeon of Darkness and Distrets, in a Pit in which there is no Water ! Bound and fhackled with the heavy Curfe of God, void of Light and Beauty, and cover'd with the bafeft Deformity ! Now the Benefits of divine Grace, bring the Sinner from this Depth of Woe, loofe his Shakles, and releafe him out of Prison! Hereby he is freed from the Guilt of Sin, thro' the Righteouínels of CHRIST imputed to him, and hereby he is freed from the Dominion of it, thro' the fanctifying Influences of the Holy

Holy Spirit; and as he is thus freed frrom the greateft Evils by divine Grace, to he is thereby entitled to, and made a Poffeffor of the greateft Good, both Phyfical and moral, being made a Partaker of the divine Love, and beautified with the Divine Image, viz. Holinets. By the former he is refresh'd, and by the latter adorn'd. And as he is under the unerring Conduct and Almighty Protection of God here, fo he is entitled to the perfect Enjoyment of God hereafter; which is the greatest Good, that it is possible for a Creature to receive. I proceed to the

4th. Propos'd, which was to confider, what is really and feemingly oppos'd to the Grace of God. Now the Things that are oppos'd really, are thefe two, viz, Nature and Merit. And

1ft. Nature. Hereby we are Children of Wrath, being dead in Trespasses and Sins, Eph. ii. 1, 3. By Nature we have blind Minds, and stony Hearts, neither different the Things that be of God, nor are willing to be subject thereto, 1 Cor. ii. 14. The natural Man understands not the Things of the Spirit of God, nither can be different them, because they are spiritually differented, Rom. viii. 7. The carnal Mind is Enmity against God, it is not subject to the Law of God, neither indeed can be. Nature in its present fallen and corrupted State, fights against the Grace of God, as long as it can. And therefore the Citadel of Man's Heart, must be taken by Storm, if the King of Glory takes Possession of it. And 2dly The Papal Dostrine of the Merits of Works, in the Business of Justification, directly opposes the Grace of God: For Grace is undue and undeferved Love, as was shewn before Rom. iii. 28. We conclude that a Man is justified by Faith, without the Deeds of the Law. If it be of Works, it is no more of Grace, otherwise Works would be no moreWorks, and Grace would be no more Grace. But to proceed.

3dly

3dly. The Wrath of God is feemingly oppos'd to Grace. Now the Wrath of God is no other, than his vindicative Juffice, or Difposition to punish the Guilty; which includes three Things in it.

1st. A Purpose of punishing the Transgressor, Rom. i. 18. For the Wrath of God is revealed from Heaven, against all Ungodliness and Unrighteousness of Men, who hold the Truth in Unrightcousness.

2dly. It includes the Denunciation of the aforefaid Purpofe by Threatnings Pf. vii. 11, 12, 13. God is angry with the Wicked every Day, if he turn not be will whet his Sword, he hath bent his Bow and made it ready. He hath alfo prepar'd for him the Instrument of Death he ordaineth his Arrows against the Perfecutors, 3dly. It includes the Execution of the Threatnings, by all Kinds of Revenge and Judgments. Ephef. v. 6. Let no Man deceive you, with vain Words, for because these Things, cometh the Wrath of God upon the Children of Difohedience, i.e. Fruits and Effects of Wrath in divine Judgments. Sin wrongs the Almighty by infulting his Sovereignty and Legiflative Authority, by contradicting his unfpotted Holinefs, and by flight-ing the Riches of his Goodnefs. By Sin God is wrong'd, and rob'd of that Tribute of Honour and Service which is due to him, from all created Beings, by the ftrongeft claims of Right, viz. Creation, Prefervation, Provision: And fome are under the additional Engagement of redeeming Love. It is Sin therefore, that ftirs up the divine Wrath, and because there be various Aggravations of Sin, therefore there are various Degrees of Wrath excited thereby, and proportion'd thereto. And hence the Scriptures fpeaking after the manner of Men, make mention of God's hot Difpleafure Fury, and Rage, Pf. vi. 1. Ezek. viii. 18. Therefore will I also deal in Fury, mine Eye shall not spare, neither will 7

I have Pity, and they they cry in mineEars, with a loud Voice, yet I will not hear them. Job xl. II. Caft abroad the Rage of thy Wrath. Thefe Expressions do not fignify any Tumult of Passion in God, for he is incapable of Passion, being simple, immutable, and perfect ! They ferve therefore only to represent the great contrariety of the Nature of God to Sin, as well as the more dreadful Effects of his Wrath upon heinous Transgressions! But in the mean Time, it may be observ'd, that the Wrath of God in every Instance of it is terrible, and irressistable; because it proceeds from an infinite and Almighty God. And hence it's compar'd to a burning Fire, and to a Whirkwind, that fweeps all before it. Zeph. i. And except Repentance intervene, it will be continual and eternal.

Altho' the Doctrine of Free-Grace has been abus'd into Licentioufnefs, by fome fordid Spirits, which the Apoftle Paul mentions with great Abhorrence ! Rom. vi. 1, 2. Shall we continue in Sin that Grace may abound, God forbid ! Yet it's Defign and Tendency is to promote the Contrary. And indeed nothing more powerfully incites an ingenuous Mind to Holineis, than the Confideration of God's free and diftinguishing Grace. And here it is to be noted, that tho' Almighty God, gives his Grace freely, that fo no Creature should have Occasion of boasting or glorying in his Presence. Yet ordinarily he vouchiafes it in the Use of appointed Means ; that fo there may be no Umbrage for Negligence, but on the Contrary, all that excitement to Duty, which can confift with the divine Sovereignty! These Things are excellently reprefented in the xxxvith chap. of Ezek. from the xxvith to the xxxvith verie there. Tho' the Almighty promifes to confer faving Benefits, yet he tells them, that for all these Things, he will be enquired of by them. But it's Time to offer a Word of improvement. And rft.

Ift. From what has been faid we may learn, that all those Doctrines which ascribe any Part of our Salvation, to our Endeavours, as meritorious Causes thereof, are very derogatory to the Glory of God, and the Design of his Gofpel; which is to magnify the Exceeding Riches of God's Grace! Epbesf. i. Such who seek after Righteousses of God's Grace! Epbesf. i. Such who seek after Righteousses is were by the Works of the Law are not like to attain it. Justification is not to be attain'd by a Dependance upon our Endeavours, we must come to God as Beggars, and ask an Alms of Free-Grace, otherwise we shall be rejected.

2dly. We fhould examine ourfelves whether we are Partakers of God's fpecial Grace, in the Inftances before mentioned, of effectual Calling, Faith, Juftification, Converfion, Adoption; have we by thefe Things been brought to a high prizing of CHRIST above all others, to a Child-like Familiarity with God, to a habitual holy, humble, heavenly and loving Temper of Mind, and Courfe of Behaviour, if fo, let us rejoyce in CHRIST JESUS in all outward Diftreffes, let us ever admire the Sovereign and diftinguifhing Grace of God; and give to God the Glory of it in Heart, Speech, and Practice.

But fuch of you as have not found the aforefaid Experiences, rejoyce not for Joy, as other People, for ye have gone a whoring from God! Let your Laughter be turn'd into Mourning and your Joy into Heavinefs! Cry frequently and earneftly to God, for fovereign faving Grace, and reft in no Duties or Ordinances fhort of it.

Is the Grace of God free? Then the greateft Tranfgretfors fhould not defpair of God's Mercy, tho' your Iniquities rival the Stars for Multitude, and in their Agravations are red as Crimfon and Scarlet, yet Free Grace can eafily blot them out, as a thick Cloud, and make them white as Snow! Therefore let fenfible Sinners, be encouraged to come to, and believe in the God of Grace : For where Sin has ahounded

bounded, there Grace kas much more abounded. The greater your Tranfgreffions are, the greater Glory God will get to his Grace in forgiving them ! The Pfalmift was aware of this, and therefore plead with God, to pardon his Iniquities becaufe they were exceeding great. And methinks the Doctrine of Free Grace fhould power-

And methinks the Doctrine of Free Grace flould powerfully induce us to Humility, feeing that it is God only, who has made us to differ from others, and that we have nothing but what we have receiv'd. We are his Debtors, for all we have in Hand or Hope. The Nature of Grace fuppofes the Object, upon whom it is vouchfaf'd, unworthy of it. A continued humbling Senfe of this, would as much conduce to our Benefit, as Ornament.

And feeing the good God is pleas'd to heap many undeferved Kindneffes freely upon us, why fhould we not imitate his Grace, by conferring Benefits upon our fellow Creatures, without any regard to Dignity, or Hopes of a reward from them : By this we fhould glorify God and convince others that we are his Children.

In fine, let me in the Name of the gracious God my Lord and Mafter, earneftly befeech poor Sinners of every Order to haften as for their Lives to that Fountain of Grace that is in CHRIST. Think not to put the Almighty in your Debt by your doings, for if Grace be not Free it is not Grace. Sinners abufe not the Grace of God by Delays, and other Impieties, or expect his inflam'd Wrath to avenge the Ingratitude ! Let the wicked Man forfake his Way, and the unrighteous Man his thot's, and turn unto God and he will have Mercy on him, and to our God for he will abundantly Eardon.

I add no more at prefent, may the Almighty and gracious God blefs his Word, that has been offer'd in his Name to our special and enduring Benefit. Amen.

SERMON XVIII.

EXODUS xxxiv. 6.

And the Lord paffed by before him, and proclaimed, the Lord, the Lord God, Merciful and Gracious, Long-fuffering.

H Aving in the preceeding Sermon difcours'd upon the Grace of God. The next divine Attribute that offers it felf to our prefent Meditations from the Text, is the Patience and Long-fuffering of God. And this the facred Scriptures frequently afcribe to him, Nahum i. 3. The Lord is flow to anger and great in Power. Pfa. ciii. 8. The Lord is Gracious and Merciful, Now to-Anger, and plentious in Mercy. Ita. xxx. 18. And therefore will the Lord wait that he may be Gracious unto you .-----

In discourfing upon this divine Attribute of Patience, or Long-fuffering, I shall I. Speak of its Nature.

II. Of its Riches.

III. Of its Reafons. And

IV. Of its Confiftency with vindicative Juflice. And then proceed to the Improvement. I return to the

Ift. Propos'd, which was to fpeak of the Nature of divine Patience. Here it may be observ'd, that tho' Patience and Long-fuffering in Creatures differ realy, for the former feems only to fignify our inability to punish an Offender, and the latter our Unwillingness to do it, when in our Power

Power, but in God they are the fame, and can be only diftinguish'd, as to the Degree of Duration or Continuance. Long-fuffering is only a Sufpension of Wrath for a longer Time : This being the Cafe I shall not therefore treat of them diffinctly, but proceed to observe, that the Patience of God may be thus defcrib'd, viz. That it is a Branch of his Mercy whereby he long defers deferved Wrath, and mo-derates the Executions of it in this World towards guilty Creatures. Here observe ift. That the Object of God's Patience, is guilty Creatures. " An innocent Creature " cannot be the Object of it, because avenging Justice " has no Demand upon him, he may be the Object of "Goodnefs, but not of Long-fuffering and Forbearance : " For Punishment cannot be faid to be defer'd where it " is not due." 2dly The Asts of Patience, are 1st. God's defering the Execution of deferv'd Wrath for a Time: And this proceeds neither from the Want of Power or Opportunity to punifh Tranfgreffors: For they are alwaysunder the Cognizance of God's Eye, and within the Reachof his Arm. He can in an Inftant fpeak them to nothing by a Word, or ftrike them dead and damned at a Blow, when and where he pleafes! No, his Patience is the Fruit of his Goodnefs, or rather as the Scripture Terms it, a Display of his Power. And hence he is faid, to be flow to Anger and great in Power, Nahum i. 3. and Rom. ix. 22. God is faid to make his Power known in enduring with much Long-fuffering, the Veffels of Wrath fitted to Destruction. And hence some describe God's Patience, to be a Power of defering the Execution of his Wrath. 2dly. Another Act of Patience confifts in the Moderation of Punishments when inflicted, fo that they are not equal to the defert of Sin. Pfal. ciii. 10. He hath not dealt with us after our Sins nor rewarded us according to our Iniquities. The Almighty flirs Xx not

not up all his Wrath at once, but punishes gradually. He stays his rough Wind in the Day of his East Wind, and trys Rods before he fends Scorpions. But 3dly. The Place were God exercifes his Patience, is this World, which is a ftate of Probation or Tryal, whereas the next is a flate of Re--wards and Punishments. The Damned cannot be faid to be the Objects of God's Patience, because they tendure the Viols of God's Vengeance, in a degree proportioned to their demerit. And altho' the Devils are not expos'd to fo great a Weight of Woe and Vengeance as they will be after the general Judgment; which is intimated, by their being referved in chains under Darkness to the Judgment of the great Day. Jud. 6. As well as by their Question to our Saviour, Mat. viii. 29. Art thou come to torment us before our Time? Yet this lefs degree of Punishment inflicted on them, has no where in Scripture the Denomination of Patience: It remains therefore that Men are the only Objects of it, and that while in this World. But 4thly. The Time wherein Patience is exercifed, is generally a long Duration, tho' not always: The juft God makes quick Work with fome, and lets his terrible feverity fuddainly triumph in their ruin, as in the Cafe of Korab and his Accomplices, Ananias and Saphira and others. But for the most Part Jehovah fuspends the falling Blow for a confiderable Seafon, even till there be no remedy! In civil Courts of Judicature, there is usually but a little Space between the Sentence and Execution, and it is but Juft it should be so. But Jehovah mercifully waits, and is not speedy in coming out against the Sinner. Eccles. viii. 11. Sentence against an evil Work is not speedily executed. The Almighty expostulates the Cafe and uses a variety of Niethods to reclaim impenitent Transgreffors, before he lets his Vengeance light upon them to destroy them. This is well reprefented prefented in the following Places of Scripture, Jer. ii. 5. Thus faith the Lord, what Iniquity have your Fathers found in me, that they have gone fo far from me, and have walked after Vanity and become vain? Jer. viii. 6. I hearkned and heard, but they fpake not aright, no Man repented him of his Wickednefs, faying what have I done. Every one turned to his Courfe, as the Horfe rusheth into the Battle ! I proceed to confider the Riches of divine Patience; which was the

The Riches of divine Patience.

2d. Propos'd. Now the following Particulars ferve as Foils to illustrate the Greatness of God's Patience; in forbearing to execute his Vengeance upon Transgressfors. And

If. Let it be confidered, that God is Infinite and unfpoted in Holinefs, and inflexible in his Juffice, and therefore cannot but abhor Sin with an unalterable and eternal. Antipathy. And 2dly. How great is the Offence committed againft God by every Sin? Seeing that the Sinner hereby interpretatively, prefers Creatures, yea his Lufts before the Bleffed God! And therefore as much as in him lies, labours to dethrone the Almighty. The exceeding contrariety of Sin to the untainted Purity of the divine Nature, is fet forth in ftrong Terms, accommodated to our Manner of Conception in the following Places of Scripture, Amos ii. 13. Bebold I am pre/s'd under you, as a Cart is prefs'd that is full of Sheaves. Ezek. vi. 9. I am broken with their whorifb Heart, which bath departed from me !

3 dly. The Heighnousself of some Sins above others, ferveto heighten our Conceptions of the divine Patience : All Iniquities are not equally aggravated, some are of a flighter Tincture, and some of a crimson Hue; a deep a double Dye, (Ifa. i. 18.) And such are Sins against Light, Love, covenant Engagements, and Rebukes of Providence; and more especially our flighting and neglecting of the Lord X x 2.

JESUS CHRIST. Hereby the deareft Love is undervalu'd and the yearning Bowels of the moft compaffionate pity fpurn'd againft; yea the precious Blood of the adorable Imanuel trod under Foot, O aftonifhing monftrous Ingratitude! And more amazing Patience, that forbears executing deferv'd Vengeance upon fuch Tranfgreffors! And 4thly. What a prodigious Number of Sins are committed every Moment, yea of the vileft Kind? Surely innumerable Evils do compass us about, if the Tongue be a World of Iniquity, as the Apoftle James obferves, (Jam. iii. 6.) what then shall be faid of all the Members together; which are as to many Fountains of Impiety? Who then can understand his Errors? If the most Patient Man alive was to behold at once the Multitude of Evils which God beholds together with their Filthine's: Surely if it was in his Power the World would not fland many Moments! And yet the All-knowing infinitely holy God for bears bringing Judgment to the Plumet ! I fay forbears to fweep obstinate ungrateful Transgreffors off the Stage of Time into a deluge of endless Woe and Ruin, O aftonishing Patience ! Patience worthy of a God, and which none but he can exercife ! Tho' Sinners as it were fly in the Face of Jebovah, run upon the thick Boffes' of his Bucklers, bid Defience to Omnipotence, basely trample upon his Authority and his Lové, and by every impious Art try to provoke a God to Arms; as if they were stronger than he: Yet notwithstanding all this, Jehovah forbears to give the fatal Blow, behold and be astonish'd ye Heavens and Earth at this !- And 5thly. It adds Weight to this Argument, when we confider the Almightine's of the God of Patienee, how eafily, fpeedily, and fully can be averge all the Affronts that are caft upon his Honour, all the Invafions that are made made upon the Rights of Heaven? It coft him but a Word to make the Heavens and Earth exift, one Word of Jebovab would speak the Offender Dead, or make him cease to be! The Lord has a Sovereign Empire over the whole Universe; when he speaks all Nature trembles before him, the Thunder of his Power who can understand! Confider this therefore ye that forget God, least be tear you in Pieces when there shall be none to deliver. Pf. 1. 22.

6thly. Moreover the many Measures which divine Mercy uses to reclaim the Impenitent by the Word, Spirit Providence, in sits prosperous and adverse Affects, may: help us to admire the more at that Patience, which endured the Abufe of all. 2 Cor. v. 20. Now then we are Ambafan dors for CHRIST, as the' God did befeech you by us, Twe pray you in CHRIST's flead, be ye reconcil'd to. God !! And 7thly. We may add to what has been faid; the inimerable Benefits which the indulgent God without any Demerit oftentimes heaps upon the vilest Transgreffors. Pf. lxxiii. 12. Behold these are the ungodly who prosper in: the World, they increase in Riches ! Yea how Precious and : Important is the Treasure of Time which is confer'd upon all? Befides many other Benefits which the Seafon for this exercise would fail to innumerate ! Respecting all which we may accost the impenitent Sinner in the Language of Paul to the Romans xxiv. 5. Despifest thou the Riches of his Goodness and Forbearance, not knowing that the Goodnels of God leadeth thee to Repentance.

Sthly. The quick Difpatch that divine Justice has made with fome, witnels Uzza, Nadab, Abibu, Achan, Herod, and divers others, who perhaps all Circumstances confidered have not committed greater Evils than we, is a great Illustration of God's Long-fuffering towards us, Rom. xi. 22. Behold Behold the Goodness and Severity of God on them which fell Severity; but towards thee, Goodness, if thou continue in bis Goodness, otherwise thou also shall't be cut off!

othly. Once more me thinks the Length of the Time that Patience has been exercis'd towards us, is a pregnant Argument of the Greatness and Riches of it. Has not 7ebyvab reftrain'd; the Execution of his Wrath, and waited? to be Gracious to some of us, this Twenty, Thirty, Forty, Fifty, or Sixty Years ? While in the mean. Time we have been trampling upon his awful Authority, and flighting the dear Caraffes of his manifold Mercy, O amazing Patience ! When the Angels fin'd, they were quickly caft down to Hell, and made Monuments of divine Vengeance, and behold, we who have been Tranfgreffors from the Womb are yet spared! Surely, it had been nothing but an Act of Juffice in God to have caft every Soul of us into utter Darknefs, many a Year agone: And yet we are alive, and on this fide the burning Lake, and have the Offers of Mercy, and Salvation made to us, O the unparallel'd Patience of God ! O may his Long-fuffering lead us to Repentance, and be Salvation to us!

But that I may farther illustrate this Argument of the Riches of divine Patience, it will not be a miss to add the following Difplays thereof.

When our first Parents had revolted from their Duty and Allegiance to God, by Transgressing the Covenant of Works, and we in them. Might not God in Justice have made them and their Off-spring immediately and eternally Miserable, without any Hopes of a Retrieve ? Yes furely ! To what then can we ascribe the Delay of Justice and Expense of Goodness to them and us, but to the diyine Long-suffering ?

And

And after the fatal Shipwreck of our first Parents, when in fucceeding Time the Antidiluvian World had funk into fuch dreadful Degeneracy, that all Flesh had corrupted their Way; and the Almighty was hereby pro-vok'd to threaten a Deludge of Judgment, as extensive as the moral Contagion that procur'd it: Xet before it was inflicted, the God of Patience allowed them One Hundred and Twenty Years warning, by Noab a preacher of Righteoufnes; dur-ing which Space the Long-fuffering of God waited on them. (1 Pet. iii. 20. 2 Pet. ii. 5.) And had not the Church of the Jews great Experience of the Patience of God? 'Tho' the Power and Love of God were marveloufly manifested, in delivering that People from the most opprefive Bondage in Egypt, as well as in preferving of them, and providing for them in their Way to Canaan. The whole was effect-ed by the mighty Hand, and outfretched Arm of God, by a Series of most astonishing Miracles ! Yet after all, what Infidelity, Idolatry, Murmurings and Perverfenefs, was that People fo highly favoured guilty of, and yet were not deftroy'd? Hence the Almighty is faid to fuffer their Manners in the Wildernefs forty Years, Atts xiii. 18. And tho' their Idolatries afterwards were fcandalous to the last degree, yet Patience was exercis'd, Deliverers many Times rais'd up for them, and Judgments but flowly executed, and attended with a mixture of Mercy : 'And even after they had bro't their crimfon Impieties to the most horid Crifis, by crucifiing the Son of God! A Prodigy of Wickedness, which the Sun himfelf refus'd to behold! An Impiety at which the confcious Earth trembled with Horror and Regret! Yet did divine Patience spare them for a confiderable space of Time, till they had the Offers of Life repeatedly made to them by the primitive Preachers of the Gospel, as well as repeated Warnings of their just and approaching Ruin! It was a matter matter of Forty Years after, that unhappy and ungrateful Nation, had judged themfelves unworthy of eternal Life, by rejecting the Apoftolical Warnings and Invitations before their Metropolis was fack'd, and themfelves difpers'd and almoft wholly deftroy'd by the Sword of Titus Vefpafian.

But the Jewish Church and Nation, are not the only Sharers, of the rich Expence of divine Patience. The Gentiles also tho' guilty of the most infanduous Iniquities, directly contrary to Natures Light, have had large Experience thereof. And hence God is faid, in Time past to suffer all Nations to walk in their own Ways, and to give them Rain from Heaven, and fruitful Seasons, filling their Hearts with Food and Gladness, Acts xiv. 16, 17. Yea and it is no inconfiderable Instance of the Long-tuffering of God, that it has been extended to false Teachers, who have endeavour'd to feduce and corrupt the Church of God. These likewise have had a Space given them to repent, tho' they repented not, Rev. ii. 21. But to proceed, Methinks the Methods of the divine Proceedings, even in inflicting of Judgments upon Tranfgreffors, if clofely attended to, may affift our Conceptions of the Riches of God's Patience.

Before Judgment is executed, the gracious God doth generally give by his Servants, plain and frequent Warning. And hence it is faid, that he hew'd the People of Ifraei by his Prophets, and flew them by the Words of his Mouth. He speaketh once, yea twice, but Man perceiveth it not, that he may withdraw Man from his purpose, and hide Pride from Man. Job. xxxiii. 14, 17.

And when Sinners flight the divine Warnings, obflinately refufing to be reclaim'd, and to render the inflicting of Judgment neceffary to vindicate the Honour of God's Goremment. Behold the long-fuffering God uses a Gradation herein. herein, by fending a Succeffion of leffer Judgments, before more awful Calamities are inflicted. And hence the Judgments of God are compar'd to the Light that goeth forth; that is the Morning Light, which by degrees increases to a perfect Day, the Morning Sun gradually ascends to his Meridian Height, or to the Vertex of the Horifon (Hos. vi. 5.) Thus the Prophet Yoel relates a Series of divine Judgments, which were inflicted upon the People of Israel, (Yoel i. 4.) First the Palmer Worm, then the Locust, after that the Canker-Worm, and then the Caterpiller devoured the Fruits of the Earth. And Amos observes likewise, that God fent first a Famine, and asterwards overthrew some of them as Sodom and Gomerka, (Amos iv. 8, 11.)

The Almighty in executing of his Judgments, doth generally moderate them, for that they are not equal to the Demerit of Sin. Of this the Prophet Ifaiab fpeaks excellently, Ifa. xxvii. 7, 8. Hat's be finitten kim, as he finote thefe that finote him, or is he flain according to the Slaughter, of them that are flain by kim ? In M afture thou will debate with it: He flayets his rough Wind in the Day of his Eaft Wind.

And here it fhould be with Amazement observ'd, that when the Execution of Judgment is rendered neceffary, by the continued Impietics of unrelenting Transfereffors, the Almighty doth this strange Work, with a kind of regret and reluctance. Hofea. xi. 8, 9. How shall I give thee up Ephraim, how shall I deliver thee Isracl, How shall I make thee as Admah, how shall I deliver thee Isracl, How shall I make thee as Admah, how shall I fet thee as Zeboim, mine Heart is turned within me, and my Relentings are kindled together? When our compassionate Redeemer, drew near to, and beheld the City of Jerufalem, having in his view the defolating Calamities which were to enfue, upon their ungrateful Refusal of his gracious and infinitely important Propofals, Y y he wept over it ! faying, If they had/t known, or as forme render the Words, O that they had/t known, in this thy Day, the Things that concern'd thy Peace, but now they are hid from thine Eyes Luke xix. 41 But it's Time to confider the

3d. Propos'd, which was to fpeak of the Reafons of God's Patience. And

Ift. One Reafon is, God's good and beneficent Nature, which is more prone to Mercy than Judgment. The former is his Delight, but the latter is his itrange Work. And hence it is faid Lam. in. 33. That he afflicts not winingly, or grives the Children of Men. Jes XXX1. 20. Is Ephrain my dear Son? Is he a pleafant Child? For fince I thake againf: Lim, I do carnefly remember kim fill, therefore my Bowels are trubled for him. I will furely have Morey upon him faith the Lord. God's Goodnets and Long-fuffering are doubtlets eminent Branches of his manifestative Glory: For when Males defired a Sight thereof, this Name was proclaimed. Ex. XXXIV. 6. The Lord, the Lord, merciful and gracicus, long/uffering, and abundant in Goodnefs. And there the Almighty claims as his peculiar Prerogatives, as appears by that famous Scripture, Hof xi. 9. I will not execute the Firreenels of my Anger, for I am God and not Man. Man is impatient and full of Refentment. It is a just Observation of Mr. Bolton, " That if any tender Hearted Man, flould fit one Hour in the " Throne of God Almighty, and look down upon the Earth, " as God doth continuely; and fee what Abominations are done " in that Hour, he would undoubtedly in the next fet all the " World on Fire." But the Lord is God and not Man, his Patience has no Parallel among all created Beings.

2dly. Another Reafon of divine Forbearance, is the Manifeftation of God's Glory. Jehevah is not only induced to Patience, by the Kindness of his Nature, but likewise by the Glory

Glory of his Name. Ifa. xlviii. 9, 11. For my Name fake will I defer mine Anger, and for my Praife will I refrain from thee, that I cut thee not off. For mine own Sake, even for mine own Sake will I do it : For how fhould my Name be polluted, and I will not give my Glory to another. An Example of this we have in Pharaoh, Ex. ix. 16. And in very Deed for this Caufe have I rais'd thee up, for to fhew in thee my Power,. and that my Name may be deciar'd through out all the Earth. And 3dly. The Lord exercises Long-fuffering because of his Promise made to pious People, and their Offspring. Gen. xvii. 7. And I will establish my Covenant between me and thee, and thy Seed after thee in their Generations, for an everlasting Covenant to be a God unto thee, and to the Seed after thee..

4thly. Another Reafon of God's Patience is, that fome may be hereby induced to repent of their evil Ways. Rom. ii. 4. Or defpife/t theu the Riches of his Goodnefs, Forbearance and Long-fuffering, not knowing that the Goodnefs of God leadeth thee to Repentance. And indeed Men are loft to all Senfe of Humanity and Gratitude, if the Confideration of God's Goodnefs and Long-fuffering, does not excite their Sorrows for their Offences againft him. Memorable are the Words of the Apoftle Peter upon this Subject. 2 Pet. iii. 9. The Lord is not flack concerning his Promife, as fome Men count Slacknefs, but is long-fuffering to usward, not willing that any flould perifh, but that all field come to Repentance. 5thly. The Almighty forbears to execute Vengeance be-

5thly. The Almighty forbears to execute Vengeance becaule of the Mixture of good People with bad in this World, and from the Regard he bears to the Prayers of the Former. Gen. xix. 21, 22. And be faid unto bim, fee I have accepted thee concerning this Thing also, that I will not overthrow this City; for the which theu hast fpeken, Haste thee escape thi-Y y 2 ther, ther, for I cannot do any Thing till thou become thither; therefore the City was called Zoar. The Holy Seed, i. e, pious People, are the Substance, the Support of Places where they are. (Ifa. vi. 13.) And hence it is taid, Ifa. xix. Except the Lord of Hojls had left unto us a very finall Remnant, we should have been as Sodom,---and like unto Gomorah.

The Řeafons of divine Fatience.

6thly. Another Reafon of God's Patience, is to continue, and propagate his Church in the World. Rev. vi. 10, 11. And they cried with a loud Voice faying, how long O Lord Hely and true, doft thou not judge and avenge cur Bood on them that dwell on the Earth?---And it was faid unto them, that they flould reft, yet for a little Seafon, until their fellow Serwants and Brethren,---flould be fulfuled, i. e. until their Number was compleated. The Church could not be continued from Age to Age, if God was fpeedy in the Execution of his Wrath. Many of the Elect are doubtlefs in the Loyns of impious Parents, who are fpar'd for their Sakes. Again

7thly. Patience is exercis'd, to render Sinners who continue in their Impenitence inexcutable; and to vindicate the Juffice of God in their final Ruin. (Rem. ii. 1, 2, 4.) The long continuance, and rich Expence of divine Patience towards impenitent Sinners, bereave them of all Apoiogy in their own Favour! This, this will make them wholly fpeechlefs, before the Judgment Bar of the incarnate God! they will not be able to offer one Plea in their Defence. The

4th. Propos'd comes now to be fpoke upon, namely, the confiftency of divine Patience, withGod's vindicative Juffice, and this will appear by confidering the following Particulars.

Ift As there is an equal neceffity of glorifying the Attributes of Patience, as of God's other Perfections, fo there is no Time for trus but in the prefent World. Neither the Say'd Sav'd or Damn'd arc Objects of Patience, the former need it not, and the latter are paft it. Then either it muft be manifefted here or not at all; but there will be fufficient Room for the Terrible Difplays of Juffice in another World.

2dly. Seeing that the Defign of avenging Juftice is either to manifeft God's Holinefs, or to fecure the Rights of his Sovereignty, then if both thefe can be anfwered, notwithftanding the Exercife of Patience, there is furely 'a Confiftency and Harmony between them, and that this is the very Cafe appears thus: God's Holinefs is manifefted in his Threatnings againft Tranfgreffors, the Execution of which his Truth ftands engaged to fecure. The juft Jebovab has faid, That be will rain upon Sinners Snares, Fire, and Brimftrone, and an borrible Tempest, and this shall be the Portion of their Cup ! For the Lord loweth Righteousness, Pfa. xi. 6, 7. And tho' this be a Time of Probation, yet in order to vindicate God's Holinefs and Juftice, there be fome Executions of Wrath. Hence the Lord is faid to be known by the Judgments which be executes, and that the wicked are fnared in the Work of their oven Hands.

Neither does a temporary Sufpenfion of the full Executions of Juffice, give any Occafion to Sinners to infult the divine Sovereignty; nay, to ingenious Minds, it is rather an Inducement to fubmit to the divine Government, feeing he is fo full of Clemency. Slow Proceedings in Judgment, and Reprieves granted to Malefactors, are no Reproach; but an Honour to civil Governments; and why fhould the fame mild Meafures be reckon'd an Impeachment upon the Divine ? But I haften to the Improvement of this Subject. And 1ft. We may learn from it the exceeding Precious fields of the Souls of Men. Our Lord, who is the beft Judge of the Worth of Things, efteems one of them worth more than the whole World, Mat. xvi. 29. And this he has tcftify'd by the Price he has laid down for them, which was no lefsthan his own moft precious Blood, (1. Pet. i. 19.) As well as by the importunate Methods he ufes in order to apply this Redemption, and particularly by the Expence of his Patience in waiting to be Gracious to poor Sinners. And why then fhould we not value our own Souls, and express this by fuitable Solicitude, and Labours to fecure their Happinefs? And 2dly. From the Patience of God we may learn this Leffon, that it is better for us to be at the Mercy of God than of any Creature : Tho' Mcfes was meek above all Men upon the Face of the Earth, yet the Impieties of the People of Ifrael put him in a Rage againft them, fo that be accofted them in the following Language at Meriba, Yeu Rebels faid he, muft I draw Water for yeu out of the Reck? The Prophet Finab feem'd to be more concern'd about his Credit, than about the Lives of the great City Niniveb; yea he was difpleas'd and very Angry at the Kindnefe of God, in fparing that finful Place upon their Reformation, and acofted the Almighty in very undecent Language ow this Occafion : yea he refented the Kindnefs of God to that Place in fuch a Degree, that he choie Death rather than Life on this Account ! O ftrange and unaccountable Conduct ! (See Yona iv. 1. 2. 3.) But

2 dly. Another Ufe that may be juftly drawn from this Subject of divine Patience, is of Encouragement to all Sinfick Souls; fuch thould be induc'd hereby to caft away their defponding Fears, and to come to JESUS CHRIST with Hopes of obtaining Mercy. To this he invites them in a compatitionate Manner, Mat. xi. 28. Come unto me all ye that labour and are heavy Laden, and I will give you Re/l: And furely our dear Lord will be as Good as his Word. The Enemy of Souls labours to difcourage awakned Sinners in in their Motions to CHRIST by many dreadful fuggeftions such as these following, viz. That they have committed the unpardonable Sin; but how can that be while they bewail Sin and feek Deliverance from it? Or by infinuating that the Seafon of Mercy is paft, and that God is fo fevere that he will have no Compatition on them. But these are falle Suggeftions, how can the Day of Mercy be paft when God is enlightning the Mind and humbling the Heart by his gracious Influences? No ! It is then a fpecial Sea-fon of Mercy, the Door of Hope is yet open, and the golden Scepter of Pardon and Peace is held forth by the King of Glory. God is not waiting for an Opportunity to deftroy the Sinner, but for an Opportunity to exalt his glorious Grace in fhewing them Salvation : Poor Sinners, ye are going to a God of Mercy, Grace and Patience, a God who glories in the Freeners of his Love! Surely if his Patience bore with you in your obstinate Course of unrelenting Impieties, it will much more fo when you are humbled under a Sense thereof: Therefore be encouraged to attend with Hope upon the Means of Grace, and to venture your guilty Souls by believing on an all-fufficient and compaffionate Redeemer, who is able to fave to the uttermost all that come to the Father by him, and who has himfelf affur'd us, that fuch as come he will by no Means caft out. But I proceed

3dly. To a Ufe of Exhortation in the following Particulars

If. Dear Brethren, let us admire and adore the Patience of God towards ourfelves ! And to this we may be juftly excited by confidering the Number, Importance and Long-continuance of the Favours of God towards us, together with the inumerable and heighnous Iniquities which we have prefumptuoufly and ungratefully committed againft all all the dear Obligations of divine Love ! If God mould mark Iniquities who could ftand before him? How juftly therefore, and how eafily might the Almighty have made us Miserable, beyond a Remedy long before now? And yet Jekovah's Patience waits. Sometimes Men defer the Execution of their Anger, becaufe they are not able to effect it: This was King David's Cafe in fulpending 'Joab's Punishment. The Sons of Zeruiah, as he himlelf acknowledged, were too hard for him, they had got to great a Party of the Nation upon their Side, that it was perilous to try to bring them fpeedily to publick Juffice : But God is Almighty in Power, and early able at any Time, in an Inftant, to fubdue the most Proud and Potent of his Encmies. It may justly melt our Hearts into Admiration and Gratitude, when we think how juffly every Soul of us here prefent might be this Moment enduring the Vengeance of eternal Fire, paft all Hopes of ever obtaining Mercy; and that yet notwithstanding of all our crimfon Provocations we are on this fide Ruin, and have the Of-But in the fers of Salvation made to us.

2d. Place let us beware that we abufe not the Patience of God by taking Encouragement therefrom to perfift in finning againft him. This alas is the ungrateful Ufe which fome make of this adorable Attribute, Eclef. viii. 11. Becaufe Sentence againft an evil Work, is not fpeedily executed, therefore the Heart of the Sons of Men is fully fet in them to do Evil. The Bafenefs of which Ingratitude and Impiety, no Tongue can express, no Mind can conceive fully : And furely the Punifhment will be at laft proportioned to it, except Repentance intercept the Stroke of Juffice! How fl.all ye efcape who neglect fo great Salvation? It fl.all be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorah in the Day of Judgment than for you, Do not imagine Sinners that Forbearance is Payment. Payment. Be not deceived, that which a Man fows that fkall be alfo reap, he that foweth to the Flefh, fhall of the Flefh reap Corruption. Confider folemnly and fpeedily those dreadful Words of God himfelf, Pfal. 1. 21, 22. Thefe Things haft thou done and I kept Silent, thou thoughteft that I was altogether such a one as thy felf, but I will reprove thee and fet them in Order before thine Eyes. Now confider this ye that forget God, least I tear you in Pieces and there be none to deliver ! And how unjust, as well as ungrateful, is the Inference which fome impenitent Transgreffors draw from the expense of divine Patience, viz. that therefore there is no Providence which prefides over human Affairs; and hence they deride all Religion! The Apostle Peter long fince prophecy'd of this herd of hardned Mortals. (2 Pet. iii. 4.) But where is the Sense of this Cavil, for will not Reason it felf suggest, that there should be a Time of Probation before that of Recompence?

Before that of Recompence? But that I may come more clofely to the Confciences of my Hearers, may I not fafely affert, that all you that neglect to improve the prefent Seafon of Mercy, to to embrace the Lord JESUS CHRIST, are abufers of God's Patience! Dear Friends, confider, that in fo doing ye defpife to e Goodnefs and Long-fuffering of God, and likewite fecure and aggravate your own Ruin. (Rom. ii. 4.) Hear with Trembling what God faid to his antient People, Amos iii. 3. You only have I known of all the Families of the Earth, therefore I will puni/h you for all you Iniquities! I haften to the laft Ufe, which is of Exhortation, which is to reefold: Methinks the Patience of God invites us to improve it, in Relation to God, our Neighbours, and ourfelves. And 1ft. We fhould improve it in Relation to our Behaviour towards God, in a Patient enduring of his fatherly Chaftnings, which are for much to our Advantage, and fo much lefs than our demerit. We fhould likewife patiently wait for the Anfwer of our Prayers, as well as for the Time of our Diffolution; for God hath not faid to the feed of Jacob, that they (hould feek his Face in vain. The Time of our departure is fixed, and cannot be reverfed, let us therefore refolve with 'fob,' to wait with Patience till our Change come.

2dly. In Relation to Men. Let us bear Injuries and Reproaches from them with Patience, without meditating Revenge, feeing the great God has fo long bore with worfe 'Treatment from us ! Let us patiently wait for the Converfion of unconverted Friends and Relatives : God's Power is great, his Grace is free, fome he Converts at one Time and tome at another ! Jehovah waits and why fhould not we with Patience and Hope.

3 dly. In Relation to ourfelves. O for God's fake let us improve the prefent Seafon of divine Patience! Behold now is the accepted Time, behold now is the Day of Salvation! Grieve the Spirit of God no more, and try his Patience no longer; for furely if ye perfift, divine Patience towards you will have its Period, and then ye are undone forever. Think on thefe Words, Pro. i. 24, 25, 26. Becaufe I called and ye refufed, I firetched forth my Hand and no Man regarded, therefore will I laugh at your Calamities, and mock when your fear.cometh.

SERMON XIX.

Into thine Hand I commit my fpirit : For thou haft redeemed me O Lord God of Truth.

HIS Pfalm was compos'd either when David was in great Diftrefs, or fometime afterwards in Remembrance of it, and of the Kindnefs and Truth of God, apparent in delivering him therefrom. The Matter of the Pfalm, which confifts of Pravers and Praifes, of Hopes and Fears, feems to fuggeft what has been observ'd to be Occasion of it's Composure; but we can't certainly determine what those Troubles were to which the Pfalmift refers herein. Some learned Men, particularly Muis from David Kimchi, whofe Opinion Mr. Pool in his Synophis favours, do not improbably Conjecture, that it was compos'd when David fled from Saul. After the Pfalmi/t had, in the preceeding Verfes, mention'd tome Diftress he was in, fome difguis'd Contrivance which his Enemy's had fecretly form'd to enfnare him, as well as fpoken honourably of the divine Power in a Variety of metaphorical Terms, and earneftly implor'd Guidance in Perplexity, and Protection in Danger, he in confidence thereof, doth in the Words of our Text, calmly commend himfelf to the divine Care, being hereunto encouraged by the Confideration of what God had done for him in diffi-Z Z 2 culty culty heretofore, and believing God was engaged to do the like for him in future Time. Into thine Hand I commit my Spirit, for thou hast redeemed me, O Lord God of Truth ! So that in these Words, we have two Things, viz. An Account of the Pfalmift's Act, together with the Reafons of it. And 1ft. His Act was his committing his Spirit into the Hands of God. By Spirit we are doubtlefs to understand his Soul, it was in this Senfe that our Lord us'd thefe Words upon the Crofs. (Luk. xxxiii, 46.) By the Hand of God, we are to understand his Care and Cuflody, the metaphorical Expretiion of Arm, when apply'd to God in Scripture, intends his Strength, fo that to be taken into the Hands of God in a Way of Mercy, fignifies a Perfon's Being cover'd with Almighty Protection ! Committing curfelves into the Hands of God, includes in it thefe three Things effectially viz. Ift. A rejecting all other Dependencies. 2dly. A firm Truft in God that he can and will do all well for us. And 3 dly. A voluntary Refignation of ourfelves intirely to his Care and Eut Kindnefs.

2dly. The Reations of the Pfalmift's Act are thefe, viz, 1ft. The Remembrance he had of God's Kindnefs to him formerly, in delivering him out of Troubles: For them haft redeemed me. And 2dly. The Confideration of the Truth of God's Nature and Word, O Lord God of Truth, as if he had faid, thou haft promifed O Lord, that thou wilt be prefent with thy People in Diffrefs, and help them; and furely thou wilt be as good as thy Word, for thou art the God of Truth. The Remembrance of paft Mercies and Deliverances, both Spiritual and Temporal is of great Neceffity in our Chriftian Courfe, both to excite our Gratitude to God, and encourage our Truft in him. If we do not remember the Hill-Mizar, the Penicls, the Pi/gas, the Bokims. Bekims that we have met with, how shall we love our Benefactors and hope in him? And without Love and Hope how can we perform the Duties required of us with Diligence? Encounter the Dangers we are inviron'd with, without Courage, or sustain the Difficulties we are exposed to, with Patience? Was not our Lord offended with his Disciples that they so soon forgot the Miracle about the Loaves? How peircing and upbraiding was the reproof of CHRIST on this Occasion? O ye Fools and flow of Heart to believe, do ye not remember the Miracle of the Loaves?

believe, do ye not remember the Miracle of the Loaves? The Subject that I purpole to difcourle upon from the Text, is, the Truth of God. This Attribute of Truth, is frequently aferib'd to God in Scripture. Hence (1) He is expressly faid to be True, Jer. x. 10. But the Lord is the True God (2) It is likewile faid, that he cannot lie or repent, 1 Sam. xv. 29. And elfo the Strength of Ifrael will not he or repent, for he is not a Man that he should repent. Particularly (3) In his Words, he is True yea Truth itself. Joh.. xvii. 17. Sanstify them thro' thy Truth, thy Word is Truth. (4) In his Works, thus all the Ways of the Lord are faid to be Mercy and Truth, unto fuch as keep his Covenant.. Pfal. xxv. 10.

And it muft needs be that God is True, if we confider the following Particulars, 1ft. If God were not true, there could be nothing True, or no Truth ; for how can there be a fecond Truth without a firft ? But there is fuch a Thing as Truth, therefore God is true. It is equally abfurd to fuppele, either that the Creature has any Vertue, which it has not deriv'd from God the firft Caule of all Being and Goodnefs, or that it fhould derive it from one who had it not. 2dly. All falfehood and deceit fprings from fome Imperfection, either of Ignorance or perverfe Intention. Men often miftake thro' Ignorance or Inadvertency; they think of of Things otherwife than they are, either thro' want of a competent measure of Knowledge or thro' neglect of due Deliberation upon Things, neither of which are compatible to that God who is infinite in Wildom, and Acts by Council.

Again Men deceive others of Purpofe, thro' an evil Difpofition of Nature, the Root of which is in all the Posterity of Adam! But God is perfectly Pure and Holy, entirely free from every corrupt Byafs. And hence is that antithefis or contrariety between the divine Nature, and the Human in its degenerate and fallen State; which is mentioned Rom. iii. A. Yea let God be True, but every Man a Lyar; as it is written, that thou mighteft be justify'd in thy fayings, and mighteft overcome when thou judgeft. When therefore God is faid to deceive the Prophet, Ezek. xiv. 9. It only fignifies the Almighty's difappointing him by the Courfe of his all-governing Providence, of the tond Expectations he had from fecond Caufes, and his fuffering the Prophet to impose upon himself by wrong Conjectures. Men may be influenced by the vicious Propensities of their own Natures, or by the Inftigations of Satan to deceive. But it is directly contrary to, and incompatible with the infinite untainted and inviolable purity of the divine Nature to be any Ways acceffary to fuch abhored Impiety. It is impossible for God to lie, as the Author to the Hebreros justly observes, (Heb. vi. 18.)

Men do not always adhere with conftancy to their Purpofes and Declarations, either, 1ft. Becaufe they were rafhly and precipitantly made, without a juft View of Things, and mature Deliberation upon them. Or 2dly. For want of Power to put their Defigns into Execution, or 3dly. Becaufe of fome unforefeen Changes that are brought to pafs by divine Providence, which put their Affairs into a different Situation from what they were before; and from what they first had in View. But neither of these Imperfections can be afcrib'd without Blafphemy to God. As his Wifdom is unfearchable, to his Power is Infinite, and his Happinefs invariable and eternal. All Futurity is open to his all penetrating Eye, and all Things poffible are included within the Compass of his Almightines. He is of one Mind and who can turn him, and what his Soul defireth even that he doeth. Job xxiii. 13. No change of Affairs can be produc'd befides his Purpose or without the Interposition of his sovereign Providence, and therefore he cannot be thereby necefficiated to change his Purpofe, or fall from his Declarations. And hence Philo well observes, " That all the Words of God. are " Oaths." i. e. most facred and certain. And Fulgentius fayeth truly concerning the supream Being, viz. " That he " is Truth without Fallacy, Goodness without Malice, and ** Happinels without Milery." Pythagoras being ask'd what made Men like to God, answered, cum vera loguntur i. e. when they speak Things that are true.

In difcourfing upon this Subject, I purpole to fpeak I. Upon the Kinds and Nature of divine Truth. And

II. To answer some Objections against it, and then proceed to fome Improvement And 1ft. It may be observed, that Truth in its general Nature, confifts in Agreement, and is Three-fold, viz, Phyfical, Logical, and Moral. Phyfical Truth, confifts in the Agreement, which subfifts between the Appearance of a Thing and the Thing itself. This kind of Truth is by fome term'd effential, and by others metaphyfical.

2dly. Logical Truth is when we conceive of a Thing in our Minds, as it really is in it felf. As the Former is oppos'd to Paint, and all false Appearences, fo this is opposid to Error and Mistake in Judgement.

3dly. Moral Truth confifts in fpeaking as we think, this is oppos'd to lying, the Nature of which confifts in going against the Mind, according to the old and true Saying, anentire eft contra mentem ire.

Now each of these Kinds of Truth, that I have mentioned belongs to God truly and transcendently : For

ift. He has what appertains to true Godhead by his Effence without any Difguife. John xvii. 3. This is eternal Life, to know thee the only trueGod, and JESUS CHRIST when theu haft fent. Jehovah hath a real Subfiftence, and gives Being to all Creatures; whereas the falle Gods of the Heathen, have nothing divine, they only carry a deceitful Appearance, or obtain it in the Minds of their Worfhippers. They are only dumb Idols which have Eyes and fee not, Ears and hear not, neither fpeak they thro' their Threats ! They are nothing but Vanity and a Lie, They that make them are like to them, and fo is every one that truffeth in them Pfal. cxv. 5, 8. And 2dly. The Mind of God exactly agrees with the Nature of Things, because he beholds all Things in himself. Neither is there any Creature that is not manifest in his Sight, but all I bings are naked and open unto the Eve of him, with whom we have to do. Heb. iv. 13.

3 dly. The Declarations of God's Word exactly agree with the Conceptions of his Mind, and Refolutions of his Will, in all the Parts thereof whether Hiftorical, Prophetical, Promifory, Minatory, Perceptive. Hence the Word of God is faid to be fure, Pl. cxix. 140. i.e. Its free from all Mixture of Deceit and Falthood. And hence it is likewife faid to be try'd, 2 Sam. xxii. 31. As for God bis Way is perfect the Word of the Lord is try'd, he is a Buckler to all that truft in bim. Pial xii. 6. The Words of the Lord are pure Words, as Silver try'd in a Furnace of Earth, purified feven-times. And 4thly, All the Works of God exactly agree with his Purpofe and and Declaration, Deut. xxxii. 4. He is a Rock bis Work is perfect for all his Ways are Judgment, a God of Truth and without Iniquity just and right is he. And hence the Almighty is faid to be faithful, ift. In the Works of Creation, 1 Pet. iv.19. Wherefore let them that fuffer according to the Will of God commit the keeping of their Sculs to him in well doing, as unto a faithful Creater. 2dly. In the Work of Redemption, Heb. ii. 17. Wherefire in all Things it behoved him to be made like unto his Brethren, that he might be a mer-ciful and faithful high Prieft. 3dly. 'Fhe Almighty is faithful in the Works of Grace, and hence Grace and Truth are faid to come by JESUS CHRIST, John i. 17. 4thly. He is likewife faithful in the Works of Providence, more effecially in the Prefervation of his Church, Rev. xix. 11. And I faw Heaven opened, and behold a white Horfe, and he that fat on him was called faithful and true, and in Righteousness be: doth judge and make War.

Now the Universal Truth of God, that has been mentioned, entirely excludes, and is directly oppos'd to every Error in Judgment, as well as to all Falshood, and lying in Speech and to all Hypocrify and Deceit in Practice. And therefore Solomon justly observes, Prov. vi. 16, 17, 19. That fix Things the Lord Hates, yea that feven are an Abomination unto him! Among which he names a hing Tongue, and a falle Witnefs. Tit. i. 2. In hepe of eternal Life which God that cannot lie promifed before the World began.

But in order to open the Nature of divine Truth more fully, I think it may be thus defcribed, viz. That it is that Property of the divine nature schereby the Almighty conflantly and inviolably adheres to his eternal Purpole both in his Word and Works. When God is in Scripture call'd the true God, or the only true God, thefe Phrafes do not fignify any diftinct Perfection of the divine Nature, but the whole Godhead, in Oppofition to all that are call'd God's, but are not 10fo by nature. But when he is call'd the Ged of Truth, as in our Text, it intends a particular Attribute or Perfection of Jehovah, even fuch as has but now been deferib'd. Which Defeription that it may be the better underflood, let the following particulars be confidered viz.

1ft. That God hath from everlafting purposed or determined to permit or effect whatfoever comes to pass in Time. i. e. He has before all Time decred, to permit the Evil that is done in Time, without which it could not come to pafs, except we deny the Omnipotence of God, which is blatphemous. And he has likewife purpos'd to effect the Good, which cannot be brought to pafs without his Affiftance and Influence. And hence we are told AEts xv. 18. That known unto God are all his Works from the Beginning of the World. This Fore-knowledge neceffarily supposes his Purpose, for what is not certainly determin'd, cannot be certainly foreknown. But the Purpose of God, which is no other than an imanent or eternal Act of his Will, respecting his Works of Efficiency, is more expressly spoken of, Ephef, i. 11. In whom also we have obtained an Inheritance being Predestinated according to the Purpole of him who works all Things after the Council of his own Will. And as the Purpole of God is eternal, in respect of its Rife and Orignal, so it is absolute and invariable in its Nature. The Conditions of Things in the decree, are only therein confider'd as Means determined to compass the End defign'd, Prov. xix. 21. There are many Devices in Man's Heart, neverthele/s the Council of the Lord that shall stand. Job xxiii. 13. But he is in one Mind, and who can turn him, and what his Soul defireth even that he doeth.

2dly. God hath been pleas'd to reveal fome Part of his eternal Purpofe in his Word. I fay fome Part, becaufe there are feeret Things which are known only to God. The The Almighty has reveal'd as much of his Purpofe in his Word, as his Wifdom judged neceffary for us to know.

Now the Revelation we have of God's Purpofe in his Word, appears especially in these Things following, viz.

Ift. In the Hyftorical Part of it, that contains a true and just Relation of Matters of Fact, which have been brought to pass exactly agreeable to the cternal Plan of the divine Purpose. And 2dly. In Prophefies of Things to come, many fuch are contain'd in Scripture, both of a publick and perional Nature. And how glorioufly does the Truth of God fhine forth in the punctual accomplishment of many of them? Here I shall only mention a few, in Relation to our Lord CHRIST. Jacob prophetied of the Time of his Birth, viz. That it foculd be after the Scepter was departed from Judab. Gen. xliv. 10. And thus it happened, for Horod who iway'd the Scepter at that Time, was of an Idumean Extraction. The Prophet Micab. foretold, that the Place of his Birth fhould be Bethlehem. Mica v. 2. Eut thou Bethlehem Ephrata, out of thee skall come forth,----that is to be the Ruler in Ifrael, whole Goings forth have been from of old, from Everlaßing. And thus it came to pais. Mat. ii. 1. Now when 7E-SUS was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the Days of Herod the King. Ifaish prophened that his Parent should be a Virgin, Ifa. vii. 14. Behold a Virgin shall conceive and bear a Son, and shall call bis Name Imanuel. And this the Event answered. (Mat. i.) Zacheriab prophesied of the humble Circumstances of his Life, in the ixth Chapt. of his Book, and the 9th Verie. Rejoyce greatly O Daughter of Zion, shout O Daughter of Jerufalem, behold thy King cometh unto thee, He is is just and baving Salvation, lowly, and riding upon an Als, and upon a Colt the Foal of an Als! And do not the Evangelists assure us, that this was fulfilled to a Tittle ? Ifai-Aaa2 ab.

ab graphically delineates his miraculous Works, Ifa. xxxv. 56. Then the Eyes of the blind fkail be opened and the Ears of the Deaf fkall be unflopped, then fhaul the lame Man leap as a Hart, and the Tongue fkall fing. And thele Things we are affur'd did come to pass by all that Evidence of credible and harmonious Teftimony, which the Nature of fuch past Facts can admit of, and it is unreasonable surely to defire more! Daniel foretells his Death in the ixth Chap. of his Book, and 26th Verfe. The Meffiah shall be cut of, but not for himself. And the Pfalmist David foretels the Manner of it io particularly, as if he had ftood at the Crois and beheld it. Pf. xxii 16,---19. The Affembly of the Wicked have inclos'd me, they pierced my Hands and my Feet. I may tell all my Bones, they look and flare upon me, they part my Garments among them, and caft Lots upon my Veflure. And is not the Burial of our Lord in the Tomb of a rich Man fpoken of by Ifaiab? Ifa. liii. 9. And be made bis Grave with the Wicked, and with the Rich in his Death. Which was accordingly fulfilled. Mat. xvii. 59, 60. And does not the Pfalmift prophecy of his Refurrection, of which Jonah was a Type? Pf. Ixviii. 18. Then haft ascended on bigb, thou half led Captivity Captive, theu half received Gifts for Men. Of the accomplifhment of which, the Evangelift Luke informs us, (Luke, xxiv. 51.) But I proceed 3dly. The Almighty reveals his eternal Purpotes in his 3dly. The Almighty reveals his eternal Purpoles in his Word, by Precepts; by these God shews to Man his Duty and the Way to obtain the divine Favour, in which mis Happiness confists; and this the Almighty purposed to do from Eternity. And hence it is called the Council of God. Alts xx. 27.

4thly. The Almighty likewife reveals his Purpofe in his Word by Threatnings against his Enemies. These are as fiery Barriers about his Law, to preferve it from Contempt and and Infult ! As his unfpotted Holinefs is delineated in the Precepts of his Law, to his dreadful Juffice is difplay'd in the Penalties annexed to the Breach thereof, which render Jehovah moft juftly an Object of Fear, as the Former of Love. Now the Threatnings of God's Word, are no other than a Revelation of those Judgments, which God had determin'd from everlasting to inflict, upon finally impenitent Transgreffors 1Ja. xxx. ult. For Tophet is ordain'd of old; for the King it is prepar'd, he bath made it deep and large, the Pile thereof is Fire and much Wood. The Breath of the Lord like a Stream of Brimstone doth kindle it. And 5thly. God reveals his eternal Purpofe in his Word, by Promifes of Spiritual and Temporal good Things to his People; which he fincerely makes, and punctually performs; and on this Account, he is more efpecially call'd, the faithful God, who keepeth Covenant and Mercy with these that love him and keep his Commandments, to a Thousand Generations. Deut. vii. 9. As the Threatnings of God excite Fear, fo his Promifes encourage Truft and Hope. Tho' God is a-ble to make us happy, yet we have no Ground to expect his Goodness except it be engag'd to us by Promise: For the Almighty is under no natural Obligation, to magnify his Mercy upon us. But when he is pleas'd to engage his Truth in our Favour by promife, it renders the Bleffings promifed most certain; and fo ministers strong Consolation to all that fear God, fo that they may reafonably rejoyce in Hope of eternal Life, whatever Difficulties, and threatning Appearances feem to obftruct their attainment of it. Now the Promifes of God either refpect Mankind in general, or the Church in particular, or truly pious Perfons in special. Some Benefits promis'd to Mankind in general are thefe, viz. That the World thall be preferved to the fecond coming of our Lord, from another Deluge by Water, the Sign of which 15 is God's Bow in the Clouds. And likewife that the ftated and regular Courfe of Nature, in respect of Seed Time, and Harvest, Cold and Heat, Summer and Winter, Day and Night shall not cease. (Gen. ix. 11.) The Promises made to the Church, respect its Protection, Increase, and the divine Prefence, in their Religious Affemblies. Thus the Almighty hath faid, that no Weaton form'd egainst Zien skall prosper, and that the Gates of Hell shall not prevail against her. He hath alfo promited, that to Shiloh cr the Mefias skould be the gathering of the Pcople. i. e. the Gentiles. Gen. xlix. 10. And that be would multiply them and they fleuld not be fmall, Jer. xxx. 19. And Jehovah has promis'd, that in all Places where he records his Name, he will come to his People and blefs them, Ex. xx. 2.4. The Almighty has alfo made gracious Promifes, fuited to all the various Exigencies of his People in particular. e.g. He has promifed to guide them with his Eye and by his Council, to support them by his Power and to refresh them by his Love, Pf. xxxii. 8. It. xli. 10. Fear thou not for I am with thee, be not difinay'd for I am thy God, I will (Irengthen thee, yea I will belp thee, yea I will uphold thee by the right Hand of my Rightcoufnefs. If. lvii. 19. I create the Fruit of the Lips, Peace, Peace to him that is far off, and to him that is near fayeth, the Lord and I will heat him. Moreover God has promifed, that thefe who wait upon him shall renew their Strength, Pf. 1xxxiv. 7. Ifa. xl. 31. and finally, obtain eternal Life. John x. 28. I give unto them eternal Life, and they shall never perish. Now every one of these Promises has been fulfilled, the World has been freed from a fecond Deluge, the facceffive Vicifitudes of the Year are continued, the Church preferved and propagated, and particular Believers directed, supported and reliev'd. This leads me to А

3 d. Particular, which is this, viz. God's adhering to his Purpofe, reveal'd in his Word by his Works. I have already obferv'd, that God hath determined all Things from Eternity, and that he hath revealed this Purpofe or Determination in his Word, various Ways : I am now to fhew that God performs by his Works what he hath declared in his Word: As there is a Truth which confifts in a Conformity between the Heart and Tongue, which is call'd Sincerity : fo their is a Truth which confifts in an Agreement between Words and Deeds, which is call'd Fidelity or Faithfulnefs. The Almighty not only Purpofes to do what he declares, but he adheres to and purfues his Declaration with invio-lable Constancy. He does all Things that he hath spoken, and exactly as he hath fpoken: He does not in the leaft come fhort of his Word in his Works. Numb. xxiii. 19. God is not a Man that he foculd lye, or the Son of Man that he should repent : Hath he faid, and shall he not do it ? Hath he spoken, and shall be not make it Good ? How express and Noble is the Teftimony of Mofes upon this Head? I King viii. 56. Bleffed be the Lord that he hath given rest unto his People Israel, according to all that he hath promifed, there hath not fail'd one Word of all his good Promife which he promis'd by the Hand of Mofes bis Servant. I have already Thewn how exactly the divine Prophefies and Promifes have been fulfilled : And I may here add, that Jebovab has often manifested and magnified his Truth in the Execution of his Threatnings. And hence he is faid to be known, i. c. In the Glory of his Truth and Justice, by the Judg-ments which be executes. All the Instances of divine Judgment upon the old World, Sodom, Gomorka, Zeboim, and Adma, and upon the Children of Ifrael which we have upon Record in Scripture, are fo many Confirmations of the Truth of God. I proceed to the

2d.

2d. Propos'd, which was to answer some Objections against the Truth of God. And

Ift. It is objected that CHRIST is faid to die for the whole World. (Job. i. 29.) How doth this confift with the Truth of God, feeing that elfewhere, (viz. Rom. ix. 22.) It is faid that fome are Veffels of Wrath.

Anfw. The Word World, is taken either in a limited Senfe, for the World of the Elect. Thus CHRIST is faid to take away the Sin of the World, John i. 29. Or in a more large Senfe, for both Elect and Reprobates. And thus 2dly. it may be observed, that CHRIST dyed fufficiently for all, but not intentionally and effectually, i. e. The Value of Christs Blood was enough for all, but its Vertue was only defigned for, and is only applyed to those that believe. Hence God is faid to be the Saviour of all Men, effectially of thefe that believe. A

2d. Object. is, that tho' God threatned our first Parents. that in the Day they eat of the forbidden Fruit they should furely dye; yet this threatning was not executed, for Adam lived after this nine Hundred and thirty Years.

Anfro. They did die the fame Day in feveral Refpects, viz. 1ft. Legally, they were dead in Law, they were condemn'd by the Law they broke, to a temporal and eternal Death: And this in a forenfick Senfe is often call'd Death (See Rom. viii. 10.) The Body is dead becaufe of Sin, i. c.. It is expos'd to Death, as a Confequence of Sin, by Reafon of the Sentence of the Law againft 'Tranfgreffors, not that it is actually dead. And 2dly our firft Parents died Spiritually the fame Day: They immediately loft the divine Image, and that Bleffed Confequence of it, Communion with God. And hence they are faid to come there of bis Glory, Rom. iii. 23. And they may be faid to die maturally the fame Day, in fome Senfe viz. Not only becaufe caufe they were under a Neceffity of enduring, in after Times, the Separation of the Soul from the Body, by Vertue of the Sentence of the Law before mentioned, but alfo becaufe, in all probability, the original crafis and juft temperature of Humours in their Bodies being broke, there was a direct tendency in this judicialDiforder of their very Frame, to aDiffolution. A in this judicialDiforder of their very Frame, to aDiffolution. A 3d. Object. is, That tho' Niniveb was threatned to be deftroy'd in forty Days; yet the Threatning was not executed till forty Years after.

Anfw. Poffibly forty prophetical Days, which are Years, were intended, tho' Jonab underftood it not, and if fo the Prophefy was exactly fulfill'd : But in my Opinion the following Anfwer is more fatisfactory, viz. That there was a Condition imply'd in, and annex'd to the Threatning which was intended to be publifhed to the Ninivites; namely, that they fhould be deftroy'd in forty Days, if they did not report. It appears by the Ninivites hembling themfelves that they underftood the Prophet in this Senfe. For if the Threatning had been abfolute, the Ufe of Means would have been to no purpofe, either by the People or the Prophet: But we fee that both did ufe Means, he preach'd, and they humbled themfelves, and therefore there was certainly a Condition annex'd to the Threatning : And thus the Objection evanifhes.

Object. 4. The Pelagians, Papifts, Sceinians, Arminians, Remonstrants and Lutherans fay, that the Doctrine of the Calvinists, respecting the Decrees, argues God to be Untrue and Infincere; because while they Teach, that God wills the Salvation of all, that yet notwithstanding, he in in the mean Time wills and decrees the Damnation of forme: And that the God offers the Redcemer to every one, and invites them by many Arguments to accept him; yet that he in the mean Time does not will that they should believe, and repent, and be fav'd.

Bbb

Anfic,

Anfie. The Calvinift's on the Contrary do folemnly Pro-teft in the Prefence of God, that they believe God to be True in every Thing, and that his Words do anfwer ex-actly to, or agree with both the Things ipoken of, and his own Mind, and therefore that God always wills what he fays he wills; but after that Manner that he wills, i. c. If he declares that he wills an Event, then that Event most certainly comes to País. If he declares that he wills that this or that fhould be our Duty, i.e. That we fhould do or omit this or that, then it certainly is our Duty, whether it be perform'd or not: To this Purpofe they diffinguifh the Will of God into Legiflative and Decretive; the former they fay is that whereby he determines and wills only concerning Right and Rule, viz. What we ought to do or omit ; but determines nothing concerning the Event : The latter is that whereby God wills and determines concerning the Event which shall be; but does not at all concern Right and Rule refpecting what fhould be. Upon this Account they affert, that God wills many Things by his Legislative Will which do not come to país, e. g. Thus he will'd that Pharach according to Right, fhould let the People of Ifracl go, i. e. He will'd that to be Pha-roh's Duty; but this he did not will decretively or according to Fact, or in Respect of the Event; for if fo the Almighty's Purpofe was frustrate in that Pharaob did not let them go at the first Demand; but this is impossible, the Council of God shall stand. Now from what has been faid the following Anfiver may be given to the Objection. viz. 1ft. That God does not will the Death of a Sinner by a legiflative Will, in as much as he really wills that there should be a Connection between the Conversion of the Sinner and his Salvation, and therefore he fincerely invites every one to Conversion : And to fuch as are converted he promifes Life ; tho he does not in the mean Time will will decretively to give to all Grace and Salvation. 2dly. The Calvinifts acknowledge that God wills all to be fav'd in the Senfe of Auflin; who by the Word All, underftood fome of all Sorts, not every Individual: As in the Ark God is faid to fave all the living Creatures; but every Bird and Beaft was not fav'd, for many perifh'd in the Waters: But All, that is, fome of every Kind, were fav'd; fo God will have all to be fav'd, that is fome of all Nations. The Almighty wills Faith and Repentance to be the Duty of All and Singular, but he does not will decretively the Salvation of All and Singular, for then they would be fav'd: But the Scriptures affure us, that but a few are fav'd. Salvation is offer'd according to the Calvinifical Syftem, only to thole that believe and repent, and to them it is given; and where then is the Infincerity? If they reply and fay, that fuch are invited to come to CHRIST, according to our Doctrine, who are decreed to Deftruction?

Anfie. What then ? feeing the Decree does not force or influence the Will. Are not fuch invited to come to CHRIST according to their Scheme, whom God foreknows thall Perifh? Does not certain Fore-knowledge fix the Event as much as the Decree? Let them remove this D.fliculty which croffes their own Scheme, and they will anfwer their own Objection.

Object. 5. Some Promites made to the People of God, respecting temporal and spiritual Bleffings, are not perform'd; namely, such as respect Growth in Grace, Comfort, Victory over Temptation, &c.

Anfie. The Lord may fometimes delay the Performance of a Promife, but he will not deny. God's Promife may lye a long Time, as Seed under Ground, but at laft it will fpring up. The Vifion is for an appointed Time, tho' it taries, wait for it, it will come it will not tary i. e. beyond God's appointed Time. God promifed to deliver Ifrael from the B b b 2 - Egyptian. Egyptian Bondage, but this Promife was Four Hundred Years in Travail, before it brought forth the determin'd Event. God promifed to Abraham a numerous Offspring, but Twenty Years elapfed before he had a Son, and then was commanded to flay him. How dark and dreadful was this Providence! But notwithftanding of the Delays and contrary Appearances, the Promife was accomplifh'd in its appointed Seafon!

2dly. God may change hisPromife, but he will not break it: He may turn a Temporal Promife into a Spiritual. Pf. Ixxxv. 12. The Lord fkall give that which is good. Tho' this be not fulfill'd in aTemporal, yet if it be in a Spiritual Senfe, the Promife is made good, yea the Almighty may be faid to be herein better than his Word, when he gives that which is greater in Worth, tho' not the fame in Kind, which was expected.

3dly. There are no Promifes of God, but what are made good in Kind in fome Inflances. And this is a manifeft Vindication of the divine Truth therein engag'd, feeing the Benefits promifed are conferred on fome. And 4thly. God never promifes any Benefits in fuch a Manner as to infringe upon the Rights of his Sovereignty. No, all Bleflings are promis'd with this Referve, viz. That if God thinks it neceflary for his Glory and their Good, he will compafs their Salvation another Way. The Almighty by fpiritual Defertions and Temptations, doth try the Faith and Patience of his People, as well as humble them, and make them prize CHRIST and his Comforts the more afterwards. And thus thefe Things, yea and their very Blunders are (contrary to their natural Tendency) over rul'd for their Good; which is more than an equivalent for the Lofs of divine Joy and Comfort for a Time. And therefore there is hereby no Occafion given to reflect upon the Truth and Faithfulnefs of God. But

5thly.

5thly. All the Promifes of God fhall be accomplifhed in the next World to the greatest Advantage. The Joys of that glorious Paradife, will fufficiently compensate our prefent momentary and medicinal Sorrows and Miferies. But it's Time to proceed to the Improvement of this Subject. And

Ift. We may learn from what has been faid, the dangerous and dreadful Cafe of all impenitent Sinners in general, and more particularly of fuch, who are guilty (habitually) of Lying, Falfhood, Equivocation, and Deceit of any Kind. As they hereby directly oppose the Nature and Law of the God of Truth, as well as contradict the Genius of his People, who are Children that will not lie; fo they verge to the Temper of the Devil, the fworn Enemy of God, who was a Lvar and a Murderer from the Beginning, and abode not in the Truth, who is a Lyar and the Father of it. All fuch do exclude themfelves from Communion with God, in this Life, and the Enjoyment of him in the next; and devote themfelves to a dreadful and interminable Destruction, Rev. ii. 1, 27. And there skall in no wife enter into it, any Thing that defleth, neither what/oever worketh Abomination, or maketh a Lye. Pf. v. 6. Thou falt deftroy them that fpeak leafing, the Lord will abbor the bloody and deceitful Man. God is a God of Truth, and therefore will execute his Threatnings upon the whole Tribe of Impenitents. The Threatnings are a flying Roll against Transgressors, in which is written nothing but Mourning, Lamentation and Woe. Jehovah hath faid, That he will wound the bairy Scalp, of every one that goeth on fill in his Trefpaffes, Pf. lxviii. 21. That he will judge Adulterers : That he beholds Mischief and Spite, to requite it with his Hand, Heb. xiii. 3. Pf. x. 14. That he will rain upon the Wicked Snares, Fire and Brimftone, and an barrible Tempeft, & that this shall be the Portion of their Cup, Pf. xi. 6. And he will furely be as good as his Word. The

The Heavens and Earth may pass away, but not a Word that God hath spoken, shall pass without its accomplishment. Let not therefore unconverted Sinners prefume or harden themselves in their Impieties, because Judgment is not speedily executed, for Delays are no Payment. Let themnot vainly conclude, that the Bitternels of Death is pall, because their Houses are safe from Fear, neither is the Rod of God upon them. Notwithstanding of all this, they may affure themselves that the Wicked are referved for the Day of Defiruction, they skall be brought forth to the Day of Wrath, Job xxi. 9. 30. Let any who expect Impunity in a Courfe of Rebellion against the great God, feriously and speedily confider that dreadful Threatning. Deut. xxix. 19. 20. And it cometh to pals, when he beareth the Words of this Curle, that he blefs himfelf in his Heart, faying, I fhall have Peace, the I walk in the Imagination of mine Heart, to add Drunkenness to Thirft. The Lord will not fpare him, but then the Anger of the Lord and his Jealousie shall smoke agains that Man, and all the Curfes that are written in this Book fall ly upon bim and the Lord fhall blot out his Name from under Heaven. I fhall only mention one other Scripture, under this Uie, and it is Pf. 1. 20, 21, 22. Thou fitteft and speakeft against thy Brother, theu slanderest thine own Mother's Son, thefe Things haft thou done, and I kept Silence, thou thought'ff that I was altogether fuch an one as thy felf, but I will reprove thee, and let them in order before thine Eyes. Now confider this ye that forget God, leaft I tear you in Pieces, when there. (ball be none to deliver. But 2dly. The Truth of God fpeaks much Comfort to his People under all their Troubles. What tho' Jehovah hides his Face, yet let not Believers defpond: For he will furely return with everlafting Loving-kindnefs. His Faithfulnefs cannot fail, he will ever be mindful of his Covenant. Pf. exi. 5. The gracious God hath made many precicus Promifes of

of important Benefits, fuited to all the various Difficulties which his People labour under in this Life, fome of which have been already mentioned in this Sermon, every of which his Truth flands engaged to fecure. I Thef v. 24. Faithful is he that calleth you, who also will do it. Heb. vi. 18. That by two immutable Things, in which it was impofible for God to lie, we might have firong Confolation, who have fled for Refuge, to lay hold on the Hope fet before us, 1 Sam. xvi. 25. And alfo the Strength of Ifrael swill not lie or repent, for he is not a Man that he flould repent. And hence the Gifts of God are faid to be without Repentance, and his Mercies are called, the fure mercies of David. (Rom. xi. 29. Acts xiii. 24. 2 Sam. xxiii. 5.) Altho' my House be not to with God, yet be bath made with me an everlafting Covenant, ordered in all Things, and fure. As if he had faid, Tho' I fail much in that Purity God requires, yet this is my Comfort, that God bath made an everlasting Covenant with me. Let us therefore be exhorted to the following Duties, namely,

Ift. Let us truft in God, and expect from him the Fulfilment of all his Promifes to the Church in general, and to ourfelves in particular, (if we be his) what tho' Clouds and Darkneis cover her Horizon, yet the faithful God has promifed to be the Glory and Defence of Zion, and to make her a Praise in the Earth. And what the' ourfelves are op-, preffed with, and fometimes led captive by our Corruptions God has promised, to subdue our Iniquities, Mic. vii. 19. And furely the Truth of God in his Promifes is a fufficient Foundation for our Faith. 2 Tim. ii. 12. If we believe not, yet he abideth faithful, he cannot deny himself. He is abundant in Truth, Ex. xxxiv. 6. That is, he is to far from coming flort of his Word, that he will be better than his Word. " We are not, faith Chryfoftome, to belive our " Senfes fo much as we are to believe the Promifes, for " they may fail us, but the Promifes cannot, being built a upon

" upon the Truth of God." And furely he that believeth not, has made God a Lyar: i.e. He implicitly charges lying upon the God of Truth. I John v. 10.

2 diy. Let us commit our felves to him in well doing, as unto a faithful Creator, 1 Pet. iv. 19. Or as our Text expresses it, Let us commit our Spirit into his Hand, for he has redeemed us. What tho' we be encompaffed with Diftreffes, let us truft, that he who hath delivered, and doth deliver, that he will deliver us, 2 Cor. i. 10. That he who hath begun a good Work in us, will perform it, untill the Day of JESUSCHRIST, Phil. i. 6. Let us avoiding all diffreffing Anxiety about future Events, calmly and firmly reft upon the Promifes of a faithful God. And finally let us imitate the God of Truth, in Speech and Practice, hereby we shall be conform'd to the God of Truth, and evidence our being living Members of the Church militant, which is the Pillar and Ground of Truth. 1. Tim. iii. 15. As well as the certainty of our being at last admitted into the Church Triumphant. (Pla. xv.) It is for a Lamentation that many who profess Chriftianity, fall fhort of Turks and Indians, in respect of Truth and Fidelity, and fo give Ground for this doleful Diftick .----

For many Years, no Faith in Covenants I've four.d;

Tho' Words be fweet, yet Hearts, yea Deeds with Gall and Fraud abound.

And furely there is nothing more diffuonourable to God, and detrimental to the Interefts of Religion, than fuch Practices; therefore let every one that nameth the Name of God depart from them.

DEUTERONOMY vi. 4. Hear O Israel, the Lord our God is one Lord,

-HIS Book of Deuteronomy contains a Repetition of much of the Hiftory and Laws which were mentioned in the three preceeding Books, and therefore the Greek Interpreters, have justly given it the Name Deuteronomy; which fignifies the fecond Law, or the fecond Edition of the Law. This Repetition Mofes deli-vered a little before his Death, not only by Writing, that it might be the better preferv'd as a continual Memorial and Director in all Time coming, but also by Word of Mouth, that it might have the greater Influence upon the People's Affections for the Prefent. The Men of that Generation, to whom the Law was first given, were all Dead, and a new Generation being fprung up in their Place, it was neceffary that it should be repeated to them by Mofes, and especially a little before his Departure from them, that it might make the deeper Impression on them, and as they were just going to take Possession of the promis'd Canaan, it was but necessary they should be told upon what Terms they might expect to hold and enjoy that Land. To this End Moles tells them what they were to believe and do, and among other Things of principal Importance he re-commends to their Attention, Affent and Confideration, Ссс in in the Words of our Text, that fundamental Article of Religion, viz. The divine Unity. Here O Israel the Lord cur God is one Lord. Here observe 1st. That the Truth recommended, is the Unity of God. That Jebovab who is our God in Covenant, is but one, one in his Effence, or Being, and the only Object of Religious Worship, one in Opposition to many God's. 1 Cor. viii. 4, 5, 6, We know that an Idol is nothing in the World, and there is none other God but one: For the' there be that are call'd God's, whether in Heaven or in Earth, as there be Gods many, and Lords many, but to us there is but one God. It is certainly of the laft Importance to be rightly fix'd, as to the Object of Worthip; for if this be not fuch as can make us Happy, our Faith and Practice want a proper Foundation, and are therefore Vain. Altho' the Gentiles, by the Light of Nature, have been led to acknowledge, that the proper Object of Worship must be a God; yet how strangely have they been miftaken, confus'd and divided in their Choice of him, by their vain Imaginations? They multiply'd Deities, and fought to God's that cannot fave, they aferib'd Deity to every Thing that did them Good, viz. To the Sun, Moon, Stars, Rivers, Fountains, Elements, Prutes, Vegetables. They had their City Gods their houshold Gods, garden Gods, Gods for particular Callings, Difeases, Immergents, Gc. of which Varro reckons three Hundred, and Hefud no lefs then thirty Thousand. Prudentius speaks truly of the Practice of the Gentile World in this Matter, in the following Stanza.

Quick quid Humus, Pelagus, ceaclum mirabile Signant: Id dixere Deos, Colles, Freta, Flumina, Flammas. Which may be thus English'd, Whatee'r was wonderful the Heaven or Earth contain'd. That Gods they call'd, tho' Hills, or Floods, or Flames. And And Juvenal speaks much to the same Purpose in the following Lines, viz.

Porrum et cepe nefas violare et frangere morfu : O fanctas gentes, quibus bec nafcuntur in hortis numina ! i.e., The Onion-God's that in their Gardens grew;

They judg'd Prophane to eat, and pay'd a Worfhip too. O happy Nations that profess'd a God-head purchas'd at fo cheap a Coft. Now in Opposition to the Politheism of the Gentiles, or to that Multiplicity of God's, which they held. Mofes in our Text recommends the Belief of the divine Unity, or of the Oneneis of God. This Verie the Yewish Church look upon to be one of the choiceft Portions of Scripture, they write it in their PhilaElery's, and think themfelves, not only obliged to fay it at leaft twice a Day, but think themselves very Happy in being so obliged, having this Saying among them, Bleffed are we who every Morning and Evening fay, bear O Israel the Lord our God is one Lord. This they have learn'd of an Antient Tradition; and indeed there is nothing in the Law which they think worthy of equal Reverence with these Words, concerning them they triumph and glory in their Book of Prayers, in the Manner before related, Bleffed are we, &c. But rather Blef-fed are those who duly confider, rightly improve, and firmly believe the Truth therein recommended. And this is the

2d. Particular our Text contains. Here Mofes not only fummonfes their Attention, but demands their Affent to this Foundation Truth Hear, i. e. not only with the Ears of your Body, but of your Mind : As if he had faid, attend to, confider, acknowledge, believe, retain and improve the Destrine of God's Unity as the Ground and Foundation of all Religion, But 3dlyWe have an Account of the Perfons to whom the aforefaid Truth and Duty are recommended, namely Ifrael, not Ifraelites in the Plural Number, but Ifrael in the Singular, to fignify that not only the Ifraelites in Common, but every individual Ifraelite in Particular, fhould be careful to embrace and retain the aforefaid Truth. The Word does not only intend the Carnal Ifrael, which Mofes brought out of Egypt into the Wildernefs, and which fofhua introduc'd into Canaan, which is its moft ufual Acceptation in Scripture, but that fpiritual Ifrael alfo, of which Paul fpeaks, (Rom. xi. 21, 29.) The word Ifrael refpects the Church of both Teftaments, to whom the Doctrine of the Unity of God is recommended as a fundamental Article. It may be likewife obferv'd that the Manner of Mofes's Recommendation is very folemn, as appears by the Note of Obfecration he ufes. O Ifrael ! much Concern for divine Truth, and Zeal, and Tendernefs for the Peoples Well-fare, is herein intimated.

In difcourfing upon this divine Perfection, viz. The Unity or Onenefs of God, I would

I. Endeavour to prove the Truth of it.

II. Explain its Nature.

III. Improve it. And

1ft. I am to prove the Pruth of the divine Onenefs. And here I may observe, that the Scriptures affert this different Ways. 1ft. By faying expressly that God is One. Zec. xiv. 9. In that Day shall there be one Lord, and his Name One. Pfa. lxxxiii. 18. That Man may know that thou whose Name alone is Jehovah, art the most High over all the Earth. Pfa. lxxxvi. 10. For thou art great and dost wonderous Things, thou art Good alone. And 2dly By afferting that there is no God besides him. Deut. iv. 35. Unto thee it was shew'd that thou mightest know that the Lord he is God, and there is none none elfe befides him. Ifa. iv. 2. I am the Lord, that is my Name, and my Glory will I not give to another, neither my Praife to graven Images. Ifa. xliv. 8. Is there a God befides me? There is no God, I know not any. Ifa. xlv. 5. I am the Lord and there is none elfe, there is no God befides me. And the 21ft Verfe, There is no God elfe befides me, a just God and a Saviour, there is none befides me.

me. And the 21ft Verfe, There is no God elfe befides me, a just God and a Saviour, there is none befides me. Many of the Ancient Fathers have written largely in Confirmation of this Important Truth against the Gentile Idolatries, particularly, Ignatius, Justin, Tertullian, Cyprian, Nazianzen, Basil, Austin, Damascen yea some of the wise-est of the Gentile Sages, have given their suffrage to the Doctrine of the divine Unity. Socrates for ascerting this lost his Lite by the Fury of the Athenians! And Plato in one of his Letters to Dionysius, fayeth thus, "Hinc inquit "difces, scribam ego ferio necne cum serio, ordior Epistolam, ab "uno Dec, cum fecus a pluribus." i. e. By this (fayeth he) "You may know whether I write feriously or not, when "I write feriously, I begin my Epistle from one God; when "otherwise, from many." Likewise Sophocles hath these Words, "Unus revera Deus est, qui celum, fabrisciarit et ter-" otherwile, from many." Likewile Sophocles hath thele Words, "Unus revera Deus est, qui celum, fabrificavit et ter-"ram--at nos mortales versuita decepti, statuimus deorum ima-"gines--et his facrificia, et vanos conventus tribuendo, hoc "modo nos pios esse reputamus. i. e. Truly there is one God "who hath made Heaven and Earth; but we poor Mor-"tals being deceiv'd by the Craft of fome, appoint Ima-ges of the Gods, and by offering Sacrifices and vain Con-"ventions to those, we reckon ourselves pious." Both Lastantius and Cicero acknowledged that their Gods were Latiantius and Cicero acknowledged that their Gods were but Men, who formerly lived in in the World: They give an Account of their Birth and Parentage, as well as of the Places where they lived, and Time when they died; and inform us, how fome of them ob-tain'd the Honour they fuppos'd they were advanced to to after Death, viz. As the Reward of Vertue, or in Commemoration of the Good, that they had done to the World in their Life, either by the Invention of profitable Arts, Succeffes in Wars, or fome other kind of Service to their Country. It is true, among the Romans, fome had the Honour of an Apotheofis or being reckon'd among the Number of the Gods, at the Requeft of their furviving Friends. And this was done after the Time of Julius Cafar by the Decree of the Senate, who at the fame Time likewife appointed the Rites of Worfhip that fhould be paid to them. And indeed fome of the Emperors of Rome were carried to that pitch of Vanity and Arogance, that they obliged the Senate to deify them while they were alive. Ariflotle difcovers his Belief of one fupream Deity, by feveral Paffages in divers Parts of his Works, to the following Effect.

He afferts, " That there is a God, who is the first " Caufe or Beginning of all Things, and that he was from " Eternity, or in the Beginning, and that Time took its " Rife from him, and that he is the Fountain of Life, and " the best of Beings. That he is Self-fufficient, the chief " Good, and stands in no need of, or can receive any Ad-" vantage from any, and that by him all Things consist."

Several of the Gentile Philosophers difcover their Belief of the divine Unity, by afferting, " That there was one " fupream God, fuperior to all others, whom they call the " Father of the God's and of Men. Him they call the " Beginning, the End, and Author of all Things, who was " before, and is above all Things." Morneus, brings Quotations of this Kind, from the Writings of Plotinus, Preclus, Pherphery, Plutarch and others; from all which it appears that the wifer Sort among the Pagans, acknowledged the Unity of the fupream Being. And therefore that what they fpoke or did in Oppofition hereto, was only from a fordid compliance pliance with the prevailing Cuftom of their refpective Countries, to prevent Afperfions on their Characters, or Danger to their Perfons. It is probable that they paid only an inferior Kind of religious Worfhip to their Gods, like to what the Papifts give to their Saints. It is true, herein they were Idolaters; but this they were induced to, in order to efcape popularOdium. I am not here labouring to extenuate the Pagan Idolatrys; but only to prove that a Number of the more Judicious of them, were led by the Light of natural Reafon to acknowledge the Unity of God.

Ift. Reafon teaches us, that in the Subordination of Things, which we behold in the World, we must proceed to fome first Cause, which is of it felf, and absolutely the first, before which Nothing could exift, and with which Nothing could exift of the fame Nature : For then it would not be first. All Number begins in a Unity, and to fay there are two first Beings, is a Contradiction in the very Nature of Things. The Multitude of fecond Beings proves that that there is a first Being, otherwise they could not exift : For they can't give Being to themfelves. Where there is no first, there is no Order, and where there is no Order, there is no Goodnefs, except Confusion be to called, which is abfur'd; and where there is no Goodnefs, there is nothing : For Being and Goodnefs are convertible Terms. Now that Being which is first is chief in respect of Dignity, and therefore he only is God, for Equality and Priority, are inconfiftent to the fame Subject. The very Idea of a God, implies a Supremacy in all poffible Excellency.

That there is but one Being, who is without Beginning, and gave Being to all others, appears thus. If there were more Gods, they must derive their Being from him, and then they are a Part of his Creation, and confequently not Gods: For God and the Creature are infinitely oppos'd to each other. Well then feeing there is but one Self-exifting independent Being, there can be but one God.

2dly. Reafon proclaims that God is infinite in all Perfections and that becaufe he is not limitted by a prior Caufe, he muft therefore poffefs all Being and Goodnefs, either formally or eminently. Now the very Idea of God's Infinity not only fpeaks his own Perfection to be boundlefs, but likewife that he bounds and limits the Perfections of all others. And thus being limitted they cannot be infinite and to the Poffeffors thereof cannot be God.

And as infinite Perfection implies in it all Perfection, fo it cannot be divided among many, for then the Parts would be lefs than the whole, and fo not infinite : Upon this Supposition there would be no God at all, because infinite Excellency is necessfarily implied in the Idea of a God.

There is but one infinite Being and therefore but one God. Jer. xxiii. 24. Do not I fill Heaven and Earth fayeth the Lord. If there be one infinite Being filling all Places at once, how can there be any Room for another Infinite to fubfift?

3dly. Reafon demonstrates, that the first Being is Almighty in Power, and therefore there is no other God, that can hinder or withstand his Operations. If they can, then he is not Omnipotent, and so not God? If they cannot then they are not Omnipotent and so not God? If there were two Omnipotents, then we may reasonably suppose that there would be a contest between them, that which one would do, the other Power being equal, would oppose, and so all Things would be brought into Confusion. But that constant and uniform Order which we behold in the Goernment of the World, is a sufficient Confutation of this, and and Proof of the contrary, viz. That there is but one God. If there were more God's than one, all of them muft be faid to be able to do all Things, and then the fame individual Power which is exerted by one muft be exerted by all, which is abfurd and in the Nature of Things impoffible.

<sup>4</sup> 4thly. Reafon likewife teaches, that if there be moreGods than one, then either they muft be all equal to one another or unequal, if equal then none of them can be the chief Good, becaufe another is as good as he, and fo none of them can be God; becaufe to be the chief Good is an effential Attribute of God, which is by this fuppos'd equality deftroy'd. If they are unequal then the Inferior cannot be God, becaufe he is imperfect and dependant. Supremacy is doubtlefs an unalianable Prerogative of God, he is over all God bleffed forever:

5thly. Abfolute Sovereignty, and univerfal Dominion are effential to a God, he being the Author and Original of all other Beings, has by confequence a Right to give Laws to all, but is fubject to no controle himfelf, becaufe he is Self-exiftent and independent. Now if there were more God's than one, then every one could not have abfolute Sovereignty and univerfal Dominion: They might command and forbid oppofite Things, and fo controle the Power of each other. The fame Thing might therefore become both Sin and Duty, in refpect of the Subjects, becaufe commanded by one and forbid by the other, and thus there could be no certain Rule of Right, every Thing would be confus'd.

6thly. We may farther obferve, that all the divine Attributes prove God to be one. If none be God but he that hath all those Attributes which Scripture and Reason affign to God, then there can be but one. Altho' there be some D d d d faint Emblem of fome of God's Attributes in Creatures, as particularly of his Holinefs and Goodnefs, &c. yet Creatures have them not abfolutely or in the higheft Degree, they may be Good, Holy, but cannot be Holinefs and Goodnefs; and thus the Attributes which are call'd communicable, can in their own Nature, properly and abfolutely, belong but to one. And as to God's incommunicable Attributes, fuch as his immenfity, &c. it is impoffible they fhould be multiply'd, if there be two Immenfity's, they muft neceffarily confine each other, and fo neither be immenfe. Once more 7thly. Seeing that God is the Creator of all, it is but just and right that he should be the End of all, of him and thro' him, and therefore to him are all Things. As the first Being must needs be the Best, and in this Sense deferves to be the last End of all, so he has a just Claim of Right to it, having produced all by his Power, and preferved and supported all by his Goodness; and therefore the Creature is under a natural and indispensable Obligation to pay this Debt of Homage to his Creator, Preferver and Benefactor, namely, to love him with superant Respect, and to make his Glory his last End in all his Actions, whether Natural, Civil or Religious, all which is utterly inconstiftent with a multiplicity of Gods: For we can give our highest Love but to one, and make his Honour our highest Mark, which is the Natural Result of the Former.

In the mean Time it ought to be maintain'd, that thefe 'Things following do not oppose the Unity of God, viz.

Ift. A plurality of Names, feeing they fignify no more but one God. Nor 2dly. A plurality of Attributes, feeing they do but reprefent the infinite Perfection of the divine Nature, which is but one in it felf, in a Way accommodated to our weak and inadequate Conceptions, Nor

3 dly

3dly. A Trinity of Perfons, feeing that among the three Perfons there is but one Effence, and three Modes of fubfifting; from which Refults not three Gods, but Three, who are one God. This leads me to the

2d. Propos'd, which was to explain the *Nature of the di*vine Onenefs. And here it may be observed that the Almighty is one.

Ift. Not by a Unity of Subject and Accident, namely fuch as belongs to all created Spirits, Angels and the Souls of Men. Nor 2dly. By a Unity of compounded Parts, in which Sente the Soul and Body conflitute one Man. Nor 3dly. By a Unity of Species, which admits more Individuals of the same Name and Nature.

But pofitively God is one by a fingular Unity of Nature, which excludes all Compefition of every Kind: He is fo one as to be undivided in himfelf, and indivifible into more of the fame Name and Nature, and therefore the Unity of God is not an Arithmetical Unity which is the Beginning of Number, but it is an effential and transcendent Unity, whereby God is one in his Nature: And hence Bafil fayeth truly, "Non unum inquit Deum numero fed Natura confitemur. "i. e. We confefs not a God one in Number, but in Na-"ture." And undoubtedly Onenets is aferib'd to God, in Opposition to the falfe God's of the Pagans, as has been before observ'd, as well as in Contradiffinction to all titular God's.

King's are call'd God's, becaufe their Royal Scepter is an Emblem of his Power and Authority; and Judges are likewife fo call'd, becaufe they are fet in God's Place to do Juffice; but they are dying God's. Pfa. lxxxii. 5. 7. I faid ye are Gods; but ye fhall dye like Man. It is in this Senfe that the Apoftle observes, that there are God's many and D d d 2. Lords Lord's many; but to us fayeth he, there is but one Lord. I Cor. viii. 5. 6. But that the Unity of the divine Nature may be the better apprehended, let it be farther obferv'd.

1ft. That the various Perfections of the Deity are not in him, as fo many Ingredients which conflitute his Being together; for then each would have but a partial Perfection, and there would be fomething in God lefs than God, which is abfurd. Nor,

2dly. Are the divine Perfections different from each other in him, as the Parts and Properties of Creatures are, e. g. Wifdom in Men is realy different from Juffice. But the fupream Being hath no Parts, and his Perfections are not fo diffinguish'd as the qualities of Creatures; for if fo, there would be as many diffinct infinite Beings in God, as there are Attributes. Nor

3dly. Are any of the divine Perfections accidental to him. No, they are all his very Being. That is faid to be accidental, which a Subftance can fubfift without. But to fuppofe the Almighty bereav'd of any one of his Attributes, is to fuppofe him Imperfect, and fo no God. Therefore 4thly. The divine Perfections are reprefented as many and diffinct, becaufe of the different Objects which the divine Perfection fixes upon, and the different Effects it produces in Creatures, as well as in condetcention to their weak and finite Minds, which can conceive of the divine Nature, but as it were by Parts. But notwithftanding, it is evident from both Scripture and Reafon, that the divine Nature is Simple and Uncompounded, and that whatever is in God is God. We fhould therefore be careful that while we compare the divine Perfections with the faint Emblems thereof that be in Creatures, to affift our Conceptions of them, that we do in in the mean Time feparate from them every Thing that argues imperfection.

The Improvement of this Subject remains. And Ift. The Confideration of the Unity of the fupream Be-ing may juftly excite in us an Abhorrence of all Idolatry, whether of a more crafs or fubtile Kind; for by both the divine Unity is deny'd. The Polytheifm of the Gentiles is but a fpecious Sort of Atheifm; they that Worfhip more than one God, do in Effect worfhip no God at all; because they give him not that supream undivided Respect which is his due. 2 King xvii. 33. 34. They feared the Lord, and served their own God's, after the Manner of their Nations .---- They fear not the Lord. How deteftable therefore is the Idolatry of the Papists, who reverence with a Religious Worship, Saints and Angels, yea Images and Relicts? What Reason have we to bless God while we live, that we are deliver'd from that Egyptian Bondage? And should not the Unity of God incline us to deteft all spiritual Idolatry, which consists in giving our Hearts to, trusting in, and ferving of divers Lufts and Pleasures, viz. The Luft of the Eye, the Luft of Flesh, and the Pride of Life. Some make a God of Pleafure, 2 Tim. iii. 4. Lovers of Pleafures more than Lovers of God. Most certainly, whatever we love more than God, we make a God: Others there be that make Money their God, they make Gold their Hope, and fay to the fine Gold, thou art my Confidence, Job. xxxi. 24. Cthers make a God of their Belly. Philip iii. 19. Whofe God is their Belly. Clemens Alexandrinus writes of a Fish " That hath its Heart in its Belly." This Fish is a proper Emblem of Epicures, for their Heart may be faid to be in their Belly; they cheifly mind their Gratification of their fenfual Apetite. This is the Evil which God forbids in the first Command ; and which, in fome Refpect, feems feems to exceed in Bafenefs all the Reft which are forbid by the other Precepts : Whatever we put in the Room of God, we may expect will prove a Devil to us.

2dly. If there be but one God, their can be but one Religion, that is true in the World : And hence the Apollie observes, Ephef. iv. 5. That there is one Faith, one Lord, one Baptism, one God and Father of all, who is above all, and thro' all, and in you all. If there were many God's, there might be many Religions, every God would be worship'd in his own Way : But it is unreasonable to suppose that that God, who is one in his Being, should appoint. feveral Religions whereby he would be worshiped. The Reafon of the Heathens different Rites, was their adoring divers God's, whom they fuppofed they muft Worship in a different Manner : Tho' there be many Ways to Hell, there is but one Road to Heaven, and that is the Path of Faith and Holinefs, without which no Man shall enjoy God. It is as Dangerous to fet up a Religion, fundamentaly Falfe, as to let up a falle God; for indeed the one supposes the other. Eut 3dly. We fhould be excited to enquire, whether this one God be ours in a Covenant Way? Without which we can reafonably take no Comfort in meditating upon this, or any other of his Attributes. Now this we may know ' by the following Particulars,  $vi\alpha$ .

1ft. If we fear this one habitually more than all; becaufe he is infinitely Greater and Mightier than all. (Mal. i. 6.)

2 dly. If we defire him habitually more than all; becaufe he is infinitely better than all befides him (Pf. lxxiii. 25.)

3dly. If we generally delight in him more than in all belidee befides him, becaufe his loving Kindnefs exceeds all other. Enjoyments, yea even the Sweets of Life itfelf. (Pfa. iv. 6. 7.)

4thly. If we trust and hope in him more than all (generally;) because he excells all in Wisdom and Faithfulnets, (Joshua. xxiii. 14.)

fulnels, (Joshua. xxiii. 14.) 5thly. If we from Love generally obey him before all; becaute he is infinitely higher than all. The Sovereign Lord, the everlafting King, who fways the Scepter over the whole Universe, (Acts iv. 19.)

6thly. If we bewail the Absence of this one God more then all other Losses. Pf. xlii. 5. Why art thou cast down O my Scul, why art thou disquieted within me?

7thly. If increase of Conformity to him in Mind and Life be the principal Object of our Defire, Care and Labour. Philipi. iii. 13. 14. I prefs forwards towards the Mark ! If upon enquiry we find in ourfelves the aforefaid Characters, truly we have great Reafon to rejoyce, whatever outward Diffreffes we endure ; becaufe in having one God for our Portion, we have more then all befides him, infinitely more ! His Wildom is Unfearchable, his Power Infinite, and his Goodness Incomprehensible ! As his Wisdom can cafily devife a Way for his People's Deliverance in their most Perplexing Immergency's, fo his Power is able to effect it, Maugre all Oppofition of Hell and Earth ! And his Goodnefs as well as Promife engages his Wifdom and Power in his Peoples behalf. Add to this, that his Immutability fecures their Safety upon an unalterable Foundation! Surely then to use the Pfalmist's Language, Blessed are the People scho are in fuch a Cafe; yea bleffed is that Pectle, whele God is the Lord ! Well then when our Minds are divided and diffrefs'd with a Variety of Fears and Cares, arifing from a View of the Wars, Debates, and Confusions in the State and Church, as well as in Families and Neighbourhoods, let let us bewail Sin, which has introduced all this Confution into the World, by breaking that Bleffed Unity which once fubfifted between God and us, and thence enfu'd a Breach between Man and Man, between Man and himfelf. And having lamented Sin, the Source of Difcord, let us give our whole Heart to one God, who is the Fountain of Sweetnefs, Concord and Unity, and humbly rejoyce in him as our All! And earneftly afk of him, that according to the Tenor of his gracious Covenant, he would be pleas'd to give to his People every where one Heart, that they may be one as Jebovah is one, and his Name one. (Ezek. xi. 19. Zecka. xiv. 9.)

But how doleful is the Cafe of all fuch who want the aforefaid Characters; as they are without God fo they are without Hope, Poor, Blind, Miferable and Naked, (Epbef. ii. 12. Rev. iii. 17.) without true Comfort, and without Defence; in the Fullnefs of their Sufficiency they are in Want; yea all the Perfections of God are engag'd against them. (Job ix. 4.) As those that have God for their Portion are Happy in him, in Want of all other Things, fo those that want this Portion are Miserable in the Posseficiency all besides him.

Again from the Doctrine of God's Unity we may learn how Wicked the Practice of fuch is, who when they have loft Goods feek to Wizards and familiar Spirits how they may get their Goods again, this is exprefly condemn'd by the Law of God, (Deut. viii. xi.) There fhall not be found any that confults with familiar Spirits. 2 Kings. i. 6. Thus faith the Lord, is it not becaufe there is not a God in Ifrael, that theu fendest to enquire of Baal-zebub, the God of Eckron. Such who go to the Devil for Council, renounce the true God, and their baptifinal Dedication to him !

Is there but one God ? What Reafon then have we to be thankful that we have the Means of knowing him, while Multitudes who are alike to us by Nature are perifhing for Lack of Vifion ? Our Lines have fallen to us in pleafant Places, we have Line upon Line, and Precept upon Precept ! The Harbingers of God' are frequently proclaiming in our Ears, Hear O Hrael, the Lord thy God is one Lord.

Is there but one God ? Then let us, reduce our Affections from their vain Wandrings, and divided Courfes, after other Lords and Lovers, and fix them in a united Chanel. and with intenfe Vehemence upon the Bleffed God as their Center ! Let Yebovab be the Object of our highest Regard, and the Foundation of our Trust and Confidence! Let us devote ourfelves and our All to- his Glory and Service ! Surely he has the beft right to our Love and Obedience who is the Author of our Beings! He beft deferves them who is the Fountain of all our Benefits, and he is belt able to requite both, being infinite in Power and Goodnefs! O let us endeavour to pleafe the One-great and glorious God, by loving, believing, univerfal and fready Obedience ! For this is the main Thing we have to mind in this prefent World ! This reflects Honour upon our Profession, brings Comfort into our own Minds, and tends to eftablish the Kingdom of CHRIST among Men.

And finally, Brethren, feeing there is but one God, let his People endeavour to be One as God is one : Let us endeavour to be One in Judgment and One in Affection : And hence the Apoftle Paul exhorts the Corinthians, to be all of one Mind, I Cor. i. 10. And it is faid, Actsiv. 32. That the Multitude that believed were of one Heart and one Soul. Nothing is more amiable in it felf, and ferviceable to the Church of God, then for Brethren to cheell together in Unity, PhJ. exxxiii. I. This is like Hermons Deve and the Eec.

tragrant Ointment pour'd on Aaron's Head ! This Unity was what our Lord himfelf pray'd for, John xvii. 21. That they all may be One. Upon which Words Atkanafus gloffeth thus, " Even as (fays he) the Father and the Son are One " in Effence, fo we by fome imperfect refemblance are made One " while we behold him. One among ourfelves, by mutual " concord of Mind and unity of Spirit." The Apoftle Paul urgeth this Unity by various arguments, Ephef. iv. 4, 5, 6. Endeavouring to keep the Unity of the Spirit in the Bond of Peace. We are all one my/fical Body, and every one of us Members of it, among which what is more advantageous than Harmony? There is one Spirit by whole Affiftance we are baptifed into one Body, 1 Cor. xii. 12, 13. There is one Hope of our Calling, viz. eternal Glory and Happinefs, Heb. xii. 22, 23. One Lord JESUS, one Faith in him, one Baptism, one God and Father of all. Let us therefore carefully avoid all fchifmatical Doctrines and Practices, which are fo exceeding prejudicial to Religion. To this End let us Labour to be of a humble, charitable and forgiving Temper, Charity hopes all Things, it fuffers long, is kind, and is not cafily provok'd. Let us earneftly pray to the great God, that he would heal the Breaches of Zion, which are wide as the Sea, and caufe his People to be one as he is one. Aanen. Amen.

JEREMIAH x. 10.

But the Lord is the true God, he is the living God, and an everlafting King: At his Wrath the Earth f. all tremble and the Nations f. all not be able to abide his Indignation !

T is probable that the Prophecy contain'd in this Chapter, was delivered after the first Babylonish Captivity, because it has a double Reference; the first Part respects those that were carry'd Captive; and the latter Part respects those that remain'd in the Land of Palessine.

The Prophet in the Beginning of this Chapter, first Addreffes those who were carry'd Captive into the Idolatrous Country of the Caldeans, and feriouily cautions them against the Infection of it, verse 1, 2. I hus fayeth the Lord, learn not the Way of the Heathen. In the following Verfes the Prophet exposes the Vanity of the Pagan Idolatry, by shewing that fuch fort of Gods were but the Work of Men's Hands, and had neither Life nor Motion, he therefore advifes them in the 7th verife, to cleave to the God of Ifrael, against all Temptation to the Contrary. This Advice he inforces in the Words of cur Text, by reprefenting fome of his Perfections, in Opposition to the Idols of the Heathen, But the Lord is the true Gcd. The God's of the Pagans are vanity and a lye, counterfeit and imposlure; but Jebovab is truly and really God, as well as the God of Truth a God who Eee 2. cannot cannot lie or deceive. He is the living God. The Pagan Idols are dumb dead Things, that have neither Life, Breath or Motion : But Jehovah is the living God, i. c. as Calvin justly explains, " He himsfelf is endowed with Lise, and is to " cthers the Fountain of Life." Pfal. xxxvi. 9. It is in him we live, and move and have our Being. Act. xvii. 28. God is Life it lelf, has Life in himfelf, and is the Original of all that Life which Creatures enjoy. And an everlafting King. He has a Right to rule, and has exercis'd Dominion from everlafting, and will to everlafting ; whereas the Idols of the Heathens are but of Yesterday, and will soon cease to be .---- At bis Wrath the Earth shall tremble, and the Nations Shall not be able to abide his Indignation. The Prophet had observ'd in the 5th Verse of this Chapter, that the Pagan Idols could do neither Evil or Good, they are poor impotent forry Shams, and Trifles of no Moment, unworthy of either Love or Fear! But on the Contrary the Wrath of Jebovab is dreadful, at this the Earth trembles, his Angry frown makes the Worlds Foundations shake and the Pillars of Heaven tremble, and the Nations, were all their Strength united, are as unable to refift his Almighty Indignation, as they are to endure it ! Jebovab is the God of Nature, the Fountain of Being and Power and therefore all Nature is at his Difpofe and Controle, his Empire is Universal, Absolute, Eternal; The Lord fkall reign forever, thy God O Zion to all Generations !

The Subject I purpose to speak upon from this Text is the Life of God, he is the living God. In discoursing upon which I defign

I. To prove the Life of God. And

II. To explain its Nature.

And then proceed to the Improvement. And nġ

1ft. I am to prove that God lives. To this End it may be observ'd, that the facred Scriptures frequently afcribe Life to God, and affure us, that he is the Author of Life to all that posses it : And hence he is call'd the living Ged. (I/a. xxxvii. 17. Dan. vi 34. Pfa. lxxxiv. 2. Mat. xvi. 16.) And in many other Places which it is needlefs to mention. The Almighty is likewife faid to be Life it felf. (Col. iii. A. 1 John v. 20. And the Fountain of Life, Jer. ii. 13. Pf. xxxvi. 10.) In him we are faid to live, move, and have our Being. (Ast. xvii. 28.) The Oath which the Fathers us'd, was the Lord liveth, (Jer. v. 2.) And Jehovab himfelf fwears by nothing but by his Life and Holinefs : This Oath is us'd fourteen Times in the Prophety of Ezekiel. Moreover Life is not only attributed to God effentially, but perfonally to each of the facred Three, to God the Father, John v. 26. For as the Father hath Life in himfelf, Jo hath he given to the Son to have Life in himfelf. , To God the Son, Joh. xiv. 19. Becaufe I live ye shall live alfo. Hence he is call'd the Prince of Life, and that not only becaufe he has Life in himfelf, by the Father as Mediator, but is also our Life, and possefies the Power of an endless Life (Job. i. 4. Ccl. iii. 4. Heb. vii. 16.) Hence it is faid of him, Rev. i. 17, 18. that he is the first and the last; that he liveth and was dead, and behold he is alive forevermore; and that he hath the Keys of Hell and Death. Tho' his human Nature fuffered Death to purchase Life for his People, yet his divine Nature cannot dye, but lives forever. Life is also attributed to God the Holy Ghoft 2. Cor. iii. 3. And hence he is call'd the Spirit of Life, Rom. viii. 2.

Reafon likewife affures us of this Truth, 'that God lives,' by the following Confiderations.

1st. It appears from the Effects of Life. God underflands, wills, loves, therefore he truly lives : These are the Effects Effects of Life, and Effects demonstrate the Being and Nature of their Cause; therefore Arifistle justly and trequently concludes from this, "That because God understands " all Things, be therefore lives a Blessed Life."

2dly. Those Things live, which move, and ftir themfelves. Now God doth all Things of himself, he is the First, and most perfect Cause of all, he is most Active by his Effence, yea a simple Act, he knows, different, wills, works, altogether of himself, and therefore must needs live.

3dly. Life is a certain Perfection, which involves no Imperfection in it. Thus those Things that live are reckon'd more perfect than fuch as do not, and therefore it cannot with any Shadow of Reason be deny'd to a Being, that is infinitely Perfect of, and in himself as Jebourab is.

4thly. God is the Fountain of Life to all living Creatures. (P/a, xxxyi, 10.) And this he could not be if he had not Life himfelf; for what one has not he cannot give. Here observe 1st. That God is the Author of the Life of Nature ; and hence he is faid to breath into Man's Noferils the Breath of Life. (Gen. ii. 7.) And in him we are faid to live and move. (Act. xvii. 28.) And 2dly Jehovab is the Author of the Life of Grace. Ephel. ix. 10. Net of Works leaft any Man (kould boaft : For we are his Workmanship, created in CHRIST JESUS unto good Works, ---- 3 dly. The Almighty is likewile the Author of the Life of Glory. Rom. vi. 23. For the Wages of Sin is Death, but the gift of God is eternal Life thro' JESUS CHRIST our Lord. Again 5thly. If God did not live, all the reft of his Attributes, and he himfelf, would be Vain, and would not differ from the Idols of the Gentiles, who have Eyes and fee net, Ears and hear not; and no wonder for they are dead. What would avail all the reft of God's Perfections without Life, feeing that without that, they cannot AC? I proceed to the

2d. Propos'd, which was to explain the Nature of the divine Life; which may be thus deferib'd, viz. That it is an effential Property of the divine Nature, whereby he is able to perform an infinite Variety of Action to a certain known and valuable End, with Council and Complacency. Ephef. i. 11. Who worketh all Things after the Council of his own Will. That the aforefaid Defeription may be the better underftood, let the following Particulars be confidered, viz.

Ift. That the Life of God is his Nature, Being or very Effence; and therefore he is call'd Life, as was obferv'd and prov'd before: Whereas Creatures are only living, their Life is but a certain Faculty of their Being, and therefore different from it; but the Life of God co-inceeds with his Effence.

2dly. The divine Life confifts in a Power of Action with Complacency: By a Power of Action we intend to fignify an Ability in God to produce more Effects without himfelf then he doth, and not that the Almighty is at any Time Inactive. No, the Almighty is in continual Action, otherwife he would fuffer a Change which is impoffible; and therefore divines generally and juftly obferve, that the Almighty is a fimple Act. This will farther appear by confidering that those Things are faid to live, who act of themfelves without being acted, or mov'd either by second Caufes, (in this fense Life belongs to Creatures) or without any prior moving Caufe at all, and fo God himfelf Lives : The Life of Creatures springs from some Composition, e.g. Natural Life from the Union of the Soul with the Body, which being broke all Power of natural Action ceafes : Spiritual Life from the Union of the Soul to original Righteousness. teoufnefs, which being broken all Power of working Spiritually ceafes. Rom., viii. 8. Thefe that are in the Flefb cannot pleafe God. And eternal Life tprings from a perfect Union with God, as the chief Good; which being broken the Soul cannot enjoy God, or rejoyce in him.

Moreover their is a fourfold Life in Creatures, viz. Vegetative, Senfitive, Rational, and Mixt. 1ft. A Vegetative Life is that whereby Things are able to do that which is requifite for acquiring and conferving the full Strength of their Nature, and the Propogation of their Kind ; this is the Life of Herbs. 2dly, A. fensitive Life is that Faculty whereby Creatures are enabled to difcern Things that are. hurtful to them, and Things that are good for them, and to fhun the one and feck the other; this is the Life of Beafts: Thefe are imperfect Kinds of Life which the meaneft Beings enjoy, and therefore cannot be aferibed to God. But 3dly. There is a more noble kind of Life call'd Rational, by which the Poffeffor of it is enabled to act with Understanding and reafonable Complacency. And 4thly there is a Mixt Life which refults from the two first Kinds of Life only, and this belongs to brute Animals, or from all. the Three and Exifts in Men.

Now we must not conceive in God any fuch imperfect Thing as Growth or Senfe, for he is a fimple, fpiritual, imaterial and perfect Being. The most perfect Kind of Life must therefore be aferib'd to him,  $\forall iz$ . Rational, whereby the Being of God is conceiv'd by us, as active Simply of itfelf; when in our Ideas of God we adjoin Reafin and Action, we have a just Notion of his Life.

It may be here farther obferv'd, that a Man hath four Kinds of Faculties in the Exercife of which he liveth, and Life in him is an Ability to exercife them : He hath an Understanding, Will, Affections, and a Power to move and work cutwardk ly; all these the Almighty ascribes to himself in his Word. But

3 dly. Another Particular, confiderable in the aforefaid Defcription of the Life of God, was this, viz. His asting to fome known and valuable End, this is but a neceffary Confequent of acting rationally; an intelligent Agent muft have fome End in View, and fuch an End as is worthy of his Choice. Now the End that God proposes both Scripture and Reason inform us, is his own Glory, or the Manifestation of his divine Excellency. And hence Solomon observes, Pro. xvi. 4. That he made all Things for himself. This is certainly the most noble End, because it most nearly relates the best of Beings; and therefore it must be supposed to be the End which the Almighty has chiefly in View in all his Actions, feeing, he ever acts with unerring Council.

But they there be fome Analogy between the Life of God and that of intelligent Beings, as has been obferv'd, yet they differ in many Things very widely, as will appear by confidering the following Properties of the divine Life, and comparing them with the Properties of the Lives of Creatures. Now the Divide Life is

1ft. Effential, viz. His Nature or Being, as has been obferv'd before, whereas the Life of Creatures is but a feparable Property, of their Beings, And

ble Property, of their Beings, And 2dly. The Life of God is Neceffary, this refults unavoidably from the former Property, if the Being of God exifts neceffarily of it felf, as it certainly does, as the Name Jebovab fignifies, and truly without this he could not be God, and if the divine Life is the fame with it, (as has been obferv'd) then it muft be Neceffary alfo; and hence the Almighty is faid to have Life in himfelf : Whereas all Creatures have but a borrow'd precarious and dependant Life communicated to them by God who is the Source of Life. 3dly. The Life of God is Perfect, he has the full and perfect Poffeffion of an interminable Life at once, whereas the Life of Creatures is imperfect, growing by the Addition of Days, Months and Years, our Life glides away in a continual Flux and Succession of Moments; but the divine Life is an everlafting NOW, without any Succession in Duration.

4thly. The Life of God is Infinite, without Deginning or End, hence he is faid only to have Immortality. (1*Tim.* vi. 16.) The Immutability of the divine Nature, as well as his Self-exificnce, flew the impoffibility of his faffering a Change by Death. But on the contrary, the Life of all Creatures had a Beginning, and in respect of the most of them, it will have an End. I proceed to the Improvement of this Subject, And

If the Sulject that has been difcours'd upon, offers Matter of Reproof to all fuch who behave towards God, as if he were a dumb Idol, that neither faw, heard or underftood, or could reward or avenge what is done in the World, and who therefore do not love, or fear, or worfhip him, as if he could neither do them Gocd or Hurt, Zepb. i. 12. And in their Straits they are fo full of Diftruft and Dejection as if they believ'd there was no God in Heaven who liv'd and faw their Miteries, and was able to fend them Succours fuited to them ! What can fuch Perfons expect who thus make an Idol of God? But that by the Executions of his Wrath, he will make them know to their dreadful Coft, that be is the Lord. Ezek. xxxv. 9. But to proceed 2dly. Let us examine ourfelves, by proposing the following Queftions, viz.

Ift. Do we content ourfelves with having a Name to live when we are dead? If fo our Cafe is dreaful ! Or adly.

2dly. Hath the living God quickned us, when we were dead in Trefpasses and Sins? Epel. ii. 4, 5.

3dly. Does the fuppos'd fpiritual Life in us, produce Sente, Breath, Motion, Warmth? Are we at Times forrowfully fenfible of the inward Diforders of our Souls? Does our Unbelief and other Corruptions afflict us? And do we know what the Abfence of God means, as well as his Prefence, by our own Experience; do we breath after God in the General above all others? (P/. Ixviii. 25.) Is it our chief Care and Study for the moft Part to grow in Grace? And does our principal Zeal and Warmth generallyrun in a religious Channel?

4thly. Do we generally labour to ferve the living God in a living Way? i. e. Not only with rais'd Affections, but approaching to him thro' CHRIST the new and living Way, the Way, the Truth and the Life? Heb. x. 20.

5thly. Have we forrow'd for the great Evil of forfaking the living God, the Fountain of living Waters, and running to broken Cifferns? Jer. ii. 13. And do we watch over our Unbelief, that we depart no more from kim? Heb. iii. 12.

6thly. Is God the Foundation of our Hope and Truft, and nothing elfe befides him? (1*Tim.* vi. 17.)

To fuch as can anfiver in the Affirmative to the aforefaid Quefiions, (the first excepted) this Subject ministers Comfort in everyDiffress, being perforaded that ourRedeemer lives, and that he is the Strength of our Life, particularly (1ft.) in the Difficultics of a Natural Life, if Sicknets threatens an End of it, if Poverty removes the Supports of Life, if Enemies feek it, and lay Snares to deftroy it, if the Fear of Death and Horror of Putrifaction and Pain perplex us ? What yields a fweeter Support, in those and fuch like Cafes, than to think that our God and Redeemer lives, yea that he is Life it felf, and the Fountain thereof: As he F f f 2 has given Life, fo he can preferve it in the midft of all Dangers, and againft the Force of all Enemies, yea he can reftore it when loft, for he is the Refurrestion and the Life ! Again,

2dly. In the Difficulties of the fpiritual Life, when we find ourfelves cold and dead, unfit for, and unable to perform the Duties of Religion, how fupporting and fweet is it to think that as the Father bath Life in bimfelf, fo bath he given to the Son to have Life in bimfelf, that we might have Life in him. I John iv. 9. Yea that he is cur Life. Col. iii. 4. And 3dly. In the Difficulties of Eternal Life: When the Fear of Death and the Body of Death pain us, fo that we are oblig'd to figh and fay, who fhall deliver us? Men and Brethren what fhall we do to inherit eternal Life? In this Cafe how fweet is it to think that God lives, and is the great Source of Life; and likewife that the Redeemer lives, and is our Life? Yea that to this End he was given by his Father, that we fhould not perifb but have eternal Life (To this Purpofe was his Death, that be might purchafe Life for us) And also that the Holy Spirit is a Spirit of Life who quickens? (Job. vi. 63.)

4thly. The Confideration of the infinite or immortal Life of God, may juftly humble us who carry our Breath, our Life, in our Nostrils, and are liable to such a manifold Death, viz. Temporal, Spiritual and Eternal, who may be speedily deprived of Life by the meanest Insects, the most inconfiderable Incidents, as both Scripture and History informs us, and who have brought ourselves into this mortal State by Sin! 2 Sam. xiv. 14. For we must needs die, and are as Water Spilt on the Ground, which cannot be gathered up again. Pial. exliv. 3, 4. Lord which cannot be gathered takest Knowledge of bim. Man is like to Vanity, bis Days are as a Skaddow that passible away. Our Life is like a Flower of The divine Life improv'd.

of the Grais, which flourishes in the Morning, but in the Ewening is cut down and withereth, Pfal. xc. c. 6. What is our Life, faith the Apostle James, but a Vapour which appears for a little time, and then vanisheth away. Man that is born of a Woman, fays Job, is of fow Days and full of Trouble, he cometh forth like a Flower and is cut down, he fleeth alfo as a Shadow and continueth not. As Bernard obferves, " In these Words is describ'd the shortness, certainty, " frailty and manifold Adversity of our Life." How much therefore may we be humbled, when we compare our Life with the Life of God ? What are we but Duft and Afhes ? And if our Life be fo fhort and uncertain, how vain muft all the Enjoyments of Life be? Seeing they cannot be better to us than that on which they depend ! O therefore let us be wean'd from the dying Things of Time and Breath after Immortality ! Let us earnestly feek it in the immortal God, that when our Heart and Flesh fails, he may be the Strength of our Heart, and our Portion for Ever !

5thly. The Confideration of the Life of God fhould excite ns to glorify him in Imitation of the heavenly Hoft. Rev. iv. 9. 10. When these Beafs gave Glory and Honour and Thanks to him, that fat on the Throne, who liveth for ever and ever. The Four and Twenty Elders fall down before bim that fat on the Throne, and worfhip him that liveth for ever and ever, and caft their Crowns before the Throne. I fay we fhould glorify God, not only becaufe he has Life, which is a Primary Perfection of Mankind, but by the Help of which all their Faculties are actuated, and without which they would be Vain : Thus the Life of God actuates all his other Attributes, &c. But becaufe he is Life it felf, yea fuch a Life as is Independent, Infinite, eternal Immutable, and the Author of all that Life which every every Creature enjoys: It's on these Accounts that God doth fo often glory of his Life, as well as fwear by it, and thereby diffinguish himself from faile God's who are but dead Idols.

And feeing that Jehovah' is the original of our natural and fpiritual Life, and is to be fo of our eternal likewife, to purchafe which he gave his only begotten Son to Death, let us ever retain a grateful Senfe of this in our Minds, and celcbrate the Praifes of God for it in Speech and Action!

Finally, The Confideration of the Life of God, should incline us to live to him ! Which confifts principally in the following Particulars, viz. 1ft. In directing all our Astions, whether Natural, Civil or Religious, to his Glory, as our higheft Mark. 1 Cor. x. 31. Whether therefore ye Eat or Drink, or what foever ye do, do all to the Glory of God. adly. In conforming our Actions according to his revealed Will. I Pet. iv. 2. That he no longer should live the rest of his time in the Flesh, to the Luss of Men, but to the Will of God. adly. It confifts in living by the Power of God, i. e. when we being fenfible of our inability to do what is pleafing to God, depend upon his Affiftance and Influence. (Gal ii. 19. 20.) Now the Life of God affords a munifold Argument of living to him. For 1st. Our God lives, and in his Life confifts his chief Perfection, and ours in Imitation of it. 2dly. He is the Author of our Life, and therefore it is but reafonable it should be referred to him. adly. Our Redeemer has Life in himfelf, is our Life, yea has died that we might live; not to curferves but to kim that has died for us. 2 Cor v. 15. 4thly. The Holy Spirit is a Spirit of Life, who quickens poor dead and ftupid Sinners, by Virtue of his Office. (Job. vi. 63.) O! therefore while we do live, let us live to the living God, and labour to be fervent and and lively in his Service; in this Way we may expect, in due

An Alarm to the Secure

due Time, to be translated thro' divine Grace, into a State of immortal Life and Glory. And fuch as are under the Power of fpiritual Death, which you may know by your being without fpiritual Senfe, Breath and Motion, I exhort in the Language of Paul to the Ephefians, chap. v. 14. Awake thou that fleepeft, arife from the Dead and Chrift shall give you Light! What meaness thou O Sleeper! Arife call upon thy God if so be that he will pitty you that you perish not ! While you are thus spiritually Dead, you can have neither Communion with the living God here, nor enjoy him hereafter, but are under his Curfe and Wrath. The Law you have broken condemns you, Gal. iii. 10. Curfed is every one that continueth not in all Things that are writ-ten in the Book of the Law to do them. The Gospel alfo which you believe not likewife rejects you ! Mark xvi. 12. Heaven is shut up against you, and Hell is open to receive you! Your Services must needs be loathfome because they are Dead ! Poor, poor Sinners! ye are every Moment in Danger of everlafting Mifery; and how foon ye may he engulph'd in it ye know not ! And will ye be eafie and uncoacern'd in fuch a fitate of extream and inexpreffible Danger? God forbid ! O think frequently and folemnly of your doleful Cafe and cry fervently and unweariedly to the living God for spiritual Life, without which you must eternally feel the Power of the fecond Death. Poor Sinners! Are not the plain Signs of Spiritual Poor Sinners! Are not the plain Signs of Spiritual Death upon you? For is not your Eyes clofe fhut? You have no affecting apprehension of your Disease and Danger, nor of the Remedy a gracious God has provided for perifhing Souls!

You hear not, to any purpose, the dreadful Thunders of the Divine Law, nor the gentler Wispers of the Gospel of Grace and Salvation! And as you have Eyes and see not not, Ears and hear not the Things that belong to your Peace, fo you have Hearts and feel not! when the Heraulds, the Harbingers of God denounce aloud the dreadful Curfes of Jebovab againft you from Ebal's Mount! When we unvail the Difmal Vault of Hell, and fet it before you in all it's flaming Terrors, yauning Wide to devour you! When we reprefent the Vengeance of Omnipotence hanging over your Guilty Heads, as a gloomy Cloud, Pregnant with woe and Ruin, every Moment ready to break upon you in a formidable refiftlefs Torrent, and drown you in Deftruction! When we take the Sword of God and point it at your Hearts, alas ye do not feel the Thruft, or grieve over your Mifery! When we bend the legal Bow and fhoot at your Bofoms, the Arrows rebound as if they ftruck on a Wall of Marble, and make no abidding Imprefion !

And when we fpeak in tofter Strains of the humble Charms of divine Grace and Love, and pronounce Bleffings upon all believing Penitents from the Summit of Gerefim ! Alas ye feel it not, but are as infenfible as Stones, as dead Corps! As the former did not alarm your Fear, fo neither does this incite your Love! When we labour to open the inexpreffible Beauties of Jesus, of Holineis, of Paradite, and fet them in their proper Light, alas ye are not affected ! The Condefcention of the Son of God in affuming our Nature, under its prefent ruinous Circumftances, his appearing in the Form of a Servant, who was God over all bleffeds for ever, his becoming poor, that we might be made tich, in a Word his being exposed to all the Infrances of Hardthip, Ignominy and Contempt in Life, and at laft to a most. painful and fhameful Death, is enough to affect any who have the leaft Spark of Life! But what lefs than Almightinefs can effectually affect the Dead?

And are there not fome among you, who find yourfelves without Tafte and Savour of Spiritual Things, and con-tent yourfelves with a fpiritlefs Form or Round of religious Daty, without any Growth in Grace, you think you have got as much as will do for Heaven, and are therefore fatisfied ? O! this is a plain Sign, that you are ftark blind, and ftone dead.

Awake poor Sinners! in the Name of God out of your dammable Śleep, before your Cafe be past all Remedy, there is no Hopes of your Conversion and Salvation, while ye remain in this Sleep and Death; ye must be awakned or damued, it is the Loft that CHRIST is only come to feek and five. The Whele need no Phylician, but the Sick. If you ask what you fhall do to get awakened into this Life? I anfwer, first try by Examination to get a thorough Knowledge of your dead and dammable State : For if you fail in this, you are never like to be deeply affected with the Miteries of your Condition: Ye should likewise think often with the utmost Seriouinets, upon Death, Yulgment, and Hell-Fire, in all the Forms of Terror, in which Scripture and Reafon do reprefent them ! Attend diligently upon the Word Faithfully difpens'd ; for this is a principal Mean of divine Appointment of bringing the Dead to Life. By the Foolifhnets of Preaching God faves those that believe. Faith comes by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God. Cry frequently and vehemently to God for the awakening Influencies of his Holy Spirit, and beware of quenching them by Sloth, prefumptucus Hopes, or fining against Light. Ye ungodly Sinners of every Age and Order, I charge you in the Name of the living God, and adjure you by his Authority, to awake, elfe you must be burnt for ever in the Flames of Hell ! Don't think that your dead-Devotions, unperform'd Retolations, inefficient Affections, Ggg Cť.

or external Priviledges, viz. Baptifm, and the Lord's Supper, will ftand you inftead when arraign'd before the burning Bar of the dreadful God! For neither Circumcifion or Uncircumcifion, avails any Thing but the New-Creature. You that are in the Fleth cannot pleafe God by any Thing you do: A corrupt Tree, as our Lord obferves, cannot bring forth good Fruit.

Awake poorSinners! for theGuilt of all your Sins lies like Mountains of Lead upon your wretched Souls! And confider I befeech you, that all ye have been doing fince ve were born, is in some respect Sin, in a greater or less r Degree ; ye have been going aftray from the Womb like wild Affes Colts, and every Imagination of the Tho'ts of vour Hearts have been only Evil continually; ye have been finning against Light and Love, against Law and Gospel, againft Mercies and Judgments : Thus you may fee that your Sins rival the Stars for Multitude, and are red as Crimfon in their Agravations; and you may affure yourfelves, that God's Juffice will oblige him to Proportion your Pains accordingly, O then ! How Inexprefible and Exquisite must your eternal Tortures be, if ve continue in this impenitent Scurity. Poor Sinners! Me thinks the Songs, the Shouts, the harminious Hofanahs of all the Hofts of Heaven invite you to awake, without which ye cannot be admitted into their honourable and happy Society, and join in their delightful Anthems with greatful Accents, befiles the dolorous Groans and hideous Scrieks of damned Men, and damned Angels, in the flaming Furnace of Tophet, may juftly glarm you out of your accurfed Stupor: For after a few Moments, ye must roar with them, except ye repent! Nothing but the abus'd Patience of God and the flender Thread of your Life, keep you from plunging down into that flaming Lake, that burning Main ! And for what you know An Alarm to the fecure.

know the Patience of God may expire towards you before the next Mornings Light, and then you are undone ! un-done ! undone forever ! O if the Thread of your Life breaks while you remain in this dead State, you are gone paft all Hopes forever, Dead and Damned at once, yea Damned to all Eternity ! And how many Accidents are you inviron'd with ? Are not many carry'd off fpeedily and unexpectedly? And why may not this be your Cafe? I befeech you Friends And why may not this be your Cale? I beleech you Friends by all the Happinets of Heaven, by all the Torments of Hell, for the Sake of God the Father, Son and Spirit, by all the Regard you owe to your Deathlefs Souls, your Realon, your Confeience, as well as the Ambaffadors of CHRIST a-mong you, that ye would areake. I befeech you as a Mef-fenger of the great God, as on my bended Knees, by the Groans, Tears, and Wounds of CHRIST, that you would Groans, Tears, and Wounds of CHRIST, that you would Awake. Yea I charge you by all the Curfes of the Law, and Bleffings of the Goipel, that ye would Awake. My Friends, you are witneffes againft yourfelves, that I have fet Death and Life before you, O choofe Life that ye may live! Let the wicked Man forfake kis Way, and the unrigh-tecus Man his Thoughts, and turn to God and be will have Mercy upon kim, and to cur God for he will abundantly par-don! O Sirs! confider these Things, as ye will answer it at: the Tribunal of CHRIST at the laft Day.

SERMON XXII.

I. JOHN v. 7. For there are Three that bear Record in Heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghoji, and Thele three are One.

HE Doctrine of the Trinity, is undeubtedly of the Ligheft Importance in Chrift anity : For the whole Scheme of Redemption is built upon this fundamental Point, namely, That God the Father did from all Eternity purpose to fend his only begotten Son into the World to assume human Nature that therein he might fatisfy divine Juffice, by his Suffering and Obedience. That the Son of God in the fume's of Time, did as Mediator, obey his Father's Injunctions, in enduring thatWeight of Wrath, which was due for the Sins of the Elect World, and that it is the Office of the Holy Spirit to make effectual Application of the Purchafe of CHRIST to them. Now if the Diffinction of Perfens in the Trinity be remov'd, thefe Things cannot be confiftently supported : For it is abfund to suppose, that the same Person should send himse f, and flatisfy himfelf, &cc. And thus the whole Flbrick of Chriftianity in refpect of its grand Peculiars would fink, its Foundation being deftroy'd, and the Religion of Mature take Place of reveal'd.

But the' the Doctrine of the Trinity, be of the laft Importance in the Chriftian Syftem, yet it is incomprehenfible ! Neither Neither fhould this be wondred at, feeing there are divers Things in Nature, which we cannot fully conceive of or explain, fuch as the Reafon of the Growth, and different Colours, as well as Shapes of Vegetables, and of the various inftincts of brute Animals. Not to mention the Nature of our own Souls, their Union with our Bodies, and Way of acting upon them. If Things that are of a finite Nature do thus poze and nonplufs our weak Underftandings, is it ftrange that the infinite Perfections of the divine Nature fhould trantcend the Comprehension of a finite Mind? The D'flance being io waft between the Object, and cur Faculties.

Neither is it unreasonable to believe, what we have no equal or adequate Ideas of, elfe we must believe in none of the divine Attributes: For every of those surpass the highest Flight, the utmost Verge of a Creatures Thought. e. g. Altho' natural Reafon affures us, that there is a God, and that Self-exiftence is neceffarily included among the Number of his unalienable Perfections, yet how imperfect is the Idea we form of it? We are likewife affured by the clearest Distates of unbias'd Reason, that God is immenfe without Extention, and eternal without Succeffion in Duration. But what politive Image can our Minds form of fuch Things? Are not our Thoughts fwallowed up and loft in Obscurity when we try to grafp fuch fublime and incomprehentible Objects? We may be therefore truly faid to believe more concerning God, than we do or can comprehend; otherwife indeed, we do not believe the Being of a God at all: For whatever our Underftandings grafp, cannot, but like it felf, be finite, and whatever is finite is not God. That there are certain Perfections in God, both Scripture and Reafon inform us, but how thefe are in God, we cannot fully conceive or express! No doubt Faith fuppofes fome Idea or Knowledge of the Object, ject, but this Knowledge admits of various Degrees; fometimes it reaches no farther than the Proof of the Exiftence of Things, together with fome negative Ideas or Apprehenfion of what they are not; and fometimes it extends to the Manner of their Exiftence, and therefore it is fo far from being abfurd, that it is neceflary, for the Reafon aforefaid, to believe that there is fomething in God, which we cannot grafp.

Seeing then the Doctrine of the Trinity, is io important and intricate. It was well observed by Aufline of old refpecting it, " That in nothing Men are apt to err more ea-" fily and dangeroufly." (In nikilo facilius, ct periculafus erratur) But how contrary to this, is the unreafonable Notion of fome Moderns, who plead for the innocency of Errors of the grofeft Kind, at leaft of those that are fincere Enquirers after Truth, who are notwithstanding far from it? As tho' their Endeavours would entitle them to Happines, without the Knowledge of Fundamentals.

" But furely, it is not the Sincerity of our Enquiries after " important Truths, but the Success thereof, that is to be re-" garded in this, as well as other Means that are us'd to ٤2 obtain fo valuable an End, we may as well suppose, that " fincere Endeavours to obtain many of those Graces that " accompany Salvation, fuch as Faith, Love to God, and " Evangelical Obedience, will fupply or attone for the " Want of them, as affert that our influccefsful Enquiries af-" ter the great Doctrines of Religion will excuse our Igno-" rance thereof, efpecially when we confider that Blindnets " of Mind, as well as hardness of Heart, is included among those spiritual Judgments, which are the Confequence of $2 " cur fallen State. And alfo that God difplays the Sove-11 reignty of his Grace, as much in leading the Soul into all' " neceflary Truth, as he does in any other Things that re-" late. " late to Salvation. However it is not our Bufinefs to de-" termine, the final States of Men, but rather to pray that " the Ignorant and Erronious may be brought to the ac-" knowledgment of the Truth."

In the mean Time we may truly fay, that Errors in Doctrine, (efpecially when they touch the Foundation of Religion) are very perilous, as well as Errors in Practice. And hence we read of damnable Herefies. But how far Error in Opinion may confift with a gracious State, we cannot precifely and peremtorily determine. It is therefore extreamly neceffary, to attend with the utmost Care and Caution to what the facred Scriptures relate concerning the Trinity, and to beware of giving a lawlefs Loofe to our own Imaginations: For it is better, as one well observes " To be Ig-" norant of the Depths of it, than not to retain the Limits " of Truth concerning it. Melius of nefcire Centrum, quam " nen tenere circulum."

Now the Text I have chosen to difcourse upon, gives us an excellent Description of the important Point under our prefent Confideration in three Particulars; for 1ft. Here we have a Trinity of Perfons afferted, mention is made of Three, and a perfonal Action afcrib'd to them, namely, that of bearing Witnefs; There are Three that bear Record in Heaven. Now the Matter of thisWitnefs or Teftimony is, that Jesus is the Son of God, and the Meffiah promis'd, as appears from the 1st. 5th. and 9th. Verses of this Chapter, the Manner rather than the Place of the Teftimony, is fignify'd by those Words, in Heaven. The Sacred Three have and do bear Witnefs in a majeftick and glorious Way to the aforefaid Truth: Thus the Father teftify'd of the Man JESUS, by an immediate Voice from Heaven, at his Baptism, this is ry beloved Son hear ve kim, the eternal Word own'd it's perfonal Union with the afium'd human Nature, on the Mount Mount of Transfiguration, by that divine Glory wherewith it was there cloth'd. Joh. i. 14. And we beheld his Glory, the Glory, as of the only Begotten of the Father full of Grace and Truth. And the Holy Spirit likewife witneffed by defending visibly upon him like a Dove at his Baptisin. And 2dly. The Names of the facred Three are express'd, viz. the Father, Word, and Spirit. The first Perion of the Trinity is call'd Father, to fignify his eternal Generation. of the Son. The fecond Perion is call'd the Word in our Text, and in other Places of Scripture. (See Yoln, i. 1. I John i. I.) To express not only his Office in the Revelation of his Fathers Will to us, (Mat. xi. 27.) but alto his ineffable Generation, as a Word is begotten in our Thoughts. and is the express Image of them. The Third Perford of the Trinity is call'd Gloft or Spirit to fignily his Perional Property, which is to proceed from the Father and the Son. the Manner of which feems to be inadow'd forth by breathing; for as much as the Word Spirit is deriv'd of a Verb, which firstifies to breath. (presente a free frire) Now the Eleffed Spirit is call'd H.ly, to fignify what is his peculit office in the divine O Economy, respecting the Salvation of the Elect which is to make them Holy by his efficiencies Influences.

Eut before I proceed to difference further upon this Text. I think it necessary to offer formething concerning its divine Original. It is true foreral learned Mion ecknowledge, that it is not found in divers encient. Manuerlps, end Verficus drawn from them. But whet there, it is found in many others, as Berga observes, Yrem allocts in his Letter to Lapleclius, That it was crately done all the Greek Caples of Lis Time, and complains that it was crately done it is certain that forem was one of the profit fourned of the Fethere, in respect of the Languages and Crarch Hilbery. What they this Text was was omitted in Writings of the Fathers of the fourth Centuary, it might be wanting in the Copies they confulted, and be in others notwithstanding : But methinks it is enough to fatisfy us in this Point, that it is not only menti-on'd frequently by the Writers of fucceeding Ages, but al-fo by fome of the third Century, particularly by Cyprian and Tertulian. Cyprian wrote before the Birth of Arius, in the third Century, and endur'd Martyrdom in the Year 260 : And it is certain that he had not fuch an allegorical or myfical Turn of Mind, as Origen and fome others. and therefore his Teftimony is the more to be depended upon. In his Epiftle concerning the Unity of the Church he hath these Words, viz. The Lord fayeth, that I, and the Father are one; and again it is written, concerning the Father, Son, and Holy Ghoft, and thefe Three are one. (dicit Dominus, ego et Pater unum Sumus, et itrum de patre et filio. et spiritu saneto Scriptum cst, et hi tres unun funt.) Now the most antient Manuscript extant in the World, which fome fay is at Alexandria, is not fuppos'd by any to reach fo far back as the third Century. It is likewife thought by fome learned Men, that Tertulian in his Book against Praxeas, refers to this Text in these Words, which Three are one. (qui tres unum funt) To what has been faid, I may add, that Mr. Pool observes in his Synopfis, that Athanafius " in his first Book to Theophilus and Idacius who flourish'd " in the Year 308 under Theodofius, produc'd this Place of " Scripture against the Arians." This Verse might be omitted in fome Manufcrips thro' the Carelefnets of the Transcriber, but could not be added without an evil Defign; which it is unreasonable to suppose in this Case, because it could not be answered by such an Addition, seeing the Trinity is elfewhere fully afferted, as I shall afterwards prove : It is therefore much more probable, that the Arians have Hhh corrupted corrupted this Place of Scripture, than the Orthodox, feeing that it fo directly overfets their Herefy; whereas the oppofite Doctrine is fufficiently confirm'd by other Places; and both Ambrofe (de fide) and Socrates in his ecclefiaftical Hiftory, do witnefs, that the Arians were Guilty of this Kind of Fraud; neither was it difficult for them to effect it, when fome of their Number, namely, Conflantius and Valens, poffes'd the imperial Throne and banifh'd the Orthodox; and in the mean Time fix'd Arian Bithops almoft over the whole Chriftian World. I might add, if it was neceffary, that the Genuinefs of this Text might be defended from it's Conection with the preceedingVerfes, and the Scope of the Place. But it's Time that I fhould proceed to propofe a Method of difcourfing upon the Subject our Text contains, which thall be as follows, viz.

I. I fhall offer fome Confiderations ferving to prove and explain a Trinity in the Godbead.

II. I shall labour to prove, by divers Arguments, their Unity therein, or that each of the facred Three is truly and properly God.

III. Answer the most important Objections.

And then proceed to the Improvement of the whole.

That there be Three in the Godhead the Scripture teaches fo often as it makes mention of more who are God, and this is done in all those Places wherein the Almighty fpeaks of himfelf in the plural Number. (See Gen. i. 26. and iii. 22. and xi. 7.) Let us make Man, & c. Neither is the Cavil of the modern Jews, respecting those Places of Scripture, of any Validity, viz. That God speaks to the Angels, or to the Heaven or Earth, or Elements, and calls them to a Partnerschip in the Creation, or that he speaks of himself alone after the Manner of great Men: But how Ridiculous is it to suppose that Angels, or any other Creature, A Trinity of Perfons prov d. 427

Creature, fhould be call'd to any Fellowship in Creation, which is a Work of Almighty Power, or that infinite Wifdom should be nonplus'd, and need Council of Creatures! Neither does the Stile of the Modern great ones fuit the Scriptures, or Custom of the eastern Nations; it was two late receiv'd by the western World to determine this Point! It may be further observ'd, that the aforefaid Phrase doesnot exactly agree with the Custom of the Moderns; for they fay not we Kings of England, or we George's, but we George the King.

Befides those Places of Scripture whereby Jebovah is diftinguish'd from Jebovab, do proclaim a Plurality of Perfons in the God-head (See Gen. xix. 24. Ex. xxxiv. 5. 2 Sam. xii. 24. 25.) Surely jebovab is not diffinguifh'd from Jebovab by his Effence, feeing there is but one God; (Deut. vi. 4.) or by Accidents, for fuch do not belong to the Almighty, and therefore the Diftinction must be perfonal. A Trinity of Perfons is likewife fignifi'd in those Places of Scripture, where the Name of God is divers Timesrepeated in the fame Sentence, which it would be Prophane to suppose was Tautological. (See Deut. vi. 4. Exo. iii. 15. Ifa. vi. 3.) Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord of Hofts; but in the New-Testament this Truth is more expresly alferted, Mat. iii. 16. 17. And JESUS when he was Baptiz'd, went. up firaitway cut of the Water, (or as the original Word Apo, is elsewhere justly render'd by the fame Interpreters from the Water) and to the Heavens were open'd unto him, and he faw the Spirit of God defending like a Dove and lighting when him, and lo a Voice from Heaven, faying this is my below'd Son in when I am well pleas'd. . This Place is fo exprets to the Point, that it was a common faying among the Antient Fathers, wize Go to Jordan and you will fee the Trinity, Mat. xxviii. 19. Go therefore teach all Nati-Fihh2. 5.22 S. : ons in the Name of the Father, of the Son, and of the Holy Gho,?. Surely we should not be baptiz'd in the Name of one who is not God. 2 Cor. xiii. 14. The Grace of our Lord JESUS CHRIST, and the Love of God, and the Communion of the Holy Ghoss, be with you all Amen. Here three distinct Blessings are defir'd for the Corinthians, from the facred Three in the God-head, namely, Love from the Father, Grace from the Son, and Communion from the Holy-Ghoft. Now that those facred Three are diffinct Perfons, appears by the following Confiderations, The Word Hypollalis, fignifies as much as Subfiftence or Perfon, and this is express apply'd to the Father, of which the Son is faid to be the express Image, Heb. i. 3. And what can this intend but that he is a Person also? Now by a a Parity of Reason the same must be likewise said of the Holy Ghoft: But feeing the Father's perfonallity is not difputed, it will be only necessary to add fomewhat concerning the Perfonality of the Son and Holy-Ghoft. To this End it may be observ'd, that perfonal Characters are aferib'd to the fecond Person of the Trinity: Hence he is call'd a Son, which denotes a diffinct Perfon from the Father. He is likewife faid to be fent into the World by his Father; which cannot, without the greateft Impropriety, be apply'd to a mere Relation or Quality : He is likewife call'd a Surety Ge. And three Offices are afcrib'd to him as fuch, by each of which he is call'd. It may be also farther observ'd that fome of the aforefaid Characters are never afcrib'd to any of the other Perfons of the Trinity ; befides the Second, the Father and Holy Spirt, are never call'd the Son, are never faid to be made flefh, or to become Sureties for perifiing Tranfgreffors : Not to add that the perfonal Characters, He, Thy, Thou, are apply'd to the Son. Pf. cx. 7. He fkall drink of the Brook in the Way. Verse 3. Thy People fiall shall be willing in the Day of thy Power. V. 4. Thou art a Priest forever, after the Order of Melchizedeck.

But to proceed, it appears likewife, that the Holy Ghoft is a divine Person from the personal Properties ascrib'd to him in Scripture, thus he is faid to act by fovereign Pleasure. Act. xv. 18. it feem'd good to the Holy Ghost and to us. He is alfo faid to conflitute Officers in the Church of God. Act. xx. 28. Take heed therefore unto yourfelves, and to all the Flock, over the which the Holy Ghoft hath made you overfeers. He is likewife faid to inftruct them. Mark xiii. 11. To fend them. Act. xiii, 4. To dwell in them. 1 Cor. vi. 19. See that famous Place of Scripture, Job. viii. 16. 17. 18. What tho' in the poetical Parts of Scripture fometimes perfonal Characters are afcrib'd to Things which are not Perfons. It will not follow that many Hundreds of Places respecting the Trinity, where no lofty Expression is us'd, should be taken without any Necessity, without any Notice from the Context in the same Sense. Surely fundamentals in Religion are plainly express'd, and not perpetually immur'd and vail'd in Tropes and Figures, and so rendered inacceffible to a vulgar Understanding, otherwife we should be left to the greatest Uncertainty in the most important and momentuous Points, notwithstanding of the Revelation given us, which can hardly confift with the Divine Goodnets. If perfonal Characters, when apply'd to Men and Angels, are taken in a proper Senfe, why fhould they not when apply'd to the facred Three, who tho' they have not diffinct Beings, yet have an Understanding and Will, and there-fore are capable of Perfonality, and indeed to take the aforefaid Places of Scripture, and all the reft that relate to the Perfonallity of the Son and Holy Ghoft in a figurative Senfe, manifeftly tends to overthrow the Perfonallity of the Fa-ther, which is prov'd by the fame Method's.

But to make the Way more plain, for what may beafterwards offered, it may be here observ'd, that by the Word Trinity, we mean no more, than that the divine Effence, which is one, is common to three Perfons, namely, the Father, Son, and Spirit, who are diftinguish'd by three Manners of fublifting. Altho' the Word Trinity is not exprefily mentioned in Scripture, yet what is thereby fignified, is agreeable thereto, as appears from what has been, and what may be (God willing) farther offcred, and therefore its proper that the Term be retain'd, until a better be found to fupply the Room thereof. By Effence we understand what the Scriptures term the Nature of God, (Pbu/is) Gal. vi. 8. the Form of God (Morphe) Pbil. ii. the Godhead (Theotes) Colof ii. 9. In thort the divine Effence is that whereby God, is God: For that whereby any Thing is what it is, is call'd its Effence. The Word Perfon or Subfiftence (which is the fame) is a fcriptural Term, Heb. i. 2. Our Text affirms that there are Three that bear Record in Heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghoft. Then there are three Somethings in the Godhead, but what are they, not three diffinct Subftances, or Effences, otherwife there would be unavoidably three Gods, which is blafphemous to imagine; not three Accidents, for thefe belong not to God, becaufe of his Simplicity and Immutability, not three Relations, for these cannot act or bear witness. What then can they be but Perfons? If any don't like this feriptural Name, let them produce a better if they can.

The Word Perfon, fome defcribe to be "a rational in-"communicable Subftance." And others, "an individual "Subfiftence of a rational Being." A Beaft is an individual, but without Reafon, a Soul hath Reafon, but is not an individual; and therefore neither of these can be a Perfon. Now every manner of Being makes a diffinct Perfon in God, because his Effence being indivisible must be in every

of them. An ingenious Writer reprefents a Perfon in the Trinity thus. viz. " That it is a fpiritual infinite Agent, " which must not be confidered as abstracted from, but as " truly lubfifting in the divine Nature, and as mutually, " eternally, and infeparably related to the other co-effential " Perfons in the Godhead, from whom he is fufficiently and only diftinguish'd by fome Perfonal, and as fuch inςς " communicable Properties." As this Defeription guards against the Herefy of Sabellius on the one Hand, who imagined a divine Perfon to be but a Quality or Accident. So it equally militates against the Here/ie of the Tritheists who dream that the Persons of the Trinity are three absolute Beings that exift feparately, & thus a Medium is opened, between two dangerous Extreams. It is neceffary to retain the Word Perfon respecting the Trinity, in order to ward off the Sabellian Error, which is, that the Diftinction among the facred Three is only nominal, and that there is but one Perfon; who because of his different Operations, was fometimes called Father, fometimes Son, and fometimes Haly-Ghoft. Yet in the mean Time, it must be observ'd, that there is a wide Difference, between human and divine Perfons, in the following Refpects, namely

18t. Human Perfons proceed from each other in Time, but whatever outward Order there be among the facred Three, yet there can be no Firstnefs or Priority of Nature, Time or Dignity among them, they must be all co-equal and co-eternal, otherwife they could not be God.

2dly. Human Persons have their own proper Beings diftinctly from each other, and from every other Creature, but the Persons of the Trinity have all one and the fame Being or Effence. The Godhead of the Father, Son and Holy-Gholt, is the very fame, otherwise there would be three Gods. Tho' one human Person is of the fame Species with another, or has a Nature like the reft of his own Order, yet it is not the fame individual Nature which another poffeffes, otherwife the Faculties and Exercife thereof would be the very fame in two Perfons, which is certainly falfe. But in refpect of the Godhead, tho' each Perfon be diffinct from the other, yet each poffeffes the very fame individual divine Nature, otherwife each could not be faid to be truly and really God.

3dly. Human Perfons are feparated from each other, one might be, tho' the other thould never exift : Created Beings are deriv'd precarious and dependant, whereas on the contrary, the Perfons of the Trinity have an In-being in one another, John xiv. 10. Believess thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? And undoubtedly they have a neceffary Existence, and independent Perfonality, otherwife each of them could not be infinitely perfect, and fo not God.

I fhall here beg leave to mention Mr. Flavels Defeription of a Perion of the Trinity, which I think is as fafe and intelligible, as any that I have met with, which is this, viz. "That it is the Godhead diffinguifh'd by perfonal Pro-"perties, each Perfon having his diffinct perfonal Proper-"ties." (Heb. i. 3.) To explain which let the following Particulars be confider'd. namely

Ift. That all the facred Three poffefs the fame Godhead, and hence they are faid to be One in our Text; and elfewhere, that they are in each other, as has been but now mentioned, they have a Communion in the fame Effence : Forafinuch as the divine Effence is Infinite, it can be communicated to more than one, and hence they muft needs have Commution in the fame effential Attributes, fuch as Omnicience, Almightinefs, Eternity, Self-exiftence. Whatever perfonal Self-exiftence does peculiarly belong to the Eather  Father, (John v. 26.) Yet an effential Self-Exiftence, must belong to all the facred Three, that is, the Son and Spirit must be of themselves, as well as the Father, otherwise they could not be God, and from this Communion in Effence and Attributes, necessarily refults a Communion in religious Worship, which equally belongs to all. (John v. 23.) 2dly. The Godhead is diffinguish'd, not divided, the di-

2dly. The Godhead is diftinguish'd, not divided, the divine Effence being simple and infinite, is therefore indivisible into more of the same Kind, but tho' it cannot be divided, yet it may be diftinguish'd by personal Properties.

Now the Perfonal Property of the Father, is to beget the Son, Pf. ii. 7. I will declare the Decree, the Lord hath faid unto me, theu art my Son this Day have I begetten thee, Eph. i. 3. Bleffed be the God and Father of our Lord JESUS CHRIST, who hath bleffed us with all fpiritual Bleffings, in Heavenly Places in CHRIST. Begetting is not an Effential Act, otherwife it would be common to all, but we do not find that it is common to all, the Son is never faid in Scripture to beget the Father, or the Holy Ghoft the Son; and therefore the Act. is Perfonal, on this Account altho' the Father cannot be called properly the Fountain of the Deity, yet he is by fome call'd the Original of the Perfons. —

That the Generation of the Son was eternal, is evident from the following Places of Scripture, Epbel. iii. 14, 15. For this Caufe I bow my Knees unto the Father of our Lord JESUS CHRIST, of whom the whole Family in Meaven and Earth is named, Prov. viii. 22, 24. The Lord folfolfed me in the Beginning of his Way, before his Works of Old. I was fit up from Everlating.--Or over the Earth was, when there was no Depths I was brought forth, while as yet he had not made the Earth. Mic. v. 2. Whofe Goings forth Leve leen from of Old, even from Everlafting. See also Pf. ii. 7. The I i i.

eternal Generation of the Son is confirm'd by the Titles given to him in Scripture, thus he is call'd abfolutely the Son of God (Mat. xvi. 16.) A Son begotten by God (Acts iv. 25, 26.) His own Son. (Rom, viii. 32.) The first begotten Son. (Heb. i. vi.) The only begetten Son (John i. 14.) This eternal Generation fome Godly and learned Divines fay, " confifts in the Communication of the tame Effence." John v. 26. And others, " in the Communication of Per-" fonality." Or in other Words, " That the Perfon of " the Father, begat the Perfon of the Son from Everlaft-" ing, ir effably, but undividedly." Altho' it is exceeding neceffary inviolably to maintain the eternal Generation of the Son, becaute it is afferted by Scripture and Antiquity, and the Denial of it feens to have a bad Tendency to weaken our Belief of the Doctrine of the Trinity, by oppofing the perfonal Properties of the Father and Son, which are the principal Ground of the Diffinction between those divine Perfons. Yet we must confeis with Yu/in, and a Cloud of other Witneffes, that the Manner thereof is incomprehenfible, and inexprefible. And hence the Antient Fathers were wont to fay concerning it, " That it was incom-" prehenfible, without the Vicifitude of Time, without Se-" paration, and without Change or Pafilon, either in the " Father or Son." Prov. viii. 22, 23. Mic. v. 2. Colof. i. 17. John i. 1. & xiv. 10, 11. Which they express'd in the following Words, acataleptors, achronoos, achorifloos, apathoos.

Now the Second Perfon of the Trinity, is only the Son of God, on the Account of his eternal Generation, altho' his Sonfhip be manifelted by his Incarnation, Rom. i. And hence he is call'd the Brightnefs of his Fathers Glory, and exprefs Image of his Perfon, Heb. i. 3. Colot. i. 15. He is furely the Son of the Father, in a Senfe different from any meer Creature in Heaven or Earth, otherwife he could not be be call'd the only begotten Son of God, and equal to God. Phil. ii. 6. And therefore it must be by eternal Generation : He had the Character of a Son before he assumed human Nature. (John iii. 16.) And therefore that Assumption could not be the Cause of his Sonship, to suppose that the Incarnation of our Lord, is the Cause of his Sonship, is to destroy the Paternal Relation of the first Person to him : For thus the third Person might be call'd his Father as well as the First; and as to the seeming Absurdities that are objected, it may be in general replied, that those take Place only in natural Generations, not supernatural.

But to proceed, the pertonal Property of the Son, is to be begotten by the Father, Prov. viii. 24, 25. John i. 14. We bebeld his Glory, the Glory, as of the only begotten of the Father. Heb. i. 5. For unto which of the Angels faid he at any Time, thou art my Son, this Day have I begotten thee. As active Generation is the Manner of the Fathers fublifting, fo paffive Generation is the Manner of the Son's.

Again, the perfonal Property of the Holy Ghoft is, to proceed from the Father and the Son, John xiv. 26. But the Comforter which is the Holy Spirit, when the Father will fend in my Name, he fhall teach you all Things. And chap. xv. 16. But when the Comforter is come, whom I will fend unto you from the Father, even the Spirit of Truth, which proceedeth from the Father, he shall testing of me.

And thus it appears that the facred Three are diffinguifh'd by their perfonal Properties; and by the Order of fubfifting, and acting confequent thereupon.

The perfonal Properties flow that they are fo diffinguish'd, that one cannot be the other. The Father cannot be the Son, or the Son the Father, Yet be that bath feen the Son, bath feen the Father allo. John xiv. 9. As to the Order of their subfifting, the Father is the first Perion, who subfifts entirely of himself, the Son the second Person, begetten by I i i 2. the Father, the Spirit is the Third, who proceeds from both the Father and Son. This Order thould not be inverted, tho' in the mean Time we muft not conceive that there is any real Priority, as to Nature, Time, or Dignity but of order only, in refpect of their Original. The Father confider'd as fuch, is first in order before his Son, but the Manner of the Generation of the Son, and Procession of the Hely Ghost, is to us, as has been before observ'd, incomprehensible! Hence is that of the Prophet, Ifa. liii 8. Who fhall declare bis Generation.

Again the Perfons of the Trinity are diftinguish'd, as was before hinted, by their Order of acting, which is agreeable to that of their fubfifting, the Father worketh of himfelf, by the Son and Holy Ghoft, the Son from the Father, by the Holy Spirit, and the Holy Spirit from the Father and. Son, by himfelf, John xvi. 13. Howbeit when the Spirit of Truth is come, he will guide you into all Truth, for he flall not fpeak of himfelf, but what foever he shall hear, that shall he Ipeak. John v. 19. Then answered Jesus and faid unto him, verily verily I fay unto you, the Son can do nothing of himfelf, but what he feeth the Father do, for what Things foever he doth, thefe alfo doth he likewije. Undoubtedly the Power of working is only one, and therefore common toall the Three, but the Order and Object of working is different; and hence the first Work, namely Creation, is afcrib'd to the First Perfon; and the fecond Work, viz. Redemtion to the Second ; and the Third Work, namely, Sanctification to the third Perfon of the Trinity. This by many Divines is termed the OEconomy of the Perfons of the Godhead ; which may be thus deferib'd, viz. That it is fuch an Order of acting, as directly tends to manifest the personal Glory of the Father Son and Spirit.

Tho' all the Works of God, are afcrib'd to every Perfon of the Trinity, because all the divine Attributes equally belong to them, and therefore every Work muft be equally produc'd by them. Yet feeing there are diftinct Perfons in the Godhead, it is but reafonable that their perfonal Glory fhould be peculiarly Manifested. Now this the facred Scripture Points to, by that different Order of acting, which it aferibes to the facred Three. Hence the Work of our Salvation in respect of its Projection, is first assign'd to the Father, in regard of its Purchafe to the Son, and in respect of its Application to the Holy Ghoft.

It is of the last necessity that under this Head, we carefully avoid Sabelliani/m on the one Hand, which allows of no Diffinction among the Perfons of the Trinity, but what is meerly nominal, and afferts that one and the fame Perfon becaufeof his different Operations, is fometimes called Father, fometimes Son, and fometimes Holy Spirit, and on the other, that we with equal Care avoid the Tritheifm of Valentinus, who deem'd that there were Three eternal Spirits, unequal to each other, and different in Effence, and fo by confequence that there were three Gods: Some to avoid the Herefy of Sabellius, have held that the Perfons of the Trinity differ from each other really, but that feeming to verge to Tritheifm, others to avoid that extream, have held that they only differ modally, as one manner from another, but fome thinking that the modal Diffinction, is too fuperficial and that it verges to Sabellianifm do observe, that the Diftinction is real-Modal, this feems to guard beft against both Extreams. But if those scholastick Distinctions do not fatisfy, it will be enough to fay, that the Perfons of the Trinity differ as Three, or that they are fo diffinguished, by perfonal Properties, that the one cannot be the other.

Here I shall beg leave to cite the Words of famous Mr. How, in his Difcourfe upon the Trinity, pag. 540 which run thus, " Since therefore there is a Neceffity apprehended, of acknowledging three fuch Somewhats in the God-" head

The Godhead of the Son prov'd.

" head, both becaufe the Word of God, who beft under-" ftands his own Nature, doth fpeak of three in it, fo plain-" ly, that without notorious Violence, it cannot be under-" ftood otherwife, and becaufe it affirms fome Things of " one, or other of them, which it affirms not of the reft, " it will therefore be neceffary to admit a true Diffinction " between them, otherwife they can't be three, and fafe to ". fay, there is fo much, as is requifite to found the diffinct " Affirmations which we find in God's Word concerning " this or that apart from the other, otherwife we shall in " Effect deny what God affirms; and modeft to confeis, " that how great the Diftinction is, with precife and parti-" cular Limitation, we do not know, nor dare we elquire " or determine ; only that as it cannot be lefs then is fuf-" ficient to fuftain fuch diffinct Predicates or Attributi-" ons, fo it cannot be fo great, as to intrench upon the Uni-" ty of the Godhead." Thus far he

It may be here added, that the Perfons of the Trinity are diffinguish'd from the Essence, as one from Three, or as that which is communicable from that which is incommunicable. I proceed to the

2d. Propos'd, which was to prove the Unity of the facred Three, in the Godhead. And thefe Three are One, One God equal in Power and Glory. There is no need of fpending Time in attempting to prove the Godhead of the Father, feeing it is quefkioned by none but Atheifts. I shall therefore proceed to prove the Godhead of the Son; which appears from this, that all the Peculiars of Divinity are afcrib'd to him, as is evident from the following Induction of Particulars, viz.

Ift. The Names of God are afcrib'd to him: Thus he is call'd God. Heb. i. 8. But unto the Son he fayeth, thy Thronz O God is for ever and ever, likewife the mighty God. (Ifa. ix. 6.) The True God. (1 Joh, v. 20.) God Bleffed forever. Rom.

(Rom. ix. 5.) The Lord of Glory. (1 Cor. ii. 8.) Lord of Lords, and King of Kings. (Rev. xvii. 14.) The Name Jehevab appears to be the peculiar Name of God. Pf. lxxxiii. 13. That thou whose Name alone is Jehovah, art the most high over all the Earth. Exo. iii. 14 Thus shalt thou fay to the Children of Israel, IAM (or Jehovah) hath fent me unto you; this is my Memorial unto all Generations. Now that the Name Jebovah is afcrib'd to the fecond Perfon of the Trinity, appears from the following Places of Scripture, viz. (Numb. xxi. 5. 6. 7.) There the People, after the awful Judgment of the fiery Serpents was fent among them, confeis'd that they had fin'd against the Lord, or Jebevab. Now this Paffage we find exprelly apply'd to CHRIST by the Apoftle in his Epiflle to the Corinthians. I Epift. x. 9. Neither let us tempt Chrift as fome of them alfo tempted, and were destroyed of the Serpents, Ifa. xl. 3. The Voice of him that cryeth in the Wildernefs, pepare the Way of the Lord, or Jehovah, make strait in the Delart a high Way for cur God. (See this apply'd to Chrift, Mat. iii. 3. 11.) Another notable Place of Scripture to the fame Purpole is, Ifa. vi. 1. 2. Mine Eyes have feen the King the Lord, or Jehovah : 'This is likewife apply'd to CHRIST, Job. xii. 40. 41. Our Lord likewife affumes the Name Jebovah, as appears by his telling the Jews thus, before Abraham was, I AM; many other Proofs might be brought, but what have been mention'd, if duly confider'd, may, I hope, fuffice. But

2dly. The Attributes of God are afcrib'd to CHRIST, as particularly,

(1.) Omniciency, John. xxi. 17. Lord thou knowest all Things. And ellewhere it is faid, that he knew from the Beginning who they were that believed not, and who should betray him. John. vi. 64. and John ii. 24. 25. It is faid, Jesus JESUS did not commit himself unto them, because he know all Men, and needed not that any should testify of Man, for he knew what was in Man. Besides, Rev. ii: 23. He is faid to fearch the Reins and Heart. Such Knowledge as this, is furely beyond the Reach of Men and Angels.

(2.) Omnipotency is afcrib'd to CHRIST, Rev. i. 8. I and the Alpha and Omega, the Beginning and Ending, fayththe Lord, which is, which was, which is to come, the Almighty. Philip. iii. 21. Whereby he is able to fubdue all Things to himfelf : And hence he is call'd the mighty God, and faid to uphold all Things by his Power. (If. xi. 6. Heb i. 3.)

(3.) Eternity is afcrib'd to CHRIST: And hence he is call'd the Everlassing Father. (If. ix. 6.) And faid to live for ever and ever. (Rev. x. 6.) And that his goings forth have been from of Old, from Everlassing. (Mic. v. 2.)
(4.) Omniprefence is likewife afcrib'd to CHRIST. Mat.

(4.) Omniprefence is likewife afcrib'd to CHRIST. Mat. xviii. 20. Where two or three are gather'd together in myName there am I in the mid/t of them; this is a manifeft Evidence of the God-head of our Lord; for furely a Creature cannot be in two Places at once. To imagine that the aforefaid Place of Scripture intends only the Prefence of our Lords Authority, is to fuppofe a Tautology in the Words which is abfurd; for to be gather'd together in kis Name, fignifies his Authority: furely it is but reafonable to take this Place of Scripture, in the fame Senfe with that Parallel one, Exo. xx. 24. In all Places where I record my Name, I will come unto thee, and I will blefs thee. See likewife Matt. xxviii. ult. Lo I am with you always unto the End of the World.

(5.) Independency is afcrib'd to CHRIST. Rev. i. 8. 17. I am Alpha and Omega, the Beginning and Ending faveth the Lord, which is, and which was, and which is to come. Independency is likewife imply'd in the name Yekovah, which is given to CHRIST; as has been prov'd before.

(6.) Equality with God is likewife afcrib'd to Chrift : And hence it is faid, that he was in the form of God, and thought it no Robery to be equal with God. Philip. ii. 5. 6. 7. For this Reafon he is justly call'd the Fellow of God. Zec. xiii. 7. And all that the Father hath are faid to be his. (Job. xvi. xv.)

(7.) Immutability in Effence is afcrib'd to our Lord. Pf. oii, 27, 28. But thou art the fame and thy Years shall have no End, the Children of thy Scrvants shall continue, and their Seed shall be established before thee. Compar'd with Heb. i. 12. As a Vesture theu shalt fold them up, and they shall be changed, but thou art the fame, and thy Years shall not fail. And in a Word there is no Attribute belongs to the Father, but what is also afcrib'd to the Son. Again

3dly the Works of God are afcrib'd to CHRIST, particu-

(1.) The Work of Creation, Joh. i. 3. All Things were made by him, and without him was not any Thing made that was made. Col. i. 16. For by him were all Things created that are in Heaven and that are in Earth, vifible and invifible. Now Creation is certainly a Work which requires Almighty Strength, a Work which none but a God can perform.

(2.) The Work of Providence is attributed to our Lord : And hence it is faid, that by bim all Things confift, and are upbeld by the Word of his Power. (Col. i. 17. and Heb. i. 3.). These words of our Lord to the Jews John v. 17. are applicable to the fame Purpose, viz, My Father workethhitberto, and Iwork.

(3.) Miraculcus Works are afcrib'd to CHRIST; John.- v. -21. For as the Father raifeth up the Dead, and quickneth them, even so the Son quickneth whom he will. An Instance of this we have John xi. 43, 44. Where we are told that our Lord com-K k k - manded.

manded Lazarus.to, come forth, after he had been four Days dead, and that this was immediately obey'd, the dead came forth, bound Hand and Foot, with grave Cloths. Our Lord likewife rais'd himfelf from the Dead. (John x. 18.) Many other Inflances might be produc'd, but I muft not perfift.

(4.) Works of Grace are in like Manner attributed to the Lord JESUS; fuch as,

(1.) Election, John xiii. 18, I speak not of you all, I know whom I have chosen.

(2.) Justification, Ifa. liii. 11. By bis Knowledge shall my righteous Servant justify many. Mat. ix. 6. But that ye may know that the Son of Man bath Power on Earth to forgive Sins.

(3.) Regeneration, Ephef. ii. 1. And you bath he quickned who were dead in Trefpaffes and Sins. And hence CHRIST is faid to be the Author and Finisher of Faith.

(4.) Salvation, 'Mat. i. 21. And shall bring forth a Son, and thou shalt call bis name JESUS, for he-shall fave his People from their Sins. Hence he is call'd the Captain of our Salvation; and we are told that in his Name alone Happiness is to be had, Act. iv. 12. To what has been said under this Head, we may add our Lords Mission of the Holy-Spirit, and Institution of facred Ordinances, Joh. xvi. 7. If I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you, but if I depart I will fend him unto you. Mat. xxviii. 18. 19. All Power is given unto me in Heaven and Earth. Go therefore and teach all Nations, baptizing them in the Name of the Father, Son and Holy-Ghost.

4thly. The Worfhip due to Godonly is afcrib'd to CHRIST: And hence Men are enjoyned to honcur the Son even as they honour the Father, Job. v. 22. 23. Particularly

(1.) We are enjoyn'd to adore him, Heb. i. 6. And when be bringeth in the first Begotten into the World, he fayeth, and The Worship of God ascrib'd to CHRIST,

"and let all the Angels of God worship him. (1 Cor. i. 12.) Call'd to be Saints with all that in every Place, call upon the Name of JESUS CHRIST our Lord, both theirs and ours.

(2.) We are bid to trust in him and obey him, John xiv. 1. Let not your Heart be troubled, believe in God, believe also in me. Rom. x. 11. For the Scripture fayeth Whospever believeth in him shall not be askam'd. Hf. ii. 12. Kiss the Son least he be Angry, and ye perish from the Way.

the Son least he be Angry, and ye perish from the Way. (3.) We are to be baptis'd in his Name, as well as in the Name of the Father. Mat. xviii. 19.

Again I add, that our Lord did affert his Godhead in divers Conferrences with the Jews. (See John v. 16. to the 19th. Verfe.) The Jews fought to flay him, because he made himfelf equal with God. Now our Lord does not in Answer hereto endeavour to clear himself of that Charge ; which furely he would have done had he not been God, otherwife he would be Guilty of the greatest Impiety. When the People of Lystra attempted to worship Paul and Barnabas, they rent their Cloaths, and ran among them, crying out Sirs, why do ye thefe Things ? We also are Men of like Paffions with you, Act. xiv, 14. 15. But our Saviour instead of rejecting the Charge, notwithstanding of some Patfages that refpect his human Nature, afferts his Divinity, by shewing that be quickned whom be pleas'd, as well as the Father; likewife that all Judgment was committed to bim, and that all Men should bonour bim as they bonour the Father; that he had Life in himself, and should raise the Dead at the last Day. At another Time, Job. viii. 53. to 58. After the Jews had enquir'd, art thou greater than cur Father Abraham ?---- He reply'd, your Father Abraham rejoye'd to fee my Day, and he fare it and was glad. Then faid the Jews unto birn, thou art not yet fifty Dears Old, and haft Kkk2 thesis theu feen Abraham : To this our Lord answered, before Abraham was, I AM ! At this Time the Jews were enrag'd, and took up Stones to throw at him, supposing that he had spoken Blasshemy, in preferring himself to Abraham, and making himself equal to God. It is certain that being ston'd to Death, was a Penalty denounc'd by the judicial Law against Blasshemers; the aforesaid Sentence of our Lord, seems to be Parallel with that of the Prophet, respecting the the Eternity of God, viz. Ija. xliii. 13. Yea before the Day zvas, I AM be.

Another very memorable Conference we have, Mat. ix. from the 2d. to the 6th. Verfe. Our Lord declar'd to one fick of the Palfy, that his Sins were forgiven him; on which Occafion the Scribes murmured, and charged him with Blafphemy. Jusus knowing their Thoughts reply'd, wherefore think ye Evil in your Hearts? For whether is it eafler to fay, thy Sins be forgiven thee, or to fay arife and walk; but that ye may know the Son of Man hath Power on Earth to forgive Sins, he fayeth to the Perfon Sick of the Palfy, take up thy Bed, and go into thine Heafe. Proving by this Miracle his Divinity; which they oppos'd, and confequently his Power to forgive Sins.

Tho' Miracles do not argue the Divinity of the Perfon that Works them from any visible Circumstance contain'd in them; yet they effectually prove it, in Cafe this be the Thing contested, and an explicite Appeal be made to the divine Power to confirm it by Miracles.

Our Lord had at the aforefaid Conference as good an Opportunity, and as loud a Call as could be defir'd to difclaim all Pretence to Divinity, if the Cafe was really to; but inftead of this he afferts and proves his Godhead, maugre the Jewifk Rage, which Practice could not confift with Integrity if he were not God.

And

And now I shall proceed to offer a few practical Reflections, and so conclude at prefent. And 1ft. What has been faid informs us of the following Particulars, viz. 1ft. Of the true Order and Manner of worshiping God, and that is in the Son and by the Spirit, Joh. xvi. 23. Whatfoever ye shall afk the Father in my Name, be will give it you. Ephef. vi. 18. Praying allways with all Prayer and Supplication in the Spirit. Surely it is by the Son, we should come to the Father in our Supplications, and hence CHRIST is call'd the Way, John xix. 6. And we are faid to have Boldnefs to enter into the Holiest by the Blood of JESUS by a new or living Way, which be hath confectated for us, that is to fay his Flesh, Heb. X. 19, 20. Those are therefore to be sufficient as Guilty of the Herefy of Sabellius, who do not according to the Scriptures, ordinarily come to the Father by the Son in their Prayers, but usually addrets the Son, as tho' he were the Father, and do not give to each of the facred Three, their diffinct perfonal Glory in their Acts of Devotion; but so frequently address the Son, as if there were no other Perfon but he in the Trinity.

2dly, How Happy is the State of all regenerate Perfons who have this three--one God, in all his Glory and Excellency for their fure Portion here, (Jer. xxxi. 33.) and fhall be continually delighted, with beholding the diffinct Benefits receiv'd from each of the facred Three hereafter. Rev. i. 5. And from JESUS CHRIST, the Faithful Witnefs unto him that lov'd us, and wafked us from our Sins in his Blood. And does it not increase their Felicity, that the Charter of the Holy Scripture, by which the aforefaid Portion is made over, is confirm'd by the united Teftimony of the facred Trinity from Heaven, as our Text informs us, There are Three that bear record in Heaven, and thefe Three are One.

3dly. How much should our Souls be affected by thinking on the Fathers Love, in giving his Son to be a Propitiation for our Sins. Herein is Love, indeed without Peer or Paralel, (John iv. 10.) in that a Son was given for worthlets Rebels, to Shame, Misery and Death it felf, of the most hideous Kind! A Son not by Creation as the Angels, nor by Adoption as Believers, but by eternal Generation. His own, beloved, dear, only begotten Son, in whom he was well pleas'd. (Rom. viii. 32. Mat. iii. 17. Col. i. 13. Job. i. 14. 18.) And that to prevent the eternal Perishing of poor Sinners. (Job. iii. 16.)

And what fhall we fay of the Kindnefs of the Son of God, in flooping fo low to fave guilty Worms from eternal Woe and Ruin'; tho' he had the Form of God, yet he willingly affum'd the Form of a Servant, that we might be made the Sons of God. He that had the Heavens for his Throne, was contented with a Manger for his Cradle ; tho' he was Rich he became Poor, that we thro' his Poverty might be made Rich; was crown'd with Thorns; endur'd the Death of the Crofs, and was laid in the Bofom of the Grave ; that we might be crown'd with immortal Glory, deliver'd from the fecond Death, and embrac'd in the Bofom of Abraham, the Bofom of God.

And how much fhould we be affected, likewife with the Kindness of the Holy Spirit in enlightning our Minds, renewing and comforting our Hearts by his divine Influences, without which we could have no special Benefit by the Death of CHRIST, no Communion with God here, or Enjoyment of him in a future World.

But to proceed, me thinks the Confideration of the Divinity of the Son of God, is one of the most pregnant and powerful Incentives possible to Admiration, Love, Flumility, and Obedience : How sublime the Theme ? How surprizing Practical Reflections.

A prizing the Thought that the eternal Father fhould give his co-equal Son, the darling of his Soul, out of the Embraces of his Boson, to bleed a Victom on the accursed Tree, to purchase Peace, Pardon and Life for worthless Rebels! O the amazing Heights, the interminable Depths of this stupenduous dear Affection! This is Love infinitely furpassing the narrowBounds of human Thought or Language. Love that none but a God is equal to! And how Strange, is it that the blessed God should become incarnate, the Antient of Days become an Infant of Time, the Majesty of Heaven stoop to assume the Infirmities of Humanity! O my Brethren ! did not rest himself become weary to give the weary Rest? And the Fountain of Consolation become a Man of Sorrows, to bring his People to unceasing Joys and Triumphs !

Deity, our Admiration ceafes, our Love Languishes, and our Devotion dies for the Gift of a meer Creature : And his Sufferings are inconfiderable Things, not worthy to be once mention'd, in Comparison of the Gift, and Condefcention of a God ! The Object of our Worship is removed; the Ground of our Hopes unhing'd, and the whole Scene of the Gospel destroy'd at a Stroke. Dreadful Thought !

Let us therefore be entreated equally to love, honour, and obey each Perfon of the facred Trinity. Let all Men honour the Son, as they honour the Father, John, v. 23. Our Lord as Man obey'd his Father, and how much more fhould we. (Joh. iv. 34.) Let us alfo kijs the Sonleast he be Angry, and we perist from the Way; and feeingthe Spirit of God hath made us. Job. xxxiii. 4. Why should not he be ador'd by us.

But the Time being elaps'd I must conclude, in the mean while afcribing all Glory to the Trinity in Unity, and Unity in Trinitiy; the Three in One, and One in Three; the Father, Word and Spirit, let Men and Angels fay Amen.

I JOHN v. 7.

For there are Three that bear Record in Heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost. And these Three are One.

HE Doctrine of the ever bleffed Trinity, is purely an Object of Faith. The Line of Reafon is too fhort to fathom this Myftery, and therefore where Reafon cannot wade, there Faith muft fwim, but tho' this fublime Foundation Doctrine, be above Reafon, yet it is not contrary to it. This I think the learned Mr. How, has made evident in his Difcourfe upon the Poffibility of a Trinity in the Godhead. In my laft Difcourfe upon the Doctrine of the Trinity, you may remember that I propos'd the following Method, viz.

I. I was to offer fome Confiderations ferving to confirm and explain it.

II. I was to prove by divers Arguments, the Unity of the facred Three, or that each of them is truly and really God, And

III. I propos'd to anfwer the most important Objections, and then proceed to the Improvement of the Whole.

The first general Head was discuss'd, and under the Second, I offered what Arguments I judg'd sufficient to prove the Godhead of the Son. It remains now that I prove the Godhead of the Holy Ghost.

L11

This

This I think is evident not only from his Being number'd with divine Perfons, as one with them as our Text afferts; but alfo from this Confideration, that all the Peculiars of Divinity are afcrib'd to him, as well as to the Father and Son, which will be manifeft by the following Induction of Particulars, namely

1ft. Divine Names are afcrib'd to him, thus he is expreffly called God, At v. 3. 4. Peter faid, Ananias, why hath Sotan ful d thine Heart to lie to the Holy Gheli, theu haft not lied unto Men, lut unto God. He is likewife called Lord: Now the Lord is that Spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is there is Liberby, here it may be observ'd, that the Seventy Interpreters generally render the Name Jebovah by that of Lord (Kurios) he is also called Jehovah as appears by comparing 45. vi. 8, 9. Als I leard the Voice of the Lord faying, and who will go for us, then faid I, here am I, fend me, end ke faid go and tell this People bear ye indeed, but underfland net, and fee ye indeed, but perceive not. Now it is plain, that it is the Lord or Jehoval that speaks in this Place of Scripture, but this we find expressly apply'd to the Holy Ghoft AEts. xxviii. 25, 26. well fpake the Holy Gloft, by Etaias the Prophet unto our Fathers, faying, go unto this People, and fay, hearing ye fhall bear, and fhall not underfland, and feeing ye fhall fee and not perceive. The fame Truth appears by comparing Ex. xvii. 7. And he called the Name of the Place Maffab and Meribah becaufe they tempted the Lord, or Jehovah, this we find apply'd to the Hoiy Ghoft, Heb. iii. 7, 8. Wherefore as the Holy Ghoft fayeth-harden not your Hearts, as in the Procecation in the Day of Temptation in the Wildernefs, when your Fathers tempted me, prov'd me and favo my Works. More Proofs of the Name 'Jebovah afcrib'd to the Holy Ghoft, we have in the following Places of Scripture, viz. Jer. xxxi. 31. compar'd with Heb. x. 15, 16. Levit. xvi. 2 compar'd with Heb. ix. 78. 2dlv.

The Attributes of God afcrib'd to the Holy Ghoft. 451

2dly. The Attributes of God are afcrib'd to the Holy Ghoft, namely

1st. Omnicicncy, or all Knowledge 1 Cor. ii. 10. The Spirit fearcheth all Things, yea the deep Things of God. The Word fearcheth, denotes the Exquisiteness of his divine Knowledge Pf. exxix. 23, 24.

2dly. Almightinefs and independent Power, I Cor. xii. 4, 6, 11. Now there are diversity of Gifts, but the fame Spirit, but it is the fame God which worketh all in all, but all thefe worketh, that one and the felf fameSpirit, dividing to every one feverally as he will. Compare Luk. xi. 20. with Mat. xii. 28. But if I with the Finger of God cast out Devils, no doubt the Kingdom of God is come among you, but if I cast out Devils by the Spirt of God, then the Kingdom of God is come unto you.

3dly. Éternity is likewife aferib'd to the Holy Ghoft, Heb. ix. 14. CHRIST thro' the eternal Spirit, offered birfelf, without Spot to God. Again

4thly. Immenfity is also ascrib'd to him, Pfal. exxxix. 7. 10. Whither fkall I go from thy Spirit, or whither fkall I flee from thy Prefence. If I ascend up into Heaven, thou art there, If I make my Bed in Hell, behold then art there, If I take the Wings of the Morning, and dwell in the uttermost Parts of the Sea, even there skall thy Hand lead me, and thy Right Hand skall hold me.

3dly. Divine Operations are afcrib'd to the Holy Spirit, . luch as,

Ift. Creation, Gen i. 2. The Spirit of God mov'd tepon the Face of the Waters. By the Spirit of God, cannot be meant the Air or Wind, as fome fuppole: For that was not created till the fecond Day, when God made the Firmament, the aforefaid Place of Scripture is explain'd and illuftrated, by Job. xxxiii. 4. The Spirit of Ged hath made me, L 1 1 2-2 2dly, 2dly. Miraculous Works are aferib'd to the Holy Ghoft, particularly the raifing of the dead, Rom. viii. 11. But if the Spirit of kim that raifed up JESUS from the dead, dwell in you, he that raifed up CHRIST from the dead fhall alfo quicken your mortal Bodies, by his Spirit that dwelleth in you, likewife the Gift of healing, Tongues, and Prophefies, is attributed to the Holy Spirit, I Cor. xii. to the 11. Now there are diverfity of Gifts, but the fame Spirit, differences of Administration, but the fame Lord,---diverfitys of Operations, but the fame God which worketh all in all.

3dly. The Unction of our Lord by the Holy Ghoft is another Argument of his Divinity, compar'd Ilai. lxi 1. with Luk. iv. 18. The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me, becaufe be hath ancinted me to preach good Tydings unto the Meek. The Unction of our Lord, alludes to a Utage which obtain'd under the Jewifh OEconomy, namely, of anointing Kings, Prophets and Priefts with Oyl, to fignify their Authority and Fitnefs, to execute their feveral Offices, and therefore it plainly fignifies that our Lord was authoriz'd, and qualified to perform the mediatorial Work, by the Holy Ghoft, which is no inconfiderable Argument of his Deity. 4thly. The fupernatural Works of Conviction, Converfi-

4thly. The fupernatural Works of Conviction, Converfion, Sanctification, and Confolation are likewife afcrib'd to the Holy Ghoft, John xvi. 8, 9. And when he is come he will reprove the World of Sin, John iii. 5. Except a Man be born of Water, and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the Kingdom of God. On the Account of fanctitying Influence, he is call'd the Holy Spirit, and in refpect of his comforting Influence, the Comforter.

5thly. The Holy Spirit did likewife Commiffion Perfons for the Ministry, and in a sovereign Way order as to the Places where they are to exercise it. Which is an unalianable Prerogative of the Crown of Heaven, and therefore an incontestible The Holy Spirit the Object of religious Worship. 453 incontestible Evidence of his Deity. See Act. xiii. 2. The Holy Ghost faid, separate me Barnabas and Saul, for the Work whereunto I have called them, Acts xvi. 6, 7. They were forbidden of the Holy Ghost, to preach the Word in Asia, they essayed to go into Bithinia, but the Spirit suffired them not. 4thly The Holy Ghost is the Object of religicus Worship, and hence Believers are faid to be his Temples, 1 Cor. iii. 16, 4thly The Holy Ghoft is the Object of religicus Worship, and hence Believers are faid to be bis Temples, I Cor. iii. 16, 17. Because they are devoted to his Worship, and baptiz'd in bis Name, Mat. xxviii. 19. We are excited to worship him, Pf. xcv. 6. compar'd with Heb. iii. 7, 9. And there is a Sin peculiarly against the Holy Ghost, which is unpardonable, Mat. xii. 31, 32. Now it is certain that religious Worship is due only to God, Mat. iv. 10. For it is written thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou ferve. I proceed to the

3d. Propos'd which was to Anfwer fome Objections. Ift. The Antitrinitarians Object against the Godhead of our Lord JESUS thus, namely "That the Son is faid to be "less than the Father, John xiv. 28. and subject to him, I "Cor. 15. 28."

Anfw. He is elfewhere faid to be equal to God, to be in the Form of God, Phil. ii. 6. And hence equal Honour with the Father is afcrib'd to him, (John v. 23.) From whence we may eafily infer, that the Son is lefs than the Father, and yet equal to him in different Refpects: He is equal to God the Father in regard of his Effence, and lefs than him, not only in refpect of his human Nature, but likewife in regard of his mediatorial Office. By becoming the Sinners Surety, he deriv'd their Guilt upon him, and fo became Subject to the Father as a Debtor : He is likewife reprefented in Scripture as a Servant of God, on Account of his Mediation ; becaufe he undertook it according to his Fathers Order, and is to be confider'd in the the whole of this as acting in Purfuance thereof, and Subferviency thereto: To which fome add, " That be may be " faid to be lefs than the Father, in refpect of the Relation " of Sonfhip, by which, in human Affairs, the Son. " is faid to be lefs than the Father, altho', as to the Being " of Humanity, he be equal to him, yea, in Regard of Gifts, " Wildom, Goodnefs, Sc. above him."

Object. 2. " The Lord JESUS is frequently call'd Man, and the Son of Man in Scripture.

Anfw. It is true, but the Defign thereof, is not to exclude his Godhead, which has been already prov'd, but to fignify its real infeparable and perfonal Union to the human Nature: And hence it is faid John i. 14. That the Word was made Fleft, and dwelt among us, and we bebeld his Glory, as the Glory of the only begotten Son of God. And we are told 1 Tim. iii. 16. That God was manifest in the Flest. And elfewhere that God fent forth his Son, made of a Woman, made under the Law, Gal. iv. 4.

Object. 3. " The Son calls the Father his God.

Anfw. It is true he doth so, but only on the Account of his human Nature.

Object. 4." The Father is only faid to be our God, (I Cor. " viii. 6.) and therefore the Son is not."

Anfw. As the Text which calls the Lord JESUS our only Lord, does not exclude the Father, fo neither does this, which is parallel to it, exclude the Son : The Scope of the Place mention'd in the Objection, is only to exclude falfe Gods from a claim to Deity, and fovereign Dominion.

Object. 5. " The Father is call'd the only true God." Joh. xvii. 3.

Anfw. The Son is elfewhere call'd the true God. 1 Job. v. 20. And we know that the Son of God is come, and hath given us an underflanding that we may know him that is True, and we are in him that is True, even in his Son JESUS CHRIST, this is the true God and eternal Life. Now if he be the true God he can be but one; neither is the Father alone exclusive of the Son, call'd the one true God, in the forecited Scripture, but the Son is join'd, that they may know thee the only true God; to which is added, and whom thou hast fent JESUS CHRIST, namely to be the one true God.

Objections answered.

fent JESUS CHRIST, namely to be the one true God. Object. 6. " CHRIST himfelf has faid, that be is God " as Magifirates are Gods, Job. x. 35. namely by Rea-" fon of Office, not of Effence.

Anfw. CHRIST had faid in the 30th verfe of the fame Chapter, I and the Father are one: And hence the Jews charg'd him with Blafphemy; becaufe by this he declar'd himself to be God. Our Lord answers from the Leffer to the Greater to this Effect, namely, If Magistrates on Account of their Office are call'd Gods, how much more am I really fo, who am fent by my Father, who do his Works, and an in him, and he in me. Job. x.37, 38.

Object. 7. " The Son is a made Lord, Heb. i. 4. Being " made fo much better than the Angels, as he bath obtain'd a " more excellent Name than they. See likewife to the fame " Purpofe, Heb. iii. 2. Who was faithful to him that appoint-" ed him; and therefore CHRIST is made God."

Anfw. To be Lord, and to be God, are not Terms of the fame Import; there are many Lords, who in the mean Time are not God's. Here it fhould be noted that a twofold Dominion belongs to CHRIST, viz. Effential and Mediatorial; the First belongs to him as God, and the Second as Mediator: In the first Respect he cannot be made a Lord, and therefore its only in Regard of the Second that our Saviour is fo call'd. As Mediator he is made Head over all Things to his Church, which does not at all interfere with his Godhead, or effential Government. (See Epf.

i. 22, Epb. iv. 15. Col. i. 18.) Object. 8. Againft the Argument for CHRIST's Deity, drawn from his being the Object of Religious Worfhip, it is alledg'd, "That if God commands us to worfhip " a Creature, we mult obey him, and that he hath com-" manded us to worfhip the Son, Heb. i. 6. He fayeth "let all the Angels of God worfhip him." Anfw. The Objection is grounded upon an impofible Suppofition. God can no more command us to worfhip a Creature, than he can forbid us to worfhip himfelf; for hereby he fhould give his Glory to another, which cannot be; this farther appears thus, viz. "Addoration is a fay-" ing to a Perfon, who is the Object thereof, Theu baft" divine Perfections, and to fay this to a Creature is contrary "to Truth, and therefore cannot be commanded by God : "And if we confider Worfhip, as it is our addreffing our "felves to him, whom we worfhip in fuch a Way as "becomes a God. He cannot give us a Warrant fo to "do, for that would be to diveft himfelf of his Glory;" and it would alfo difappoint our Expectations, by put-" ing us on trufting one that cannot fave." Object. 9. Some fay that "Honours, truly Divine, may will terminate in theFather as anAmbaflador, who is con-"

" will terminate in theFather as an Ambaffador, who is confider'd as fuftaining the Character of the Prince that fends him is honour'd, as perfonating him whom he reprefents.
Anjw. Whatever Difference is fhewn to an Ambaffador, there is a Diftinction made in the Expression thereof between him and his Mafter, fignifying, that he is but a Subject, and if the Cafe was otherwife, the Prince would be juftly offended; neither is there any Foundation in the facred O-racles to affert, that, religious Worfhip is twofold, namely, Supream

Objections answered.

Supream and Subordinate, and that the Latter does not terminate in the immediate Object thereof, but in another whom this reprefents: When our Lord informs us, that be acted in his Fathers Name, fought his Glory, and refer'd all the Honour floewn him thereto. Thefe Forms of Exprefions only fignify, that as Man and Mediator, he is inferior to his Father, and acts as fuch by a delegated Authority from him. (Ifa. xlii. 1.) But the Mediator confider'd as to his divine Nature, is co-equal and co-eternal with his Father ; as has been prov'd before.

Object. 10. " CHRIST refus'd to have one of the divine " Perfections afcrib'd to him. Mat. xix. 17. Why calleft " thou me Good, there is none good but one, that is God.

Anfw. Some do not improbably understand the Places of Scripture mention'd in the Objection, as a Method which our Lord us'd to convince the young Man of the Erronioufness of the Doctrines of the Pharistes, of which Sect he was: It is as if our Lord had spoke to the following Effect, "Seeing you will not own me to be God, why "calless thou me Good? For there is none originally, "effentially and absolutely Good but he: Either first ac-"knowledge me to be a divine Person, or elfe do not ascribe "divine Honour to me; for then by Confequence thou "mightess as well ascribe them to any meer Creature."

It may be farther observ'd, that what our Lord fays respecting the Oneness of God in the forecited Place of Scripture, should be understood in the same Sense with those Places which deny a Plurality of Gods. The Terms one, only, do not except the Son from the same Godhead with the Father, as appears from the following Places of Scripture. Mat. xi. 27. No One knoweth the Son but the Father, nor any one the Father fave the Son. It would be absurd to infer from the aforefaid Place of Scripture, that neither the Son or the Father know themfelves.

Mr. Pool observes in his Synophis that there is another reading of the aforefaid Text of great Antiquity, namely this, " Why does then afk me concerning Good, and ob-" ferves, that Beza and Grotius read it thus, as well as the " vulgar latin Verfion, and three most antient and correct " Copies, together with the Hebrew Version of Mathews "Gofpel, with which Origen, Chryfoftom and Auflin agree "in many Things." But if we take the Words agreea-ble to the Copies now in Ufe, they do not import any abfolute Rejection of the Character of Good, for this our Lord elsewhere ascribes to himself. Job. x. 14, 15, 28. I am the good Shepherd, I lay down my Life for the Sheep; and give unto them eternal Life.

I fhall now proceed to answer some Objections againft the Godhead of the Holy-Ghoft. And

Ift. " It is objected that he prays for the coming of " CHRIST to Judgment. (Rev. xxii. 17.)

Anfw. Most certainly the Holy-Spirit prays efficiently in Believers, he excites Desires in them after CHRIST'S second coming; but he prays not formally in himfelf: Or there is perhaps a Figure call'd Hendiadis in the Place of Scripture mention'd in the Objection, whereby but one Thing is figni-fy'd by those two Words, Spirit and Bride, namely the fpiritual Bride, or Bride having spiritual Dispositions. Object. 2. " The Spirit is represented as the Gift of

"God, (Luk. xi. 13.) and therefore he is not the Giver."

Anfw. The Confequence does not hold Good universally, as appears thus. A Perfon may give himfelf to another, as God in the Covenant of Grace gives himfelf to his own, when by a gracious Act of his Will he becomes their God, Shield, and exceeding great Reward, Gen. xv. 1. Befides fides it may be likewife observ'd, that in feveral Places of Scripture the Gifts, and Graces of the Holy-Ghost, and especially the extraordinary Gifts are thus term'd. See Acts x. 44, 45. The Holy-Ghost fell on all them which heard the Word. Act. xix. 2. We have not fo much as beard whether there be any Holy Ghost. John vii. 39. The Holy-Ghost was not given, because JESUS was not yet glorify'd.

Object. 3. " The Holy-Ghoft is faid to be fent, John " " xvi. 7. And therefore he ferves, and fo is not God."

Anfw. The Confequence of ferving does not follow from the Premites univerfally, neither can it be true in the prefent Cafe, that he fhould ferve to whom all the divine Attributes belong. All those Places of Scripture, which feem to represent the Holy-Ghost as inferior to the Father and Son, may be understood as fignifying a Subserviency of the Works of the Spirit, which are metanomically term'dhimfelf, to the Works of the Father and Son, which imports no Inferiority of Perfons.

Object. 4. " It is alledg'd that the Holy-Spirit changes " Place, and fo is not God, Luk. iii. 21, 22. The Holy " Gbost descended like a dove upon him.----

Anfiv. The Bleffed Spirit changes not Place really, but fymbollically, as God the Father doth. Gen. xviii. 21. I will go down. The outward Symbols or Tokens of God's Prefence, may move from Place to Place; but his Being is Omniprefent, and is infinitely beyond the Bounds of the Creation.

Object. 5. " It is alledg'd that the Holy-Spirit hath a " Will diftinct from the Will of God, because he is said " to interceed for the Saints, according to the Will of God. " (Rom. viii. 27.)

Anstw. The Manner of the Spirits interceeding, is represented in the preceeding Verse which is this, Hestirs up M m m 2 in God's People by bis efficiency, Greanings that cannot be uttered. The Words cata, theon, or according to God, feem only to import, that the Spirit helps pious People to pray as it becomes, or in that Manner God requires. Here is no Difference afferted between Gods Will and his, in which the Force of the Objection lies.

Object. 6. " It is faid of the Holy-Spirit, John. xvi. 13. " 14. That he shall not speak of himself, but what societ he " shall hear, that shall he speak.---For he shall receive of " mine, and shew it unto you."

Anf. The aforefaid Text does not argue that the Spirit has all the Ideas of Things imprefs'd on his Mind, which he communicates, as Creatures have; for this would contradict what is elfewhere faid concerning him, viz. That he knoweth the deep Things of God: But probably it intends this, that the Holy Spirit would communicate no other Doctrines, than what Chrift had before reveal'd in the Gofpel; befides the aforefaid Phrafes feem to fignify that the Order of the Holy-Spirits acting, is agreeable to the Order of his fubfifting, namely, that as he proceeds from the Father and the Son, fo he acts from them, but without any Imperfection or Dependance in refpect of his Effence, Exiftence, or Action.

But I may add, that it is objected against the Doctrine of the Trinity in general, namely, "That it is contra-"ry to Reason, and therefore ought not to be believ'd." Anfw. That it is above Reason we confess, but that it is contrary to it we deny. Now a Doctrine may be truly taid, to be contrary to Reason, when it contradicts some of the first Principles of reasoning, which are felf Evident, and universally acknowledged, such as that a Thing can be, and not be at the same Time, that the whole is greater than a Part, &c. A Doctrine cannot be truly call'd Unreasonable, meerly Objections answered.

meerly becaule it oppoles unjust Deductions from first Principles; but we know not that the Article of the Trinity contradicts any of those first Principles before mentioned, or others Parallel to them.

It is alledg'd that this is an Inftance of Contradiction which fome fuggeft, namely, "That while we affert that there is but one God; in the mean Time we fay, that "there are three Perfons in the Godhead, and that each of "thefe is God.

Anfw. But herein there is no Contradiction, becaufe we fay not that the facred Three are diffinct Gods; the Diffinction respects their Perfonality, and not their Godhead: And when we fay there are three Almighties we mean not that these Perfections are distinct, but the very fame in them all. Neither is the Confequence valid from human to divine Perfonality, i. e. becaufe human Perfons are diftinct Beings, that therefore the Divine must be fo. If indeed the divine Perfonality were finite, like that of the Creature, then it might be reasonably requir'd that a finite Mind should account for it; but fince it is not fo, it must therefore be incomprehensible, and thus our not being able to Grafp it should be no Bar to our Belief of it. Surcly feeing Almighty God knows best the Manner of his own Existence, it is but reasonable we should believe the Account which he has given of it, in that Revelation which bears the Characters of a divine Original.

But I proceed to the Improvement of this Subject. And

If What has been faid ferves to inform us, of the unhappy Cafe of all Antitrinitarians, whether Jews, Turks, Arians, or Socinians, when our Lord had prov'd his coequality with his Father, (John v.) by fhewing that he was one with him, and did the fame Works. He therefore fore justly infers, that be that bonoureth not the Son bonoureth nois the Father. See v. 23. The fame Truth is elfewhere affer-ted. (1 Joh. ii. 23.) Hence Paul concludes the Gentiles who were without CHRIST to be Atheifts. (Ephef. ii. 12.) And is not he an Atheift who denys religious Worfhip to him who is the true God. (Rom. i. 21.) And on the other Hand is he not an Idolater who offers religious Worfhip to one whom he believes not to be God. What Hope can we have of the Remiffion of Sins, without Satisfaction be made for Sin, equal to its Demerit, which must be Infinite : becaufe Sin is objectively fo, being committed against a Being of infinite Perfection ? Now is it not utterly impoffible for a meer Creature, who is neceffarily finite, to per-form this infinite Taik. To fuppofe Sin may be pardon'd without equal Satisfaction, is to confront the rectoral Juffice of God as well as his Truth, which flands engag'd to iffue the Threats of the first Covenant upon the Transgreffors thereof, either upon themfelves perfonally, or up-on a Surety in their Room and Place : And without Pardon what can enfue_but utter and irreparable Ruin? And what Ground have we to expect the Regeneration of Men who are dead in 3ins and Trefpafies, without the Intervention of the Almighty Energy of the Holy-Spirit? And can this be exerted by one who is not God? And pray what is Religion without well grounded Hopes of the Remiffion of Sins, and Regeneration, but Pretumption, Formality, and Defperation? From all which it evidently appears, that the denial of the Godhead of the Son and Holy-Spirit, as well as of theFather, faps the very Foundations of the Christian Religion, and exceedingly endangers the Salvation of Mens Souls.

Mr. Vincent in his judicious Explanation, of The Affemblies florter Catechifin, pag. 33. in an wer to this Queftion, namely, The Improvement.

namely, What flould we judge of them that deny that there are three difinct Perfens in the Godbead? Sayeth, Anfw. "We ought to judge them to be Blafphemers, "becaufe they fpeak against the ever glorious God, who "hath fet forth himfelf, in this Diffinction in the Holy " Scriptures. 2dly. To be damnable Hereticks ! This " Doctrine of the Diftinction of Perfons, in the Unity of " Effence being a fundamental Truth denied of old by the " Sabellians, Arians, Photinians, and of late by the So-" cinians, who were against the Godhead of Christ the " Son, and of the Holy Ghoft, amongst whom the Quakers " are also to be numbred, who deny this Distinction."

2dly. The Doctrine of the Trinity flews the Sufficiency of the Almighty to fecure the Happiness of fallen Creatures, while each Perfon affumes his peculiar Task to this End. The First decrees it, the Second purchafes it, and the Third applys and confers it. It is true indeed that every faving Benefit we receive, is common to all the facred Three, and therefore we find the fame Benefits exprefly afcrib'd to them all complexly, and to each respectively, (Rev. i. 4. 5. John vi. 45. Mat. xxiii. 10. John xiv. 26.) Every Benefit belongs to each Perfon of the facred Trinity, after his own peculiar Manner, namely, to the Father by Original Authority, and hence they are affign'd to his good Pleafure, (Mat. xi. 25, 26.) To the Son they belong of Right and of Merit, inafmuch as he has purchased them by his Blood, that of his Fulness we might receive Grace for Grace, (John i. 16.) To the Holy Ghoft they belong, by the immediate Efficacy of Application. Rom. viii. 11. 3dly. The Doctrine of the Trinity should invite us to the following Duties, namely,

1st. To endeavour after a diffinct Knowledge of this important Point, without which we cannot worship God aright:

The Improvement.

aright. Religious Worship is certainly due to all the facred Three, as appears from what has been already faid before; and unlefs we know this, how can we perform it, and how can we expect Fellowsship with the Father, and with the Son JESUS CHRIST, and the Communion of the Holy Ghost, (I John i. 3. I Cor. xiii.) except we know that there be fuch Perfons? What can be of more Moment to us, than to be ftrengthned in our Perfuation of the divine Original of the Holy Scriptures? And to this End is not our Knowledge of the Three that bear Record in Heaven peculiarly ferviceable? Surely to know the only true God and JESUS CHRIST whom he hath fent is Life eternal John xviii. 3. And if any Man have not the Spirit of CHRIST, he is none of kis, Rom. viii. 9.

2 dly. We fhould glorify the facred Trinity in Imitation of the feraphick Doxology, Ifa. vi. 3. Holy, Holy, is the Lord of Hofts, the Heavens and Earth are full of the Majefty of bis Glory. Becaufe therein fhines forth the unfpeakable Happineis of the fupream Being, apparent in the endear'd Fellowship, mutual Knowledge and Complacence of the facred Three, (Prov. viii. 30. Mat. iii. 17.) Therein is likewife confpicuous the infinite Perfection of Jehovah: For thus the Attributes of Three Perfons unite in one Effence common to all, and are we not hereby taught, how the Father, Son and Spirit do mutually glorify each other, (John xvii. 4, 5, 22.)

But the Confideration of the Part which each Perfon of the facred Trinity performs in compafing of our Salvation, fhould efpecially invite our grateful Hofanna's, together with that of the divine Goodnefs in revealing this Myftery to us, which has been hid from Ages. (2 Cor. vii. 10.)

3dly. Let us feek with all carneftness, Communion with the facred Trinity, feeing that this is an attainable and most most important Priviledge, (2 Cor. i. 4.) in this is our chief Excellency, our greatest Happiness and Security. (1 John ii. 2.) And hence the Priest of old was required to bless the People, after the Trinity was diffinctly mentioned, (Num. vi. 23, 24, 25.) No Comfort on Earth is equal to that of Fellowschip with the Father, Son, and Spirit. Now to obtain this Communion, we must forfake Sin, which alienates us from God, and by a living Faith accept the Redeemer, that being thereby united to him, we may thro' him obtain Communion with the Father, and Holy Spirit. He will pray the Father for us, and he will give us another Comforter, that he may abide with us forever, even the Spirit of Truth. (John xiv. 16, 17.) And having obtain'd Communion let us perform.

4thly. The Offices we owe to the facred Trinity, fuch as Worfhip and Obedience, being baptiz'd in the Name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghoft, let us keep our Covenant Engagements. We should expect every falutary Bleffing from all the Perfons of the Trinity, feeing they all by Council and Office, equally confpire to promote our Hap-pinefs. (Num. vi. 24, 27.) Having obferv'd the Order of con-ferring every Benefit, which is from the Father by the Son & Spirit. (Ephef. ii. 18.) In the mean Time we should ask the Benefit peculiar to each Person, according to the divine OEconomy, particularly of him, namely, Love from the Father, Grace from the Son, and Communion from the Spirit. And on the other Hand, let us faithfully render that oeconomical Duty we owe to each Perfon, namely, to the Father Revercnce, to the Son Faith and Love, and to the Holy Spirit, Obedience. And in all our Prayers and Praises, let us after the Example of the primitive Church make diffinct mention of all the Perfons of the Trinity; that fo their perfonal Glory may be fuitably manifefted by us.

Nnn

Finally,

The Improvement.

Finally that bleffed Unity and Love, which fubfifts among the faced. Three, invite our Imitation, let us therefoe keep the Unity of the Spirit in the Bond of Peace, because hereby we shall 'in our Measure, in some Sort refemble the facred Trinity. John xvii, 21. That, they all may be One, as thou Father art in me and I in thee; in this our greatest Glory con-fists, John xvii. And the Glory which thou gavest me, I have given them, that they may be one, even as we are. Without Endeavours after Union to, and loving Communion with -fuch whom, from their Principles and Practice, we have Reafon to think are the Saints of God, how can we expect Communion with the facred Trinity, or to be one in them. In a Word, the Beauty, Strength, Increase and Comfort of religious Societies, depend upon their Union and Love, hereby they evidence to the World that they are Disciples of CHRIST indeed. let us be therefore Followers of God as dear Children, and walk in Love, as CHRIST also hath loved us, and given himfelf for us, an Offering and a Sacrifice to God of a fweet imelling Savour. Now to God the Father, Son and Holy Ghoft, the facred and venerable Three. One, who bear Witness from Heaven, to the divine Original of that Religion we profess, be all Glory afcrib'd by Men and. Angels, throughout all Eternity. Amen and Amen.
